(Shakspeare) An old money grab in the city of Glasgow, who discounted bills for his friends, when the promise of pay held good back security in the shape of endorsations, was security in the shape of endorsations, was applied to by a friend to cash a small bill for him, when old Discount required an additional security. The friend who little expect d a request of the kind, got into a violent rage; "Security, Sir!—I'll give you the devil for security." "Weel then, just tring him forward; and, as I ne'er has seen the gontlemar, get twa decent men to say its really him, and we'll decent men to say its really him, and ye'll get the siller."

DISTRESS DEFINED .- A poor Yankee, upon being asked the nature of his distress, replied, " that he had five outs and one in," -to wit: - "out of money, and out of clothes; out at the heels, and out at the toes; out of credit, and in debt."

A Poses. - A boy once complained A Posks.—A boy once complained of his bed-fellow for taking half the bed.—
"And why not?" said his mother; "he is entitled to half, sin't he?" Yes mother," said the boy; "but how should you like to have him to take cut all the soft for his half? he will have his half out of the middle, and I have to sleep both sides of him."

EXCELLENT RULES -To remember that EXCELLENT RULES — To remember that we are all subject to failings and infirmities of one kind or another. To bear with, and not magnify each other's infirmities. To avoid going from house to house for the purpose of hearing news and interfering with other people's business. Always turn a deaf eag to any slanderous report, and law no charge against any person juless. lay no charge against any person unless well founded. If one be in fault to tell him in private before it is mentioned to others. To watch against any shyness of each other, and put the best construction on any of Solomon, that is, to leave off contention before it is meddled with.

HINTS .- When I see a man hanging around the store, shop, or tavern, or loitering about home, because he has nothing to do, I am apt to think he likes company better than work, and is unwilling to work for what he can earn, that he promises to work for more persons at a time than would be best, and that he could find those in his neighborhood who would be glad to hire.him to work, in order to obtain their just demands. I am apt to think, too, that he owes for some pig, bushel of corn, a few pounds of pork, house rent, or some other necessary, which on quarter-day will look rather equally. But I am apt also to think rather equally. But I am apt also to think if he becomes punctual in paying these little debts, faithful in his business, not extortionary in his wages, punctual in all his promises, rendering himself useful to his employers to the best of his abilities, that he would be apt to find his business on the increase, wages increasing, less sauntering, a firm demand for his labor, an increase in his result, a current panel at high a place.
