"You are very conceited," she said, gayly, and then clung to him passionately. "Two together; I can bear anything if we two are together; I can bear anything II we two are together. But if you had left me to go through my life alone—" A kind of shiver passed through her. "Some have to bear it and do. Cousin Silence did. And I would have borne it too—I told you so once. I would have lived a busy, useful life. I would not have died. But oh!—the difference, the difference."

ference, the difference!"
"And oh! the difference to me!" he said, as he clasped her to his heart, and felt the peace and felt the strength she gave him. And then, coming back to common things, he added, "Poor old Black! he has been just a trifle 'difficult' of late; he is not the best temper in the world, and he likes you so much, you perhaps mightsmooth him down. If I bring him home with me to-morrow, can you give us some supper, Mrs. Jardine?"

So, in the dusk of the next evening, the tall young fellow, handsome and strong, and the bent old figure with the brown wig and yellow gaiters, appeared at the front door, which the mistress always opened herself for her husband.

"I was going to introduce the visitor," he said, "for we never have any other; but look here! I feel like Robinson Crusoe when he saw the footmarks on the shore, Wheels! horses' feet! Mrs. Jardine, you must have been entertaining a carriage and "Two carriages and pairs! They have on y just gone. And they were so very

"The carriages?" "No, the people. Such nice people; is not that your English word—gentil, agreeable, charmant?" She is going back to her French again-

'No, I am thoroughly Scotch now. Mr. Black knows it," said she, as with gentle, almost filial hands, she took off the old man's plaid and bonnet, and sat him in the arm-chair, he submitting with astonish-ing meekness; but all old people, just as all children, loved and submitted to

"How bright your eyes look! Did your visitors talk French with you, my darling?"

"A little, for they had been a great deal abroad. But they were so simple and kindly, not grand or overdressed like—" she Pitcher's Castoria.

"Like other friends of ours whom being with a kind of sad dignity. It had been a sore vexation to him that, except the Grier-sons, nearly all the Scotch woman his wife had met were of the class of Mrs Maclagan, that exaggeration of national qualities which people of one country constantly make the type of another. "But, my dear, who are your visitor.? Mr. Black will be sure to know them."

"Ou, ay; but they would never conde-scend to know me," said the old man, finger-ing with a half comical awe the cards on the table. "Sir John and Lady Symington, of Symington: Mr. and Mrs. MacAlister, of Castle Torre. I told you, sir"—he always addressed Roderick out of business as 'sir,' and Silence as 'madame'—"the gentry of the neighborhood would soon be finding out that there were again Jardines at Blackhall. Besides, Sir John and your father were lads thegither, and MacAllister of Torre-he was a bit bairn then." "Yes," said Silence, after a puzzled pause at the Scotch words, which when he forgot himself the old man continually brought in. "Yes, they told me so. They spoke of him

Roderick, you would have liked to hear how they spoke of your father. And they said they hoped we should be good neighbors and meet vory often."

Roderick looked pleased—it is but human nature to enjoy being 'respeckit like the lave'—but suddenly he clouded over. "Don't let us talk of this; it is impossible."

Silence was so estoyished at the tone are Silence was so astonished at the tone as we'l as the words that the natural innocent 'Why?' died on her lips. She turned away and began taking to Mr. Black of something else, asking no more questions, nor referring again to the visitors, who, Roder-ick saw with pain, had evidently charmed her and been a little brightness in the long empty day.

He told her so, when the old man had departed—after a rather dull two hours; for the master of the house was very silent, and when he did speak, there was once or twice the faintest shade of discontent in his tone, a sort of half apology for their simple menage and frugal fare, of which Silence took no outward notice. She had given her guest the best she had—given it with a warm heart too, and a grateful—for Mr. Black had been very kind, and many a brace of grouse and bunch of grapes had found their way from the Mill-house to

"And I think he knows our ways, and does not expect us to requite him with turtle and venison," said the young hostess. "Perhaps not; he knows the barrenness of "Perhaps not; he knows the barrenness of the land, answered Roderick, sharply-very sharply for him. "But other folks do not know and need not. Your magnificent visitors, for instance. I hope you did not let them penetrate beyond the drawing-room, or invite them to stay to tea, lest they might quote the famous lines, "Love in a hut with water and a crust, Is-Love, forgive us!-cinders, ashes. dust.

"I think you may well ask Love to forgive you, dear," Silence answered, not echoeing the laugh, which was scarcely a merry laugh. "Yes, I offered them tea, for I liked em, and I wanted them to stay till you me home, thinking you would like them b. They did stay, as long as they possibly uld, and we had a pleasant talk, and net was baking, so I gave them some hot

"What charming hospitality! It must have reminded them of Ca e Baderstone's. Why, my dear wife, we shall soon have to set up a Caleb Balderstone, since Blackhall has grown into a sort of Wolf's Hope. Silence my darling"—taking her face be-tween his hands and trying hard to curb his excessive irritation—"you are the sweetest and simplest of women; but—you must not invite people here again. Not people such as these. They would only go home and laugh at us. I don't care for myself; I can dine off porridge and salt—it would not harm me—but I can not bear the world to know it. We must put the best on the out side."

