WHAT AN OLD SURVEYOR TOLD A WORLD REPORTER.

The Outlook Along the Red River-Looking at the Prairies Through Colored Glass and Champagne—Maled Immi-

Among the passengers that arrived at Collingwood early on Saturday morning on the steamer City of Owen Sound was Mr. Frank Jones, ex-M.P. for Leeds and Granwille. The steamer was five days in coming down from Duluth, and she had a very rough passage. None of those on board received him at Milan with royal honors and gave him a court dinner.

A traveling circus receatly pitched its

All of the men nader him were also more or less made ill by the water, which, throughout the section of country which they were surveying was highly impregnated with alkali.

Mr. Jones then went on to give our reporter a rapid description of the country. All along the banks of the Red river to the west of Brandon vegetation was sparse; in many places the flat lands on the banks a still retained the stagnant waters cast upon them by the overflow of the river and floods of last spring. There was considerable sackness in and around Brandon lately, although Brandon is considered a much more healthy spot than Winnipeg. The Flat creek district, west of Brandon, is entirely deserted. Malaria drove the settlers ffrom its contaminating and disease-breeding borders.

Mr. Jones then went on to tell of how in his return home from the far west he met parties of English immigrants with their outfits weading their way to the different places of settlement. They had nething but tents with them, and they were forty miles away from any place where timber or wood could be procured. Many of them were under the impression that they could live in these tents all winter. They seemed totally unaware of the rigors of a Manitoba winter. Mr. Jones cancluded his hasty chat—he had to leave on the Montreal boat at 2 p.m. for home—by saying that he theught the Turtle mountain district, aljoining Dakota, was the most fertile portion of the prairie province. The settlers at present had the benefit of the American railroads passing through that state, and they found a ready market for their wheat.

Dr. Baer, in a recent address before the load of health of Berlin, stated that during the hear of health of Berlin, stated that during the hear twelve years the number of drinking shops in Belgium had increased from 45,000 to 96,000, and the consumption of alcohol from 4.42 to 11 litres per head. On the other hand, in Gothenberg, since the liquor shops have been reduced in number from 61 to 35, and the selling of liquor on credit forbidden by law, the arrests for drunksness have fallen off two-thirds, as also the number of cases of delirium trements. According to the information furnished by recent numbers of the Ferhan, the journal of Ispahan, civilization is making considerable progress in Persia. A large college which was completed last year with government aid has now commenced its work in earnest among the upper classes of Persian youths, who will have the advantage of futition at the hands of professors who, if not Europeans, have at least graduated at the principal seats of learning in Europe. Further signs of progress are to be found in the increased employment of Europeans in connection with railways, telegraphs, &c., and in the recent decree for the assimilation of weights and measures throughout Persia.

Oh! tains nuffin' tall like de Johnson gals,
For dey bangs all de county out!

Folks en de Creek gwine to look mighty sharp
When de Johnson gals come bout;
Dey libs in de quarters on de J'inin' place,
Right close to de en' o' de lane;
Dey's sweet as de hole in de 'lasses-bar'l
An' nice as de suger-caue!

De morkin' sing when de bright day breakin,
An' he wake up the bushes all aroun';
But he aint half sweet as de old whipperwill,
Dat sing when de sun gone down!
De morkin' tell yeu when to hitch up de team,
An' he call out de niggers to de hoes;
De whipperwill will talk 'bout Johnson gals,
'Cause he sing when de moon done rose!'

Far' you well, my old true love,— I aint get time to stay! I been out long wid de Johnson gals An' dey stole my heart away!

The population of the earth has long been a fascinating study for statisticians Rehm and Wagner, who have just pub ished an amended edition of a former work in Germany. They give the total as 1, . 483.887,500-which is about 22,000,000 less than their estimate of two years ago. They have concluded that China has 50,000,000 less than they formerly supposed. There has thus been an actual increase of about 39,000,000 in the population of the globe—an increase, however, which must be spread over ten years, as many of the recent censuses are decennial. For Europe were but fifteen passengers on the Owen Sound and vory little freight. People are of the year.
