LEGAL WHISKERS.

As o'er their wine and walnuts sat,
Tacking of this and then of that
Two nights, well learned in the law,

TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES.—At one of those meetings in Paisley last week, Mr. Collins, bookseller, Glasgow, spoke at great length, and among a number of anecdotes connected with the subject under discussion, related the following:—Some time ago, a cotton-spinner came into my shop, desiring me to enrol his name as a member of our Society. As my general custom, I asked him what he meant by becoming a member, or what good he expected from it.

At this meeting the Preses, the Rev. Mr. Smart, of the United Secession Church, in the course of his speech, stated that the value of ardent spirits consumed in Glasgow last year amounted to £500,000; in Greenock, to £290,000; and the value of that consumed in Paisley for the same period, amounted, probably, to £150,000.—Edin. Eccl. Post.

GIN versus PORTER.—By the yearly statement of the brewers, made up to the 5th instant, the quantity of porter brewed by the ten principal houses amounted to 1,077,285 barrels. The quantity brewed by the same houses in 1827, was 1,129,772 barrels. Showing a reduction of 112,487 brls. In 1807 the quantity returned by twelve principal houses, was 1,102,289 barrels. Since the latter period, the population of London has increased one-third, and the consumption of gin has risen in the two last years from 12 to 24 millions of gallons.

LACE versus EMBROIDERY.—The former is English, the latter is foreign, the former is cheap, the latter is expensive. The former wears well, the latter ill, the former is becoming, the latter showy. The poor lace weavers of England hope, therefore, to see all the army in lace jackets, and request his majesty to revise his cannon against lap lines just promulgated from the Horse-guards.—Atlas.

DELICACY.—A young lady, who is known to be rather fastidious in her expressions, being lately at a dinner party, a gentleman who was carving a couple of ducks requested to be informed what part she preferred. His gravity was completely overcast when she replied, "I'll trouble you, Sir, for a little of the bosom."

Domestic Brawl.—A man and his wife, residing on the first floor of house in Carrier's row, Blackfriars, London, quarrelled over their dinner of peas and bacon, and heedless of what pains it might have cost them to bring a good dinner in at the door, determined that it should depart by the first floor window, and accordingly the man having discharged the peas into the street, his wife followed his example with the bacon, when the dish which accompanied the latter fell upon the head of a poor child, and nearly deprived of life. Fortunately, however, such timely assistance was rendered by Mr. Harlock, of St. Paul's churchyard, who dressed its wound, that hopes are given of its recovery.

PAINTERS' LADDER.—The French painters and plasterers employ a very simple and ingenious species of scaffold, which might in many cases be advantageously used by our own workmen. It consists of two knotted cords, like the sides of rope ladder; with this difference, that instead of cross bars, each knot forms a noose, in which the limbs of the workmen are introduced. The paint pot or tub of plaster is suspended in a similar way, and houses are "painted" by this process as quickly as when an expensive scaffold is employed.
