

DEW DROPS

Vol. IV.

TORONTO, DECEMBER 1, 1900.

No. 48.

EVENING PRAYER.

I guess all my young readers can tell what these two little children are doing. They would say they are saying their prayers. From going to Sunday-school and from teaching at home they have learned a good deal about God, and they love him very much. They never forget to pray to him, feeling that he is really their dear Father in heaven.

EVENING PRAYER.

Prayer is a beautiful thing; it brings us nearer our Father. In praying we should tell God all we want, and if it is good for us we may depend upon it God will give it to us. It may not come as we hope, for sometimes we ask for things which are not good for us to have. In our prayers, besides asking for what we want, we should not forget to thank God for all he has given us.

God is very good to his creatures and has given them far more than they can ever return thanks for.