Number 800 and the Japanese 700 —Japs Capture Twenty-eight Quick-firing Guns, Much Ammunition, Many Rifles and a Number of Prisoners.

(By Special C. P. R. Wire.)

Tokio, Monday, May 2, 7 a. m.—A report from Gen. Kuroki, covering Sunday's fighting, says: "The Russians made two stands. The enemy's strength included all of the third division, two cavalry brigades, about forty quickfiring guns and eight machine guns.

We have taken twenty-eight quickfiring guns, many rifles, much ammunition, more than twenty officers and many non-commissioned officers and men as prisoners. I am informing the staff of the Second Siberian Brigade, and Lieut. Gen. Zassalich, commander of the Second Siberian Army Corps, were wounded. Our casualties number about 700, and the Russian loss is more than 800 men.

RUSSIANS ABANDON ANTUNG.
The Russians were forced to abandon Antung yesterday. They burned the town and retreated.

General Kuroki has received reports that the Russians are fortifying the heights on the right bank of the Yalu River. These new defenses are located to extend from the village of Koshiki, a distance of three and a quarter miles. The Russians resumed their bombardment of Thursday. It was a general and effective bombardment. General Kuroki ordered two companies of the Imperial Guards to cross the Yalu and make a reconnaissance along the left bank of the river for the purpose of discovering the character of the Russian fortifications along the heights on the right bank of the river. The Japanese force advanced toward the heights and spatched a small detachment to the village, where a party of Russians was encountered. In the engagement which followed, five Russians were killed, the Russians shelled the reconnoitering party from an emplacement on the hills on the southeast part of Yoshiko. This fire was without effect.

The Russian artillery on the hill behind Chiu-Tien-Cheng, firing at a high angle, opened on Wiju, the Island of Kurito and Soko. The south of Wiju, where some Japanese batteries had taken possession. This firing continued into Thursday night, and General Kuroki reports that while it was ineffective it disturbed the Russians' preparations for an attack.
The Russians resumed the shelling of Wiju on Friday, but the Japanese guns did not reply. The 12th division of the Japanese army was chosen to make the first crossing of the Yalu. It began its preparations on Friday by driving the Russians from their position on the bank of the river opposite Sikkochin, which is eight miles above Wiju, and the point selected for the crossing. This division constructed a pontoon bridge over the river, and at 3 o'clock Saturday morning it began crossing. The entire division passed over the river during the day and by 6 o'clock Saturday evening it was in the position assigned to it for the battle of Sunday. The movement of the 12th Japanese division was covered by the 2nd regiment of field artillery, and another artillery regiment of heavy guns. At 20 minutes of 11 o'clock Saturday morning the Russian artillery posted to the north and to the east of Shin-Tien-Cheng and began shelling the patrol of Japanese infantry, which had been stationed on the heights. The Russian Chukodai, another island north of Kintoko, and under Chiu-Tien-Cheng.
The Japanese battery replied to this shelling and silenced the Russian fire.
Later eight Russian guns, posted on a hill to the east of the village of Ma-koko, opened upon the Imperial Guards.
In this shelling the Japanese artillery to the east of Wiju responded, and the Russians ceased fire. Then the Chiu-Tien-Cheng and the Mukao batteries responded, and this fire brought a strong Russian response.
The chain of Japanese batteries on the Yalu fired for two hours before they were silenced.

north and to the east of Shin-Tien-Cheng and began shelling the patrol
shelling and silenced the Russian fire.
koko, opened upon the Imperial Guards.
to the east of Wiju responded, and
brought a strong Russian response.
The chain of Japanese batteries on the
were silenced.

of Koshiki, a distance of three and
sumed their bombardment of Thurs-
day. It was a general and effective
to cross the Yalu and make a recon-
