Bowyer Bill to be Opposed at Toronto.

Story About Loss of $40,000 Foolish.

Engineer Fretting Over Delay re Power.

Hamilton wili strongly oppose the Bowyer bill in the Provincial Legislature which proposes to take from municipalities the power of granting an exclusive franchise for the use of the streets to any company. The matter comes up tomorrow, and the City Solicitor will go to Toronto with a deputation to look after the city's interests. London and St. Thomas are taking the same stand Hamilton receives about $3,000 a year from the Bell Telephone Company and would lose this if the bill became law. The Mayor does not object to the municipalities that want the bill having it ssed for their benefit, but he wants Hamilton left free to make an exclusive contract with a company if it sees fit.

It is probable that the civic fuel department will supply the Separate Schools with coal this year under the same arrangement as the Public Schools. Mayor Stewart was asked on behalf of the Separate School Board if the city would object to doing this, and he replied that it would be pleased. The Separate School trustees have always purchased the coal heretofore from the dealers. The Mayor says the city can give it to them $1 a ton cheaper than they have been getting it. This will strengthen the hand of the civic fuel department, but is likely to meet with considerable opposition from the dealers.

Both Mayor Stewart and City Solici-Both Mayor Stewart and City Solicitor Waddeil characterize the story that the city will lose $40,000 in the settlement of the celebrated Kramer-Irwin suit as decidedly foolish. The Mayor says that if the city loses anything it will be on the difference of what the plant, for which the city paid $8,300, was really worth and the $2,500 settled upon for the King street repairs. The City Solicitor figures that the city has $6,337 coming to it in interest and costs. What the city will lose in the deal is hardly the city will lose in the deal is hardly worth mentioning, they both say.

STEAMER KRON PRINZ WILHELM IN COLLISION.

New York, March 18 .- The big Transatlantic steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which arrived to-day from Europe, was in collision with an unknown steamer while coming up the bay. She is now lying at anchor off St. George, S. I., with a large gash in her stern, high above the water line. No direct report from the steamer has received and the extent of the damage she sustained is not known. It is believed the collision occurred after the steamer had just cleared at quarantine, and was well on her way to her dock. A steamer which has not yet been identified is lying at anchor near the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, off Saten Island shore. The fog is so thick that it is impossible to make out the strange vessel's name.

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm left Quarantine just before 7 o'clock this morning on her way to her dock. No report of any accident was made at that time, so it is supposed that she was in collision after leaving the station. She had on board 392 passengers, of whom 229 were cabin and 163 steerage.

The gash in the Kron Prinz's stern is in the overhang, directly over the name plate. Several of the plates appear to have been cut through and others crushed In response to an inquiry by the Associated Press by Marconi wireless telegraph, Captain Nierich, of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, sent the following message:

"The Crown of Castile ran into us. Nobody injured. (Signed), Nierich."

The Crown of Castile is loaded with merchandise, but carries no passengers. The Kron Prinz Wilhelm reached her dock in Hoboken at 10.30 a. m. There was a triangular hole about 15 feeet in the after portion of the steamer's overhang. The prow of the Crown of Castile penetrated Kron Prinz Wilhelm's hu'l fifteen feet into the quarters occupied by the steward.

while out walking yesterday afternoon with his young son made a gruesome and startling discovery. They were near the foot of Clark avenue, where the small inlet runs to the westward, when he noticed a satchel lying half frozen in the ice. He got a long stick and fished it out and opened it, when what was his horror to discover a nude baby girl lying dead with a big stone and a beef bone for company in the satchel. Constables Sayers and Robson quickly went to the spot and investigated. The baby was only a few days old and partly frozwill face charges of selling liquor without en. The bone and stone had been put in the satchel to sink it, most likely, and the satchel had been thrown out onto the ice in the probable belief that it would break through, but it had not been heavy enough, and laid there till Mr. Mattison discovered it. It is thought by the police that the satchel had not been there more than a few days, as the last warm spell would have most likely started decomposition, and when found the body was in a remarkably fresh condition. It was taken to the morgue, and the doctors, after a brief-examination, decided it was a case of murder, and that the baby had been placed in the valies while still alive. Dr. James White was notified, and ordered an inquest, which was opened at noon to-day in the city morgue.
