The child escaped without injury.

Nine Hundred Dead Dervishes.

CAIRO, July 8.—The encounters that have occurred near Aringa, between the Egyptian troops, under Col. Wodehouse, and the Dervishes have proved very disastrous to the latter. Thus far 900 of the Dervishes have been killed and have been taken prisoners or have deserted.

A Quakerian Gait.

LONDON, July 6.—An election was held yesterday in the West division of Fife to fill the Parliamentary seat made vacant by the resignation of R. P. Bruce. Mr. J. H. Hill (Quakerian) was elected, receiving 3,561 votes against 2,758 for Wemyss (Radical Unionist). The latter received the support of the Conservatives.

The Pope's Fitting.

Rome, July 9.—The preparations are well advanced for the departure of Pope Leo XIII. from the Vatican. He is now completing the list of the court persons who will accompany him. He has arranged a sharp stick for next Thursday. The Cardinal Vicar will remain in Rome with a part of the Papal household. More Fighting in Egypt.

LONDON, July 9.—Advices received at Cairo today that Col. Wodehouse's cavalry occupied the camp of the enemy and found it deserted by all except several women, women and children. The men dying from thirst and exhaustion. The other surprised and killed a picket belonging to the Ninth Battalion. No reinforcements for Col. Wodehouse had as yet arrived. The Egyptian force under Col. Wodehouse arrived at Adenah last night. The Dervishes occupied a position on the opposite bank. A large number of the Dervishes were after water, and managed to procure a supply, though many of their number succumbed to the fierce artillery and the rifle fire kept up by the Egyptians. Three battalions of British infantry and a squadron of Hussars have been ordered to Assuan.

The Shah in England.

LONDON, June 3.—Upon his arrival at Windsor, the Shah was received by the Queen at the State residence. The Shah, accompanied by several members of the royal family, members of the diplomatic corps and other prominent persons, was escorted by a procession to the Guild Hall. The streets through which the procession passed were decorated with flags and bunting and lined with troops. Immense crowds gathered along the route. Lord and Lady Salisbury were late in starting for the Strand that they had already passed along that thoroughfare. The troops there had also broken up their lines and the crowds of people were roaming about at will. Owing to the dense crowds, Lord Salisbury's carriage proceeded very slowly without its occupants being recognized until Chesham was reached. Here it was obliged to come to a standstill and the official uniform of the Premier attracted the attention of the sightseers who battered his Lordship until a body of troops was procured to escort him and Lady Salisbury to the Guild Hall, which they entered by the back door assigned to ordinary visitors. The police on duty at the entrance stopped several detectives who were following the Premier, and would not allow them to enter until they had explained who they were.

Mr. Gladstone at Cardiff.

LONDON, July 7.—The freedom of Cardiff was presented to Mr. Gladstone yesterday. Mr. Gladstone's speech on the occasion was notable for compliments paid to America. He referred to her constitution as a marvel of political wisdom, exhibiting the benefits of devolution in contrast with the evils of too great centralization, of which France and Italy were examples. He would have liked to have brought with him the illuminated address sent him from New York, but it was too bulky. He brought instead the address sent him from Illinois. These and similar expressions of opinion of the "home rule" question from a nation rapidly advancing to the position of the primary power of the English-speaking race ought to give every prudent Englishman material for reflection. "We are the first," he said, "to tell other nations their faults, but the last to listen to anyone's advice."

Referring to the Fife election, he said the opinions of Mr. Wemyss, the defeated candidate, Mr. Gladstone said that if the Government would allow Mr. Wemyss to show in their behalf doubts Mr. Wemyss and he (the speaker) would be able to arrive at a very satisfactory solution of the Irish question. So much for the best candidate the Government could find.

The Routed Dervishes.

with all available troops in steamers. He calls for reinforcements.

The daughter of the Dervishes on the Nile's bank has raised a shudder even in England, where shooting savages is regarded as a part of the Empire's great civilizing mission. The position of the poor wretches in this case is particularly horrible. They advanced many days' journey across the desert, and almost reached the Nile, panting for a drink of its refreshing waters. But there on the bank the Khedive's troops were drawn up. The savages fought a whole day in the broiling Sudan sun to get at the water, but without avail, and they hid themselves at night in the hills. Mounted cavalry scoured the banks all night to prevent the tribesmen reaching the Nile, and gunboats flashed electric lights and fired shells continuously with the same object. All next day the same tactics were observed, and scores of Arabs have now been found dead, their parched tongues protruding and shriveled. Some of the rebels were tried to steal to the river for water for the fighting men, but they were promptly captured and transported across the Nile, whence they could render no succor.

