

Bad Back.

It may be because you don't wear heavy enough clothing and you've caught cold, or that there's too much uric acid in your blood, that you have that stitch in your back. It's a bad sign and it means something wrong with your kidneys. Now, you are not too old to be well if you take Powley's Liquefied Ozone. The condensed oxygen builds your system and cleans out the delicate kidney tracts. It has helped so many people that it's too bad you don't get a bottle right away. Invest a dollar in health to-day.

NERVOUS, WEAK, DISEASED MEN

Cures Guaranteed or Money Refunded. No Names or Testimonials Used Without Written Consent.

EMISSIONS, SYPHILIS AND VARICOCELE CURED.

Thousands of promising young men have their lives and future usefulness wrecked by early indiscretion and private diseases. Self cure is a terrible failure. The symptoms, until cured, are prostration, or the complete loss of the vitality of the system. If neglected or improperly treated, other organs become affected, and sooner or later impotence or complete loss of manhood is the result. Our New Method Treatment is your only hope. It cures all these diseases.

ALMOST A SUICIDE—A VICTIM TESTIFIES.
C. L. Kegan, a mechanic, living on Twenty-fourth street, says: "I dislike to write, but give this testimony for Dr. Kennedy & Kegan, who cured me of my disease. I was a physical and nervous wreck. Self-cure was the only method of my cure. At the age of 22 my eyes were affected by reading the 'Evening Star'. I could not see things with my eyes. I had Varicocele, Emissions and Syphilis. I tried with doctors in New York, Chicago, Boston and Cleveland, but got no benefit. I then tried a specialist here with no success. A friend confided in me that he had been cured by Dr. Kennedy & Kegan, and I resolved to try them. The result was a miracle. My nervous system disappeared, my eyes cleared, my bones ached no more, and I gained my health in ten days. A new life has opened up to me, and I can now work and enjoy life as before. Dr. Kennedy & Kegan are the only ones who can cure these diseases."

READER: Are you in trouble? Have you been treated and never cured? You dare not risk a return of the disease. It may appear when, happy in domestic life. Our New Method Treatment is your only hope. If afflicted or about to marry, consult us confidentially.

We treat and cure Syphilis, Gleet, Self-Abuse, Varicocele, Emissions, Stricture, Unusual Discharges, Seminal Weakness, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

Consultation Free. Books Free. Call or write for Question Blank for Home Treatment. No cure, no pay. 15 years in Detroit—100,000 cured.

HOWELL'S BIG FIND.

IT WAS GUARANTEED TO INCREASE HIS POPULARITY.

All He Had to Do Was to Read the Book and Success Followed. For It Showed How to Make Love to Any Kind of Girl.

There was a glad young light in the eyes of Howell Van Rensselaer Gibson as he stalked into the room, tenderly clutching a small pink paper covered book.

"Look out!" he cried. "I'm a dangerous man! I'm primed with fascinations clear to the limit, and I've only to look once at you girls to make you grovel at my feet. At last I have found out how these Willie boys who have three dinner invitations every night and who are created, accented notes twisted up to light their cigarettes manage it. They're going to unload popularity at my front door from a moving van as soon as I begin."

The young persons who sat with dropped jaws said "Why?"

Howell sat down and opened the pink book. "The name of this valuable brochure," he said, "is 'The Art of Being Popular With the Ladies.' I picked it up at a cheap book stand. The anonymous Samaritan who wrote it simply shovels out wisdom like a millionaire distributing nickels. He tells in various succinct chapters 'How to court a quiet, domesticated young lady; how to make love to a proud young lady, a poetical or sentimental girl; how to spark a bashful girl; how to woo an heiress; how to make love to a literary young lady, a religious young lady; how to win an actress and how to court a widow.' If you run up against any other kind of girls, you have to take your chances or work your imagination. Next time I meet one of those haughty creatures who give you pneumonia with a single glance I shall remember page 26 and start in to capture her."

The author says in regard to making love to a proud young lady: 'Girls of this description are sometimes exceedingly difficult to get hold of on account of the narrow system of training they have been subjected to. Family pride has thrown barriers around them. Begin the courting of such a girl with the determination not to be discouraged or rebuffed, and when you may take place, determined perseverance will usually crown your efforts with success.' Look at the discreetness of the phrase, 'What-ever may take place.' It's so much more tactful than saying, 'If he fathoms kinks you out.'

"When he tells how to make love to a literary girl, the author admits you are up against it; also he reveals the hideous secret of the feminine heart, and is thirsting for flattery. He says: 'It is not every man who can do this, and he should not attempt it unless he has a decided taste for literature and intellectual pursuit in preference to domestic or home enjoyments.' 'To the true literary lady the duties of a wife, as relating to the management of a house, rearing a family, etc., are decidedly repugnant. She will expect to be acquainted with all the new books as they appear, especially works of fiction and poetry. Admire the productions of her own pen. Generally you cannot put too much flattery on these matters. An author's are usually exceedingly vain on matters of their own composition. If necessary you may use your influence in getting her productions in print, and the best present you can make her is to get printed in handsome style a poem of her own composition.'"

