MAJOR LEAGUE PITCHERS DISPLAY RARE FORM IN EARLY GAMES

REUTHER TURNS BACK REDSOX FOR THIRD WIN

Several Other Hurdlers Hold Opponents Well In Hand Yesterday

NEW YORK, April 27.—Early season pitching in the major baseball leagues has proved exceptionally strong with and without the "rain" ball. Four-hit games have been produced daily. But yesterday Joe Reuther of Cleveland, serving in a league that does not recognize the little mesh bag, stood out with a six-hit victory over the St. Louis Browns. Reuther's conquest was easy, for his mates panned the ball for 12 scores, the highest total of the day. Home runs came from the bats of Joe Sewell, Zimma and Jamieson in this offensive. The Browns made five misplays, three of them by Lamotte.

REUTHER WINS AGAIN

Washington's American League champions found the Red Sox easy, with Reuther accounting for his third straight victory, by a 6 to 2 score. Goheen led the attack, with four singles, while Blumie inserted a brace of doubles. Rhank, knocked out of the box by the Yankees last week, was the Senators' victim. McManus' homer in the opening inning was the best the Tigers could do against the White Sox, and the men of Collins won, 5 to 1. The Chicagoans punched their safeties in the fifth and eighth.

SOUTHWEST TRIMS GIANTS

Fletcher's Phillies, with Clarence Mitchell serving his left-handed epitaph, triumphed over the Giants, 6 to 5, in an 11-inning tussle. Cy Young, who had a home in the first. Frisch, with a triple, double and single, was the only Giant to trouble the veteran southpaw.

The champion Pirates regained their sitting eyes after a long lapse and dugged out an 8 to 6 victory over the Cubs. Caylor hit safely three times, and Traynor, Wright and Williams twice each. Meadows and Oldham did the hurrying for Pittsburgh, and Cooper, Pierce, Blake and Root for the Cubs.

Cincinnati defeated St. Louis in 10 innings on seven hits, 5 to 2. Curtis Walker making four of them. He broke across the winning run in the tenth.

DEMPSEY READY FOR WILLS THIS YEAR

Latest Report Comes From Champion After Interview With Boxing Promoter

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., April 27.—Jack Dempsey, training here for his next fight, scheduled for next September, declared that he would fight any one in the world, "but preferred above all other things to 'get into a ring with Wills'."

This statement followed an all-day conference with Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor fight promoter, who came here to sign Dempsey for the Wills fight late in the fall. Fitzsimmons left tonight, declaring he had high hopes of getting the champion in the ring with the negro before the first of the year.

Dempsey, who will begin serious training at once, said that he was ready to start fighting and that he would go in with any qualified challenger under the Rickard contract.

"Everyone seems to think I am going to fight Tunney on September 16. I didn't sign a contract to fight Tunney. The name of the fighter is left within the choice of Tex Rickard. I will be ready for him or any one else."

Dempsey says he is about five pounds over weight, but that it will not bother him. A half dozen sparring partners and trainers are with him at training headquarters.

CHANNEL SWIM AGAIN MECCA OF AQUATIC STARS

Three Nations Will Probably Be Represented This Year

LONDON, April 27.—In the midst of a great sporting year in Europe, with classic events attracting great galleries, there will figure for three months a test of athletic nerve and show that will be followed only by a few, but in no other event will international competition be so keen. This event is the channel swim.

There are no official entry lists. Any one who takes to the water on one coast and swims to the other with two or three reputable witnesses will win the honors. There are no cups or medals for prizes, and no expense money for the athletes. When the first man has succeeded he will only be enrolled with five other men who have negotiated the distance in history.

WOMEN FAIL TO CROSS

But if a woman swims the channel she will gain the honor of being the first woman ever to succeed. For that reason the chief sporting interest is with the women. Three nations are represented: America, France and Egypt. Gertrude Ederle, who failed in one attempt last year, and Lillian Cannon have already made arrangements to go to Cape Gris Nez to train for the struggle. Perhaps Helen Wainwright will also try to carry the Stars and Stripes through the turbulent, changing tides of the channel. France will be represented by Madame Simon, that great swimmer who has tried for several seasons and last year came very near victory.

HELMI, THE EGYPTIAN GIANT, who made the best swim last year, has written that he is bringing from Egypt a "dark horse" to win the women's honor.

