Remarkable Progress in Methodist Sunday School Work.

The interview of to-day is with Dr. Withrow, the well-known editor of the Canadian Methodist Magazine.

ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVE: Dr. Withrow, can you give me any interesting facts or figures respecting the Sabbath School Work in your important denomination?

REV. DR. WITHROW: Since the last Methodist union of 1883 remarkable progress has attended every department of church work. In no department has this been more remarkable than in the growth and extension of Sunday schools.

Since 1883 the number of teachers has increased over 20 per cent., the number of scholars has increased over 25 per cent., and the number of scholars becoming members of the church over 60 per cent.

The juvenile collections for missions have increased 34 per cent., the collections for school purposes nearly 50 per cent., and the circulation of the Sunday school papers from 104,000 to 316,000, or over 300 per cent.

Of these papers 150,000 printed pages issue from the confectional press for every working day in the year. The salutary influence of such a constant stream of directly religious reading must be very great.

One reason for the rapid development of our Sunday school work is the existence of a Sunday school aid and extension fund, sustained by contributions from the stronger to help weaker schools. By this means 247 new schools have been established in three years, and very many others in the poorest parts of the country—from the fishing villages of Newfoundland and Labrador to the mining camps of British Columbia—have received substantial aid in the way of books, papers and the like either free or at much reduced rates. This fund has grown in ten years from a few hundred dollars to about $4,000.

Over 250,000 scholars and teachers are enrolled in our schools, and already in connection therewith 125 Epworth Leagues for Christian culture and Christian work among the older scholars have been established.

TIRED OF LIFE.

Thomas Hastings Cuts His Throat with a Penknife.

Thomas Hastings, a middle-aged man, who has been confined in jail here since July 12 on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and also for assaulting Emma Scott, made a most determined attempt on his life early this morning by cutting his throat. The instrument used was an unusually small pocket-knife, with which the would-be suicide inflicted two deep wounds in his throat, one of them cutting the carotid on the jugular, but fortunately not severing the artery. The man's condition was not discovered until shortly after 7 o'clock, when a physician who was on duty early doing chores returned to the ward in which Hastings was confined, and noticing that he was still lying on the bed was not in the least alarmed. When the jail officials found Hastings he was very weak from loss of blood, great quantities of which had soaked into the bed and which had soaked into the bed and which had soaked into the bed.