"It's when he tells how to court a sentimental girl that the author turns on the calcium light and the orchestra tunes up. Doesn't this start your heart beating? Listen: 'A young man who sets his heart on a girl of this class must live much on the ethereal. To be much absorbed in mundane matters will prove disastrous to all your aspirations in this direction. You must be thoroughly versed in the poetry of life, so that in your inflammatory addresses to her you can give a romantic view to the simplest point in hand.' Isn't that a cold proposition for a fellow?"

"Sit up nights and memorize poems! I've already learned the little poem he gives later, when he says sweetly, 'We will now suppose the momentous time for the all important question has arrived. Choose some fine, calm summer evening when everything is soft and delicious. You may now come the point by addressing her in an impassioned manner in such language as this:

"Oh, my sweetest Angelina!
By the blue sky and its crowding stars
I love you better, oh, far better than
Woman was ever loved! There's not an hour
Of day or dreaming night but I am with thee;
There's not a wind that whispers of thy name,
And not a flower that sleeps beneath the moon
But in its hues or fragrance tells a tale
Of thee, my love, to my fond, anxious heart."

Mr. Gibson closed his eyes in rapture after this excerpt. "I'm going to say that on Genevieve this evening," he confessed. "I think the consequences may be interesting."

"And this author has a simple superhuman wisdom. He has dug deep into the mysteries of the feminine mind. He says 'the greatest trouble is to get on familiar terms with girls who are excessively bashful, but these bashful girls are usually dear, precious creatures, so confident, innocent and sweet; no distrust, reserve or coquetry, and when married make the best and dearest treasure that a man can be blessed with.' His meaning is commendable if his grammar is excited. Further on he makes bright sallies like this:

"The principal difficulty to overcome, in wooing an heiress is to remove the impression that you are prompted by mercenary motives. I guess that's what has always foiled my attempts. I did not get the impression totally removed. 'Tell her,' he advises, 'that you would prefer her to place her wealth in the hands of some trust company.' It's too bad! Boni Castellani didn't have some kind friend to send him this book a few years ago. The author is hard on widows. He says: 'Unless you mean business you had better keep away from a widow. But any man of ordinary gumption will find no difficulty in courting a widow.'"

"There's a great deal more in the book," Mr. Gibson said regretfully, closing it, "but I've got to keep an engagement. I'll leave it with you girls. If you happen to want a recipe for a love potion warranted to work, for soft solers, invisible ink, gunpowder or superior paint for brick houses, it's all in there. Also there is a universal salve and a liquid glue which sounds sensible. But don't lose the book!"—Chicago News.

MATRON AND MAID.

May McCarty of New York is said to be the only girl bootblack in the country. She has her place in the Grand Central station and does a good business, mainly with women passengers.

Three women, the wives of famous husbands, have been accorded the honor of burial in Westminster abbey. They are Lady Palmerston, Lady Augusta Stanley, wife of Dean Stanley, and Mrs. Gladstone.

Mrs. Jane McE. Smith, new president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Indiana, is the wife of the private secretary of the late George M. Pullman. Her husband now owns the street car system of South Bend, Ind.

Mrs. Hawley, wife of the Connecticut senator, is an enthusiastic clubwoman. She served two terms as president of the Washington club and is prominently connected with several Washington hospitals and other charities.

Miss Alice Parsons, a Tulare county (Cal.) schoolteacher, saw a large bear going up the hillside near the ranch where she boarded. She picked up a Winchester, gave chase and, when within range, brought bruin down with a well directed shot.

Jabe, Lady Carew, now over 100 years old, is not the only survivor of the guests present at the famous ball at Brussels given on the eve of activity by the Duchess of Richmond. The other is Lady Sophia Cecil, sister of the late Lady Louisa Fife.

Miss Marion Talbot, dean of the women at the University of Chicago, has been giving the students some practical hints in cooking. She said in a recent lecture: "Ten per cent of the money Americans spend for food is utterly wasted. We certainly excel in the art of throwing things away."

The will of Mrs. Julia A. Harding, who died recently in Cambridge, Mass., gives $20,000 to the Cambridge hospital, a like amount to the Avon Place Home for Children in Cambridge, $10,000 to the Cambridge Associated Charities and $5,000 to the Congregational church of Winoski Falls, Vt.

When at home Mme. Patti, the great prima donna, entertains regularly, a private theatrical entertainment always being a feature of the evening, but she only sings during the hour of royalty. Her guests are not allowed to pay for the most trivial thing while visiting her; telegrams, letters and such matters are attended to at the expense of the hostess.