There should be a keen interest between the men with Helmi and Norman Ross preparing to attempt the swim. The American is a stalwart athlete, but Helmi is even taller and heavier. Ross is the faster and more scientific swimmer, but Helmi is a gladiator with great strength and courage.

VETERAN FAVORS HELMI

Bill Burgess, the veteran trainer who coached Helmi last year in late September when the water was cold, says that Helmi can make it. Ross will find him a worthy rival, also a splendid fellow, graduate of an English University and a great sportsman.

Burgess, the second man who has swum the channel, does not think that it is a woman's event, but since he accompanied Miss Ederle last year he has conceded her a chance of succeeding.

Burgess will train Miss Ederle this year, and is making arrangements to handle Miss Cannon as well.

Experts consider the channel swimmable only from the middle of July to the middle of September. Favorable days are scarce—five a season is considered a good average—and the weather intensifies the competition. This season, with such fine swimmers as Ross, Ederle and Cannon, the odds are long, but Helmi would look best in the betting, if any books were made, but they will find some keen rivalry.

Boxing Sensations Mean Big Money For Managers

By HENRY FARRELL United Press

NEW YORK, April 27.—Several years ago a popular and capable boxing manager was prospering with a string of little fellows. They weren't champions and they weren't the leading contenders but they were good cards and were making good money.

This manager began to neglect his business and surround himself with a lot of bum heavyweights. He spent more time scouting around the country trying to find or build up prospects than he did at his desk getting matches for his breadwinners and gradually they all drifted away from him.

"The big dough is in a new sensation, preferably a heavyweight," he said in explanation. "The fellows in the money now are not champions. The public knows it and the public is tired of them. What I want is a Dempsey to bring out from no-where and knock 'em all over with a punch. Some place there's an unknown who can lick Dempsey and I want to find him."

IS BROKE NOW

He didn't find the unknown and he's broke now. He figures that his logic was sound but his luck poor and some other fellow will succeed where he failed.

There is a lot of good business sense in the theory that the public will respond to an unknown who jumps into the big shots so quickly that everyone asks—"who is that bird? Where did he come from?" and it is mostly luck in finding a fighter of the type.

Jimmy Johnson once told Jess Wip, who got out of his office and said he had no time to bother with a big unknown ham and Willard got out and took with him a million dollars from Johnston's palm.

SHUFFLE CALLAHAN ARRIVES

Just a few months ago, a husky youngster approached Eddie Kane in Chicago and said he was looking for a manager.

"What's your name?" Kane asked.

"Squid Callahan," he answered.

"How'd you get that name?"

"I was born into it. That's my right name," he said. "I'm Irish but I didn't like my front name. It's Eugene and that don't sound like a fighter."

He told Kane that he had been reading for three years since he had been forced to leave school and that he had learned a few minor bouts.

He was born in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1904 and he has turned out to be another great welterweight from the neighborhood that produced Mickey Walker and George Ward.

In a short time, Callahan has become one of the best prospects in the game and a potential welterweight champion. In his first important fight he knocked out Teddy Gartin, Denver, in six rounds. Then he stopped Johnny Mendicino, Milwaukee, in three rounds, Morrie Schaffner in two rounds and Bobby Barrett, Philadelphia, in two minutes of the first round.

He is a southpaw hitter and has shown that he can take it, a business prospect he is one of the best in the ring today as he is willing to take any kind of a match. The other good cards the welterweight and other divisions want all the money in the mint and soft spots and they have jumped the entire division.

NO DANGEROUS CONTENDERS

Callahan is fortunate in being in a division that is sadly in need of new faces and in a class that hasn't a super-champion. Mickey Walker was a great little fighter and is still a good one but he seems to have other interests than boxing now and real champions have to stick to their jobs if they are to last.

The real contenders for Walker's title are pretty well pounded out and there is a great future—for a punching fighter at least—for a punching fighter with some personality. Callahan seems to be patterned after that time and he has a catching name that will take easily.

Callahan will be in the same stable with Sammy Mandell, Tex Rickard's choice as the best lightweight of 1925, and if he works much with Mandell he may have in his technique but a puncher who can hit like he can doesn't need much boxing skill.

There are two or three first basemen in the big show who can field better than Joe Judge of the Washington Senators. And Joe Harris, also sharing the first sack duties with Judge, isn't a bear at fielding. But they give Manager Harris two of the sweetest sluggers in the game. So why should he worry?
