SUGGEST CHANGE IN THE MILITIA

Sir John French, the Imperial Inspector-General, Submits His Report.

MORE ARTILLERY NEEDED

Divisional Organizations, With Three Brigades of Four Battalions Each Proposed.

Ottawa, Sept. 8 .- The report of Sir John French, imperial inspector-general, on the Canadian militia, was made public today, having been placed in the hands of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The report on the whole approves of the retention of the voluntary system for Canada. Sir John French approves the numbers aimed at by the existing Canadian system, viz., a first line of 100,000, with provisions for the ultimate organization of a second line also of 100,000 strong. With regard to organization the report favors the adoption of a divisional organization instead of the present system of "commands"

Sir John's proposal is that the militia be formed into a series of divisions on the British model, each with three brigades of four battalions each, with a proper proportion of cavalry and artillery. He also notes that to do this there is not more than half enough of field artillery. Further, he urges the need for drawing up extensive mobilization plans, and the formation of a mobilization staff.

In regard to the headquarters and the district staffs, Sir John says that the present staff is inadequate in point of numbers. He declares that the officers who now compose the staff on the whole are capable. They are stronger, he says, on the administrative side than on that of higher mili. tary education, and he makes some recommendations for their improvement in this respect.

As regards officers and non-coms. ne says the tests prescribed are satisfactory, provided they are exacted. This he is disposed to doubt, and declares emphatically for obliging every man who joins the militia as private non-com. or officer to render the full service for which he contracts.

As for the training of the troops in amp, he complains that commanding officers keep their squadron and company officers too much in leading strings, so that their company and squadron work, which he describes as the foundation of efficiency, is imperfectly done. Among other things he insists that city corps should be trained in camp, once each year. Sir John favors the howitzer for astern Canada, as against 4.7-inch guns with which the heavy artillery are armed. With regard to the Ross rifle, he points out the need for keeping ammunition interchangeable with that used elsewhere in the empire.

Sir John recommends 16 days' training for the mounted troops in the West, and urges the establishment of a central training camp on the lines of Petawawa, which he describes as the best in the empire. The report warmly commends the cadet move-