HIVE AND BEE.

The use of foundation saves a good deal of time and labor to the bees. Combs cost the bees about ten pounds of honey for every pound of comb.

It is a serious mistake to let a colony of bees become overstocked with drones. To secure the best results in beekeeping good, movable hives should be used.

Guides for the brood frames and boxes need not be more than an inch in width. The life of the bee depends on the work it does. When it labors most, its life is shortest.

Bees should not be moved during the winter, nor should they be disturbed or molested in any way.

Fertile workers will sometimes appear in queen colonies, which amounts to about the same thing as drone laying queens. They will lay eggs, but very irregularly, and a number of them will be found in each cell.

It sometimes happens that a colony goes into winter quarters with a large number of old or nearly worn out bees. In very cold weather these die and, falling, soon clog up the entrance to the hive. Unless they are removed the whole hive will be smothered.

HAZING.

The practice of raising American army officers on tobacco sauce at West Point is being discontinued. It is said that many of them being "hot stuff," Baltimore News.

Hazing and kidnapping have gone too far in the practical jokes of many colleges and schools, American students should be more strenuous in their studies and less strenuous in their horseplay.—New York Tribune.

Two facts are established by the Boos Inquiry—hazing is forbidden by the authorities at West Point, and hazing at West Point still flourishes. What then becomes of the boasted "discipline" of the institution? Obedience to orders is the essence of discipline.—New York World.

OUR PUSH.

At the beginning of the new century the United States stands at the head of the nations of the world as an exporting people.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"The only world conquest in which the United States is concerned is the conquest of markets, and that is an affair of its people, not its government."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Our locomotive makers are getting contracts from India in the face of British opposition. It's the old story—the best goods for the lowest prices and with the quickest delivery. In other words, it's hustling progress versus glacial conservatism.

THE GRUMBLER.

You recommend many a man to your neighbor whom you would not trust yourself.

If the members of a family decide to be sensible for once and retire early, company is bound to come in and keep them up late.

It sometimes happens that a woman likes to play cards more to show her pretty hands and rings than for the excitement of the game.

When a lamp appears in the parlor and the woman says that she prefers it because it is so "cozy," it means that her husband has been making a big kick on the gas bill.

ANIMAL LIFE.

The nightingale's song can be heard at a distance of a mile.

A lion always places its head near the ground when roaring.

A sturgeon will live nearly two days out of water if its body be occasionally moistened with water.

When taken young, the hedgehog may be completely tamed and familiar, allowing itself to be handled and associating with the dog and cat upon terms of perfect concord.

HERE'S AN EXPERT CASTER.

A Man on a Fishing Boat Who Knows How to Handle a Sinker.

"The expert fly caster," said a city angler, "certainly does beautiful work, but I once saw an exhibition of lead casting that pleased me as much as the very finest casting of the fly. This was partly due, no doubt, to the fact that I was personally interested in the result, but without regard to that it was, all the same, very slick juggling with a sinker."

"This was one day on a fishing bank's boat off Seabright. My neighbor at the rail in swinging his line around to throw out got a sight of it around my hat, a soft felt, and lifted it gently off my head and dropped it over the side to fall in the water. It dropped lightly with the brim down and began floating away softly on the tide, the boat being anchored. Well, now, you know that I thought that some dolphin would be clapping the hat on his head next, or some mormon he trying it around her chin for a sunbonnet. I never expected that I'd wear it again, when along comes the man that could cast a lead. Folks had been hollerin' 'Hat overboard!' and he came along to see if he could pick it up."

"He was a man employed on the boat in some capacity, and I dare say he's there yet. He had a short, rather stout, joined rod, the kind the fishing boat fishermen always carry, and a long line on one of those big wooden reels; sinker and hooks on the end of the line. He was fishing himself. By the time he'd heard of it and got where he could make a cast for it the hat was 75 feet astern. He swung the lead around the tip of the rod and then he let her whizz, and I guess he missed the hat by about a foot. 'Well, then I gave the hat up for sure, because I didn't see how any living man could any nearer to it than that at the distance, and now it was floating farthly and farther away. But the expert lead caster reeled in and tried again, the hat being then a full 100 feet or more away. He swung the lead around and let her sizzle, and this time he dropped the line squarely across the top of that hat, with the lead dropping in the water just beyond it, and then he towed the hat gently back and a man on the lower deck reached over and picked it up with a boat hook, and in a minute or two, after I had let it drip a little, I had it back on my head."

"I don't know who is just now the champion fly caster, but I don't doubt for a minute that the man on the fishing boat still holds the record in casting the lead."

Only they attain who strive. We do not drift to victories of soul. A steadfast purpose, diligently pursued, is the only path to an overcoming life.
