

that reason that Julie grew to be so fond of her. And indeed, between Mr. Strickland and Mary she might have become quite spoiled if she hadn't been such a dear, unselfish little girl.

So from Jersey they went to St. Malo, and visited several places on the coast, and Mr. Strickland took her to Jessie's grave, and before the winter set in they returned to London again.

"By-and-by they would settle down," he said; "he would like to have a house in the country best. A house with a great big garden—a garden full of flowers; you would like that, Julie dear?"

Yes, Julie would like that very much; it had a pleasant sound in her ears. And they then talked about housekeeping matters, while Julie poured out the tea. A wonderful tea-maker was Julie by this time; papa said she made "such nice tea!"

And he used to drink five or six cups with the newspaper by his side, looking at the advertisements of houses to let, some of which he might read aloud.

"Hulloa!" he cried presently, as he was reading quietly to himself; and then he whistled softly and seemed to muse awhile.

"Is it a nice house?" Julie asked. "Is it that what you're reading, papa?"

"Why, Julie," he said, "here's a house to let that I know quite well long ago. I knew the people that lived there once; I used to visit them often, you know." He whistled softly to himself again, and getting up walked across the room. "So that's to let," he said half to himself. What a charming place it was!

"Is it in the country?" Julie asked; "and has it got a garden, too, papa?"

He was thinking so busily about it just then that he did not hear the question, and Julie repeated it.

"A garden? Oh yes, Julie; a lovely old garden, dear. And the house is a little way out of the village—quite a countrified place, of course. We could keep a pony for you, Julie; for there are stables and a yard behind. Dear me!" he cried, suddenly speaking more to himself than to her, "I must write about that place. I shouldn't like to miss the chance of getting it at all. I shall make inquiries to-day."

His letter was written when Julie had gone to bed, and he looked up the advertisement again to find the address, and addressed the envelope to "Miss Bridges, 13 Gordon Terrace," etc.

If Julie had seen the address would her memory have come back, I wonder?

LITERARY NOTE.

The last work of the late Dr. Samuel Cox will be published in a few days by Thomas Whittaker. It is vindication of God's ways with Jacob and Esau under the title "The Hebrew Twins." His widow contributes an interesting memorial sketch to the volume.

A PRAYER FOR LENT.

Ps. 139, 23, 24.

"Search me, O Lord, with Thy all-seeing eye,
Whate'er in me is wrong, oh rectify;
Search Thou my thoughts; my inmost heart explore.
Each dark recess; each sin unknown before,
Bring thou to light, and with Thy searching prove,
The end and aim of everlasting love.
"Know Thou my heart;" 'tis all unknown to me,
Only my soul would cling in faith to Thee
Whilst Thou dost show how false, deceitful, vain,
How often wrong its thought, that gives Thee pain
Then I would cry, "Lord, take my heart and fill
It with deep longings now, to do Thy will."

"Try me"; if only thus in being tried,
I shall be nearer to my Saviour's side.
Affliction is a furnace I am told,
In which God tries His people as pure gold;
Purging away from heart and mind, and thought
Each spot of dross by sin and folly wrought.

"See me," O Lord, thus searched, and known, and tried.
My thoughts, my heart, my ways, I'd nothing hide;
All, all is open, searched and known by Thee,
Nothing but sin in all Thine eye can see;
Look not on me, but on the Crucified;
For me He suffered, and for me He died.

"Lord, lead me" in that everlasting way
That ends with Thee in that eternal day;
Safe sheltered in Thy pierced and bleeding side,
No foes to fear with Thee, dear Lord, to guide.
And soon thus known of Thee, and known as Thine.
I with Thy saints in cloudless glory shine.

IT COVERS A GOOD DEAL OF GROUND

—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And when you hear that it cures so many diseases, perhaps you think "it's too good to be true."

But it's only reasonable. As a blood-cleanser, flesh-builder, and strength-restorer, nothing like the "Discovery" is known to medical science.

The diseases that it cures come from a torpid liver, or from impure blood. For everything of this nature, it is the only guaranteed remedy. In Dyspepsia, Biliousness, all Bronchial, Throat and Lung affections; every form of Scrofula, even Consumption (or Lung-scurf) in its earlier stages, and in the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases—if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

The worse your Catarrh, the more you need Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its proprietors offer $500 cash for a case of Catarrh in the Head which they cannot cure.
