

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1887.

Warlike Europe.

The events transpiring in most of the European countries, at the present time, impress the public mind generally, with the notion that a great war is not unlikely to break out before long.

The mutual jealousies of these different countries; the fear of preponderating influences being brought to bear by the stronger against the less powerful; the tension to which international laws are not unfrequently subjected, and the very often strained relations are liable to assume a dangerous character.

Germany and France are also generally associated in the mind of the average reader, and naturally so, with the first indications of war in continental Europe.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

The Boston Herald conceals any wrath the result of the elections may have engendered in its bosom and expresses itself thus:

The accessionists in Nova Scotia have received what must be to them a surprising setback.

The Dominion Parliament has been summoned to meet for the despatch of business on the 13th day of April next.

Our American Cousins.

Any one who has for the past year or so, read the American newspapers must have perceived that they interested themselves very much in Canadian politics.

Our Republican neighbors, as a rule, never lose sight of the dollar, and are not likely to advocate any cause unless they hope, sooner or later, to reap therefrom some pecuniary benefit.

Our contemporary was slightly at fault. "Leading Conservatives" all over the Dominion, knowing the popularity of Sir John Macdonald's Administration rallied to its support on election day, and are now not a little amazed at the piteous wail sent up by the Chronicle and its confederates over their disappointment.

Here is another prediction: "The result of the nominations in Quebec is such as to indicate beyond reasonable doubt that the voters will send a large majority of supporters to Mr. Blake, while there is the most conclusive evidence of a tremendous revolution of feeling against Sir John in the great Province of Ontario."

The result of the elections proved that a majority of the electorate of the Dominion preferred the "prospective advantage" of Canada to that of the United States, and must have made our contemporary feel that his boasting was a little premature.

The Boston Journal speaking of the elections cannot conceal its ill-natured disappointment at the results. It expresses itself in the following manner:

The victory of the Macdonald or conservative party in the Dominion, though not a sweeping one, settles for the present quite a number of important issues in which our people are more or less interested.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

The Boston Herald conceals any wrath the result of the elections may have engendered in its bosom and expresses itself thus:

The accessionists in Nova Scotia have received what must be to them a surprising setback.

The Dominion Parliament has been summoned to meet for the despatch of business on the 13th day of April next.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

False Prophets.

Our local Grit contemporary was not the only journal on that side of politics which was misled by the spirit of prophecy previous to the recent Dominion elections.

Our Republican neighbors, as a rule, never lose sight of the dollar, and are not likely to advocate any cause unless they hope, sooner or later, to reap therefrom some pecuniary benefit.

Our contemporary was slightly at fault. "Leading Conservatives" all over the Dominion, knowing the popularity of Sir John Macdonald's Administration rallied to its support on election day, and are now not a little amazed at the piteous wail sent up by the Chronicle and its confederates over their disappointment.

Here is another prediction: "The result of the nominations in Quebec is such as to indicate beyond reasonable doubt that the voters will send a large majority of supporters to Mr. Blake, while there is the most conclusive evidence of a tremendous revolution of feeling against Sir John in the great Province of Ontario."

The result of the elections proved that a majority of the electorate of the Dominion preferred the "prospective advantage" of Canada to that of the United States, and must have made our contemporary feel that his boasting was a little premature.

The Boston Journal speaking of the elections cannot conceal its ill-natured disappointment at the results. It expresses itself in the following manner:

The victory of the Macdonald or conservative party in the Dominion, though not a sweeping one, settles for the present quite a number of important issues in which our people are more or less interested.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

The Boston Herald conceals any wrath the result of the elections may have engendered in its bosom and expresses itself thus:

The accessionists in Nova Scotia have received what must be to them a surprising setback.

The Dominion Parliament has been summoned to meet for the despatch of business on the 13th day of April next.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

The Spanish Exhibition.

Somewhat a year past without an International Exhibition taking place, now in one country now in another. There can be very little doubt that these great art and industrial shows contribute in no inconsiderable degree to make known to the world the resources and national progress of the different nations represented at them.

So desperate have the Grits become since their defeat, that they make no effort to conceal their treason to their country. To their credit be it said, the Americans notwithstanding their party squabbles, are a unit when a question becomes national.

In September next an International Exhibition takes place in Barcelona, Spain. It may not be out of place, here, to say a few words relative to this old city.

It was once the capital of a Kingdom and is now the chief town of an important Province bearing its name, and is the industrial and commercial centre of the eastern portion of the Spanish monarchy.

The demonstration which took place in Ottawa on the 24th Feb., in honor of Sir John Macdonald and the members of his Administration, surpassed anything of the kind ever witnessed in the capital.

The Manchester Times speaks thus of the Premier of the Dominion: "Sir John Macdonald is a man of the most noble character, a statesman of the highest order, and a patriot of the truest type."

Political Notes.

The Newfoundland Legislature opened on the 17th of February. The Legislature of New Brunswick opened at Fredericton on the 3rd inst.

The result of the nominations in Quebec is such as to indicate beyond reasonable doubt that the voters will send a large majority of supporters to Mr. Blake, while there is the most conclusive evidence of a tremendous revolution of feeling against Sir John in the great Province of Ontario.

The result of the elections proved that a majority of the electorate of the Dominion preferred the "prospective advantage" of Canada to that of the United States, and must have made our contemporary feel that his boasting was a little premature.

The Boston Journal speaking of the elections cannot conceal its ill-natured disappointment at the results. It expresses itself in the following manner:

The victory of the Macdonald or conservative party in the Dominion, though not a sweeping one, settles for the present quite a number of important issues in which our people are more or less interested.

It is not difficult to read between the lines of the foregoing extract that our contemporary is sorely disappointed and feels that Yankeehood has reckoned without its host this time.

The Boston Herald conceals any wrath the result of the elections may have engendered in its bosom and expresses itself thus:

Local and Special News.

The Chinese Brigantine and Quinby B. Co. has published a Promoting Directory of the Province of Ontario.

This was first introduced into England as a part of the medicinal properties of the plant, and is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.

The "Lepros Disinfectant" which is said to be a most effective remedy for the disease, is now being used in the treatment of various diseases.