being unearthed slowly by federal officials here, is expected to prove one of the largest conspiracies of the kind ever brought to light in American territory, according to the authorities.

Nine persons, eight Japanese and one Spanish-Hawaiian, are under arrest and the federal officials have $250,000 in counterfeit money and two plates designed for the manufacture of the bills. The operations have been in progress for approximately two years and began, apparently, among persons engaged in the opium traffic.

The authorities said that the smugglers of opium into the territory were the victims of a grim little joke and "the double-cross supreme" in return for the opium they managed to bring into the territory they received large sums of counterfeit money. The fact that they were engaged in an illegal operation was counted on to prevent them from notifying the authorities.

The persons in custody constitute only a part of the conspirators and the bills are believed to be spread all over the islands. It is known that large amounts have been taken to the Orient for distribution there. Many of the bills here were passed on Orient shopkeepers.

The authorities said the conspiracy was unraveled like a popular fiction fantasy. Most of the persons in the alleged ring are not known to each other and probably not more than one man knows all the other members of the ring. He is a Japanese master engraver, now in custody, who was employed on a local Japanese language newspaper until the discovery of the plot, the authorities said. He is charged with having manufactured a number of plates for the printing of the bills.

Instead of using the plates himself he sold them to other persons throughout the islands. The result is that the counterfeit money is appearing from many different places, each place producing them being unknown to the other plants. One printing press was found working on a sampan anchored in a bay off the Island of Hawaii. The bills are in $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100 denominations and are an exceptionally good imitation, the only noticeable difference between the spurious and genuine currency being in the quality of the paper.

Although federal authorities have knowledge that many of the participants in the plot have escaped to Japan and China, carrying with them large sums in counterfeit money, more arrests are expected, as the officials say they have merely scratched the surface.