Germany and Switzerland.

LONDON, July 7.—A Berlin dispatch says: Prince Bismarck's letters to the German Minister at Bern have been the prelude to a general outcry by the semi-official press, warning the neutrality of Switzerland. The Chancellor's intention in publishing the letters has now invested with a serious meaning the letter in which he says that if Switzerland continues to permit revolutionists to threaten the internal peace and security of the German Empire the powers will be asked to consider Swiss neutrality. An official policy being adopted by the Austrian and Italian Governments to compel Switzerland to comply with the demands of Bismarck for a revision of the laws affecting refugees. To-night's advice from Bern shows that the Government is alive to the possibilities of the situation. The Bundesrath has concluded to negotiate a loan of 20,000,000 marks to provide rifle for the army. Apart from official circles, German feeling leans towards Switzerland, and in hopeful that nothing will disturb existing sympathies. The Cologne Gazette states that the Emperor during his last journey in Southern Germany several times expressed his respect and admiration for the Swiss, regret that the quarrel arose, and his conviction that the difference would be arranged.

The Weekly War Scare.

LONDON, July 8.—During the past week there has been a strange and almost sinister change in the content, which recently was so disturbed by evil dreams and throbings of the war drum. Young William is alone with his thoughts in the gloomy stillness of the Norwegian forests and glacial valleys, and as to the tone of his thoughts we have no sign. The czar, too, is off with his wife and family in an equally close seclusion, trying to realize that he is a human being after all, instead of a fly on the driving wheel in the enormous and terrible mechanism of the Russian Government. But the forces which cause such a state of mind are not resting. German timidity and the work of the League of Nations are doing their worst. The quarrel forced upon little Switzerland with a view of preserving a pretext for hurrying an army corps across the Jura Pass when war comes. Russian officers, no longer desirous to disguise matters, are warning upon the Danube past Rumanian towns into Serbia, and one party of 20 actually landed on Wednesday at Brai, and closely inspected the fortifications the Rumanians have built there. The Servians got a hint to dissemble their readiness to overthrow the Obrenovitch dynasty, and accordingly the boy king is once more being saluted, but the work of getting ready to do Russia's bidding goes on untiringly. Here in London diplomats believe it was more now that they did when the scare was at its height ten days ago.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, July 5.—Michael Davitt opened his case before the Parnell Commission today. The first witness he called was Mr. Landon, ex-member of Parliament, who testified that periodical outbreaks occurred in county Mayo owing to rack rents. Witnesses assisted in founding the Mayo branch of the League, a part of whose policy was to shoot Lord Leaguers. The Herds' League was in the pay of the police. It was organized by William, who was his liege in consequence. Presiding Justice Hannen questioned the witness, who persisted that the police incited the outrages perpetrated by the Herds' League. The witness said in consequence the authorities became he would not put himself on a level with an informer. He had frequently denounced the Herds' League publicly. The Parnell Commission will adjourn Aug. 9, and the closing speeches on the part of the Parnellites will be made on that day.

LONDON, July 3.—Michael Davitt continued his testimony before the Parnell Commission today. He stated that he would not object to joining any movement to secure the independence of Ireland if such a movement was backed by a force strong enough to justify the hope of its success. He did not approve of the Clerkswell explosion. He regretted the attack upon the prison van, in which a brave policeman was killed, but applauded the men who tried to save their friends. While in prison he concluded that movements by secret societies would do no good, and when released he had a conference with the leader of the Irish Republican Brotherhood in Paris regarding the advisability of an open movement. He failed to win the Irish Republican Brotherhood leaders to approve the adoption of an open movement with the exception of Harris. He intended to make the question a stepping-stone to the independence of Ireland, treating the landward as an English garrison. The League's programme, witness said, had now become the programme of the Tory Government. (Laughter.) Witness refused to say whether or not James O'Kelly, M.P. for the North Division of Roscommon, had been engaged to distribute firearms, and declared he did not know the trustees of the skin-shedding fund. Dr. Carroll and Messrs. Breslin, Luby, Devoy, Burke and Rosa belonged to the Clan-na-Gael in America for political purposes. The witness alluded to the extreme violence of the people opposed Fenianism and secret societies. Irish Americans objected to the scheme, holding that it would give the politicians too much power. Witness had converted many Nationalists to his view.