She looked up, more than surprised— startled. Evidently there was something in the woman's nature—larger or smaller, who shall decide?—which could not understand the man at all.

"Never mind, however, for this once. We will hire a fly—a carriage and pair perhaps, in noble emulation—return these visits, and any others with which the 'gentry of the neighborhood,' as old Black called them, may condescend to honor us—and so end it all. To keep up acquaintance with them is, as I said, simply impossible."

"Why impossible?"

"Can you not see? Birds of a facther.

"Can you not see? Birds of a feather must flock together—it is a natural law. These people are the 'magnates of the country,' and we the improverished Jardines of Blackhall. Besides, did you tell them—it was just like you, my innocent one to do it—that I am also foreman of the cotton mill?"

Again she looked at him in quiet surprise. He seemed so very unlike himself. "If I had told them, would it have mattered very

"Certainly not-to me. But I think it would to them. Dear, a man is always despised for being poor; and—I will not be despised. I can live on bread and water. dress in fustian—or rags, if necessary; but my wife will prevent that," added he, tenderly. "Only our poverty must not be-tray itself. If we appear in the world at all, it must be as Mr. and Mrs. Jardine of Blackhall. Whatever we suffer, let us 'die and make no sign.' Or, even to go a little further, let us imitate that very reserved gentleman of whom his valet said. 'Master's dead, sir-but he doesn't wish it to be generally known. Silence did not laugh at the stale joke, which indicated a long undercurrent of bitter thought now welling up to the surface; but she attempted no remonstrance. "My friend"—the old tender "mon ami"-"do not be angry with me. I liked these people because I thought you would like them too, and that a little society would be good for you; but since it cannot be-"Since it cannot be," he repeated, decisively, "we will not trouble ourselves about it, or them. Doubtles; our neighbors will trouble themselves very little about us -at least, as soon as they know all the facts concerning us, which of course they very soon will. Never mind my wife. Kiss me and be happy! We are happy, are we not? Let the world goits way—who cares?"

But it was evident he did care; and when after a week or two he found he had been mistaken, and people did 'trouble themselves' about the young Jardines, inasmuch that by and by, either from friendliness, respect, or curiosity, they had called at Blackhali, whether pleased or vexed, Roderick was certainly interested.

"Well, and who has been here to-day?" was always his first question on coming up from the mill; sometimes adding, with a bitter earnest underlying the jest, that he hoped she had told all her grand neighbors that her husband was 'out at work,' his work as foreman of the mill.

ing of this company was held at its office in London, Ontario, on Wednesday, Feb. 13, 1895.

Present: Messrs. J. W. Little, Philip Mackenzie, F. E. Leonard, V. Cronyn, A. W. Porte, F. P. Betts, Geo. A. Sonierville, J. M. McWhinney, J. H. A. Beattie, Hume Cronyn, Joseph Wheaton, Geo. F. Jewell, A. G. McWhinney, C. F. Hanson, D. Regan, Thomas A.

Browne and others.

The president, Mr. J. W. Little, took the chair, and the manager, Mr. G. A. Somerville, acted as secretary. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and aproved, after which the report and financial statement were submitted, as follows: REPORT.

The directors of the Huron and Erie Loan and Savings Company beg to sub-mit herewith their thirty-first annual report, showing the results of the business of the company for the past year accompanied by the balance sheet to

Dec. 31, 1894, duly audited. As explained at ne last annual meeting, the need of additional accommodation in the offices and vaults of the company had been urgently felt, and during the past year somewhat extensive additions and alterations were made, at a cost of $15,219 70. This expenditure was met by the application of $14,219 70 out of the surplus profits of the year, and the addition of $1,000 to the figure ($19,000) at which the office premises had previously been taken into account.

After defraying all expenses of management and all other charges, the net profits, including $7,341 12 brought forward, have been sufficient to pay two half-yearly dividends at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum, together with the shareholders' income tax of $2,132 04 thereon, to apply $14,219 70 upon the sum expended upon the company's building, and to carry forward, as an unappropriated balance, $15,798 65. The call due in July last on the new shares issued in 1893 has been paid in full, and the premium added to the reserve fund, which now amounts to $700,000, or 50 per cent. of the paid-up capital stock of the company.

During the year there has been an ncrease in the savings bank deposits of $100,131 22, in Canadian debentures of $50,460, and in sterling debentures of $198,603 83. The total assets of the company are $6,364,339 70, being an increase for the year of $455,306 86.

The value of the real estate held by the company, other than office premises, is $13,457. This sum includes all properties remaining unsold, which have come into possession of the company by foreclosure, failure to obtain purchasers under power of sale or otherwise.

