A case of considerable interest was tried at the Town Hall Monday before Mayor Lawrason. George Brown, the liveryman, was the complainant against Norman McClemont. Over a month ago McClemont hired a horse from Brown to go to the Beach, but drove to Rymal. Next morning a message was received from McClemont at Rymal for Brown to go to his out fit, as there had been a to go to the Beach, but drove to Rymal. Next morning a message was received from McClemont at Rymal for Brown to go for his outfit, as there had been a smashup. Brown brought the badly smashed rig home minus the cushion, whip and rug. McClemont had been working in Grafton's tailor shop, but gave up his place, and as it was thought he was about leaving town. Brown had him summoned. A fine of $5 and costs and $20 damages, amounting to about $36 in all, was imposed. McClemont has to return the missing articles within a few days or another police court case may follow. W. E. S. acted by a capable company. Such was oudience which attended the Grand Opera House last evening. And it required no great mental strain to arrive at such a conclusion, for it is many moons since a play of this type has asked for the patronage of Hamilton audiences. Light and frothy as the dialogue is, the personality of every member of the company is such as to hold up even a poorer play.

There is something so simple, yet pleasing, in the presentation of "The Bachelon" by Charles Cherry and his very able assistants, and throughout the whole play the spirit of humor holds the attention of every auditor. In fact, it is so spontaneous, that one could not help but enjoy the play.

Charles Cherry is an English actormand that stands for finished work. Throughout the entire evening, one does not gain an impression that there is anything forced in his methods to obtain the value of every line. Of splendid appearance and the search the search as the search the search the search as the search the search as the s uired no great mental strain to arrive

Ruth Maycliffe, who will be remembered for her exceptionally clever work in "Girls," has a role in "The Bachelor" that suits her delightful style. She is irresistibly humorous, and her manner is fascinating. She made an admirable foil for Mr. Cherry's quiet humor.

Annie Buckley, who has been seen here before in the portrayal of character parts, demonstrated that she is a concilence of tried methods. In the role of the servant she was especially clever. The rest of the cast is quite up to the standard of the stars, and that brings the whole discussion into the following nutshell—that the show is certainly worth while, as an evening's enjoyment—and what more can one ask, pray? "The Bachelor" will be given again this evening.

CONSERVATORY RECITAL.

CONSERVATORY RECITAL.

The first of the season's recitals to be given by the pupils in the Conservatory of Music was held last night, in Conservatory Hall, when the pupils of Mr. J. E. P. Aldous, assisted by a vocal pupil of Mr. H. M. Frederick, of Torionto, Miss D. Ashley, provided a musical treat to a large audience, who were very appreciative, judging by the unstinted applause that was given to each participant in the excellent programme.

The playing reflected great credit on teacher and pupils alike. Special mention should be made of the playing of Miss V. E. Johnston and Miss Bessie Pass, and it is safe to predict a very bright future for both of these young ladies.

ENGLISH MERMAIDS COMING.

ENGLISH MERMAIDS COMING.

Always on the alert for attractive novelties, Manager Appleton has succeeded in securing another spectacular feature as the headliner on the Bennett bill next week, when the English Mermaids make their appearance, presenting their remarkable swimming exhibition. They are two good looking English girls, and the seemingly impossible feats which they performed while submerged in large glass tanks filled with water excite admiration.

Other attractions on the bill next week will include Henry Briscoe and Olive Keen in a clever and laughable satire, entitled "A Trial Marriage;" the Dixie Serenaders, a well known troupe of colored performers, in a spectacular glimpse of the sunny south; Scott and Wilson, comedy acrobats and rube comedians; Zinell and Boutelle, in a bright comedy singing sketch, entitled "237 Miles From Broadway;" Lugi Marbini, in his pretty Arctic novelty; Corinne Francis, a charming little singing comedienne, and new motion pictures.

"A KNIGHT FOR A DAY."

"A KNIGHT FOR A DAY."

"A Knight for a Day" will be the attraction at the Grand to-morrow and Saturday, matinee and night. This clever musical comedy was seen here last season, and delighted its audience to such an extent that its return should meet with liberal patronage. "A Knight For a Day's" story doesn't concern the mail coat period of knighthood. All its people are of to-day. The title character is a nervy little waiter who steals a modern English nobleman's credentials and with them butts into high life, where he attempts to bluff it out that he himself is a knight.

"THE WITCHING HOUR." "A KNIGHT FOR A DAY."

he himself is a knight.

"THE WITCHING HOUR."

There are four acts in "The Witching Hour," the Augustus Thomas play, which is to be seen at the Grand again next Tuesday and Wednesday. The scenes and characters are of the south. The book of the play reads like a Charles Dickens chimney corner story edited by Bernard Shaw. The piece's long run in New York—over one year at the Hack-ctt Theatre—was made possible alone by the depth and strength of the drama, then genuine comedy and pathos in the entertainment and the seriousness of the lesson its author would teach, even if cast and staged with ordinary good daste, but much credit for the remarkable New York run is due to the excellent players, the stage management and the scenic effects. The same magnificent production as last season will be seen here. Seats go on sale Saturday morning. "THE WITCHING HOUR."

TEN YEARS LATE.

Dominion Department of Agriculture,

The experience of one member of a cow at the string association is worth recording, as showing the necessity of testing as well as weighing milk. His principal income is from selling cream, so that his aston-ishment may be guessed hwen he finds this year that the milk from a twelve-tyear-old cow, that he raised on his farm and fondly imagined one of his best cows, has never tested more than 2.9 per cent. of fat. The discovery comes somewhat late to a man who has been harboring a cow that for a productive perform of the government to demolish the walls of Constantinople and sell the material for the benefit of the ministry of war.

milk. The cow never gives this informa-tion concerning herself voluntarily; it has to be sought for and ascertained by definite and regular sampling. All real improvement of dairy herds includes systematic weighing and sampling of the milk from each cow in the herd. All the herd tests, simply average results, that a man likes to have made will never detect the poorest cow or give due credit to the best cow. There must be testing of individual samples.
