Another Donald Morrison at the Head of the River.

New Peter McClelland, Wanted for Murdering a Prison Guard at Auburn, is Being Hunted by Four Detectives.

CONVICTS, Aug. 24.—The pursuit of a murderer is at all times exciting, but the circumstances connected with one now going on in the county of Glengarry are more than ordinary interest.

Some years ago Peter McClelland, the son of a respectable Scotch farmer in the township of Robertson, and related to many of the leading families in the county, left home to work in the lumber shanties of Michigan.

While working in the lumber shanties of Michigan, McClelland met two officers from Montreal, one of whom is Detective Carpenter, who also captured Donald Morrison.

To complete the parallel with the Michigan case, the claim soon got the idea that the man was being hunted and naturally manifested sympathy.

When the man was captured at Auburn, he was taken to the penitentiary and a desperate struggle in which one of the turnkeys was killed. The reason of his desperation was that he had been sentenced to life imprisonment.

McClelland made an attempt to escape from the penitentiary but was recaptured. He was then taken to the penitentiary at Auburn, where he was held for some time before being released.

STOLEN BY INDIANS 23 YEARS AGO. A Romantic Tale, the Truth of Which is Vouched for by a Penning Estate. Pennington, Aug. 24.—Eighteen years ago there lived with his wife and family, within a few miles of Pennington, on the road now leading to the post office at Hamilton, a French-Canadian named Alfred La Motre. One day the 2-year-old child was missing. It was thought by the last wanderer of the woods that the child had been taken by Indians. Through and systematic search was begun and was kept up for several days, but no trace of the lost child could be discovered. The whole country was then a wilderness of bush and hemlock, and the only animals were quite numerous. It was feared that a bear had carried off the boy, and his parents mourned him as dead. Years passed away and nothing more was seen or heard of the missing child. The child was moved away from this part of the country and went back to Lower Canada. Not long since a priest who had charge of a mission in the Northwest was told by an Indian on his deathbed that he had seen the child of Alfred La Motre. The priest communicated this to the father, La Motre, and the latter immediately set out to find his child. He was successful in finding the child, and he was brought back to his parents. The child was now 23 years old and was a fine young man. He was now a member of the Pennington family and was now a member of the Pennington family.
