

moved that these Orders shall be for Tuesday next, so as not to interfere with the consideration of His Excellency's Speech on Monday.

HON. MR. DICKEY—My hon. friend will recollect that it has always been the practice here that when an Order of the Day is set down for a particular date that the regular motion is that the Order of the Day be discharged, and that it shall be considered at some future day.

HON. MR. MILLER—Although I agree with the hon. leader of the House that the course he pursues is strictly according to rule, if the adjournment takes place now the Order on the minutes will have precedence at the next meeting of the House.

HON. MR. POWER—I think the hon. leader of the House will see it would hardly be respectful to the representative of Her Majesty, when the Address in reply to his Speech has been regularly made the Order for to-day, that in our minutes for this day, for which it has been made the Order, no mention of it should appear. I think the more respectful and the more regular course is the one suggested by the hon. gentleman from Richmond.

HON. MR. ABBOTT—I do not see any occasion for restricting our privileges if we have the right to pursue the course I have taken. One of my hon. friends objected to the introduction of those Bills. If we have a right to introduce them I do not see why we should not do so, when my hon. friend opposite, who is a very high authority on all matters of procedure, admits that it is regular. I do not think that any question of respect or disrespect to His Excellency arises on it at all. We are not prepared to go on with the business, and in adjourning until Monday I do not see anything that can be construed into disrespect to His Excellency. As the course I propose is admitted to be regular I shall persist in my motion to adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 3:40 p.m.
