Wants Better Fire Protection.
W. K. McNaught, in a letter to Mayor, says the fire at the Island other day has shown some defects in the system of fire protection over there, and he would suggest that they be remedled as follows: Each fire station should be prigade could be stationed at each of the two Island stations, so as to be there always. If this were done, there would always be an expert at the start of every fire who would know all about the work. of the hose, hydrant, etc. "You can readily understand," Mr. Mc.
Naught concludes, "that in the daytime the Island is practically deserted by the men, and a fireman at each station would almost be more necessary in the day time than at night. He could easily arrange to than at night. He could easily alrange to sleep at the station at night. Mr. Rust. City Engineer, will be able to give you all particulars regarding the necessity for these improvements."
