Statement Regarding Arrival of Allan Liner Corsican Not Warranted by Facts.

The Halifax Recorder says:-The Corican missed the five o'clock tide at St.

Scotia coast, coming around to this port, in last Monday's storm, and on her arrival here went right into her berth about midnight last Monday. Had the steamer come to this port direct when she was spoken by wireless off Cape Sable Island, the mails would have been more than a day ahead of her Halifax times, besides that extra 276 miles of a

Boston Journal:

"The Dominion Atlantic Railway Company, which operates a railway and steamship line between Halifax, Yarmouth and Boston, has been contemplating extending its line from Truro to Tatamagouche in order to carry a larger share of freight and passengers bound for Prince Edward Island. It is understood that the recent purchase of the Midland railway, a short line running from Truro to Windsor, where it taps the main line of the Dominion Atlantic, was for the ultimate purpose of establishing a Prince Edward Island connection by extending the road to Tatamagouche, only twenty-five miles distant. Should the Tatamagouche-Charlottetown route be established it is probable that it would be fed by both the Dominion Atlantic and Intercolonial systems.

The people of Prince Edward Island are a unit in hoping that some action looking to the relief of the situation will be taken at the present session of parliament. Should any action be taken at this session it would require some time to make improved conditions a reality, steamer, railway and tunnel construction being necessarily slow.

Mr. McAnulty had been looked upon as a particularly healthy man. He was of great muscular strength, of good habits and a hard worker. He was well known in the North End and many will be shocked to hear of his tragic death.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICES

The evangelistic services in the Victoria street Baptist church, north end, are being largely attended. The church was crowded last night. Rev. Dr. W. C. The meetings will be continued this afternoon and evening.
