

GET MINING MAGAZINE'S BIG JANUARY INTERNATIONAL NUMBER

JANUARY begins the 11th volume of the Mining Magazine—the fifth volume under the present management—and marks the beginning of the thirtieth consecutive year in technical journalism of the publisher, who devotes his entire time and attention to building the Magazine. It is a certainty that extraordinary efforts are in progress to make the January Number of the publication a record breaker in size, appearance and value of contents. It is aimed to have this number typify the entire scope and purpose of the Magazine; hence, an International Number.

International—in one word—tells the story of the Mining Magazine, the one publication that fully and accurately reports and classifies current world progress in Mining, Metallurgy and Economic Geology, and is indispensable to men even slightly interested in these subjects. All the reasons you should take any mining publication are the reasons you should take the Mining Magazine, and there are other reasons peculiar to this publication. It is a time-saver—and saving your time means increasing your productive capacity, and consequently your value.

Each month the Mining Magazine publishes from four to six original articles, handsomely illustrated, written by well-known men of wide practical experience. In addition, it gives every month a brief classified Index of every article of importance in the world's technical literature relating to Mining, Metallurgy and Economic Geology, telling where it may be found and of what it treats. Any of these articles will be sent at small cost, translation included when desired. In each issue the Magazine also publishes Digests of the more important of these articles—each Digest by a specialist. And all this regularly for $2.00 a year, including postage in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Hawaii, the Philippines and Cuba; elsewhere, $3.00 a year.

SPECIAL SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

We want to introduce the Mining Magazine immediately to everyone interested in a publication of this kind—want everyone to begin with the January International Number. Articles by such men as Robert H. Postlethwaite, of San Francisco; C. W. Purington, Denver; D. H. Bradley, Jr., New York; Waldemar Lindgren, U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D.C.; Emile Guarini, Brussels, Belgium; Enrique Laroza, Lima, Peru; and Newton W. Emmens, Pittsburg, giving brilliant flash lights of significant phases of mining to-day in the United States, Mexico, South America, Europe (including Germany and Russia), South Africa, Australasia and the Far East. The International Number sets the pace for 1905. Every effort will be made to continue the pace thus set, making it certain that no other mining publication will begin to be so interesting and so valuable as the Mining Magazine. ### READ WHAT SUBSCRIBERS SAY:

"The Mining Magazine is a pleasing change from the somewhat monotonous weekly publications."—Ralph Root, Manager, Hoskins Mining Co., Hazel Green, Wis.

"The Magazine is an extremely valuable one, possessing features which are not common to any other publication."—Walter G. Hudson Co., New York.

"Has met every promise;—matter presented is new and attractive in form;—the Mining Digest and Mining Index I find full of interest."—E. V. d'Invilliers, Geologist and Mining Engineer, Philadelphia, Pa.

"In the first number of the Mining Magazine which came to my notice I found an article in the Digest which was worth more to me than the cost of five years' subscription."—C. M. Fassett, Chemist and Metallurgist, Spokane, Wash.

"I want to congratulate you on your success in making the Mining Magazine second to none in point of interest. The first four numbers I received are worth many times the cost of a year's subscription."—C. F. Lake, Boulder, Colo.

These are a few of the many endorsements received in one morning's mail. The Mining Magazine is a publication the mining men are taking up with great enthusiasm. 80 to 120 pages monthly and every page of permanent interest. Of course, you want it!