As in the past the company's loaning operations have been confined strictly to Western Ontario, and the system of inspection by the company's own officers of property offered as security has

Your directors desire to bear testimony to the very efficient manner in which the manager and other officers of the company have discharged their respective duties. All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. W. LITTLE, President. London, Ont., Jan. 30, 1895.

We hereby certify that we have carefully audited the books and accounts of the Huron and Eric Loan and Savings Company for the year ending Dec. 31, 1894. The cash and bank accounts have been audited monthly; the postings and balances of all the company's ledgers examined quarterly; and we find the whole correct, and in accordance with the above statements. We have also examined the company's securities and find them in order.

GEO. F. JEWELL, F.C.A., THOMAS A. BROWNE, London, Jan. 30, 1895.

In moving the adoption of the report the president said: "The duty of moving the adoption of the annual report of this company has been for many years a simple one. We have not suffered to any great extent from the agricultural depression or the difficulty in disposing of real estate, and for that reason have not considered it necessary to discuss either of these questions or the future prospects of the questions of the future prospects of the company. This year's report is especially gratifying; our funds have been fully and profitably employed, and every department of the business shows a substantial increase, whilst the per-centage of expenses to total assets is centage of expenses to total assets is less than in any previous year. "The net profits, after paying the usual dividends, have yielded sufficient to pay $14,219 70 on the building, and to add $8,457 53 to the balance carried forward, which now amounts to $15,798 65. The balance is in no sense to be regarded as a contingent fund, all the as. sets having been most carefully valued, but it is simply carried forward be-cause no decision has yet been reached as to whether the reserve fund is to be increased beyond 50 per cent, of the paid-up capital.

"The policy of realizing promptly on real estate falling into the company's hands has been continued with most satisfactory results. Out of invest-ments aggregating over $6,000,000, the property held for sale at the end of the year amounted to only $13,457, repre-senting 497 acres of land, of which 175 acres have already sold at an advance upon the prices at which they were taken into account. The remaining taken into account. The remaining farms have been on hand but a short time, the one longest in the company's possession not dating back to the last annual report, and we expect they will all be closed out shortly.

"The sum charged to Losses on real estate,' representing anticipated as well as ascertained losses, amounts to less than one-tenth of one per cent. on the cash value of the mortgages. The arrears of principal and interest are nearly the same as last year, or about one and one-half per cent. of the cash value of the securities.

"During the year applications for loans to the amount of $2,099,507 were received, of which $824,853 were accepted. The total number of mortgages held by the company is 3,466, of which nine are for $10,000 or upwards, the average being $1,689 72.

"In the savings bank there are only 26 accounts over $4,000, the average be-

"The alterations and additions to the company's building, which were so long contemplated, have now been completed in a manner which will meet all requirements for many years to come. The offices, board room, vaults, treasury, etc., are arranged in the most modern and convenient manner, greatly facilitating the transaction of business.

FOR YEARS A GREAT SUFFERER,

And Yet Two Bottles of South American Nervine Cured Him-This is the Simple Story of Frank A. Gadbois, of Cornwall, Ont.

This Great Discovery is an Infallible Remedy for Indigestion, Nervousness and a Shattered Constitution, from Whatever Cause—Thousands of Canadian Citizens Testify.

FRANK A. GADBOIS, OF CORNWALL, ONT

It was with little hope of securing relief that, after years of suffering from indigestion and nervousness, Mr. Frank A. Gadbois, of Cornwall, Ont., was finally prevailed upon to give South American Nervine a trial. Hoping against hope as each new remedy had been given a trial, Mr. Gadbois was prepared to say, with Milton: "Thus repulsed, our final hope is flat despair.' One may fool with hope for a time, but with the most persistent, discouragement is almost sure to eventually settle upon the mind. A good friend, however, had confidence in South American Nervine. He had known its history in cases none less desperate than that of Mr. Gabdois, and it was this experience, doubtless, that finally induced Mr. Gad-bois to make the trial. The record was completely changed. In his own words: "I can truthfully say Nervine is the very best medicine I have ever used.

and nervousness." Yet, whenthe scientific principle that stands at the back of Nervine is understood there is nothing remarkable in the cure. The point of congratulation is that the discoverer of this medicine had the courage, fortitude and consideration for his fellowmen to place it within the power of each and all to secure its use.

Disease will take hold of the human body and locate itself at particular centers. Some times it is the stomach, again the liver, another time the nervous system, or the brain. In every case and with every form of disease, be it known as indigestion, loss of appetite, costiveness, faintness, impoverished or impure blood, general debility, or broken constitution, the seat of the trouble is in the nerve centers, which are located at the base of the brain. Nervine does not give something that produces temporary relief at the felt point of disease, but it immediately operates on the nerve centers, and it to anyone suffering from indigestion sult.
