OLD COINS.
Defaced and worn silver coins are no longer taken by traders. They are not good at the bank. The government will not take them for postage stamps or in payment of customs or other taxes.
What shall then be done with these coins that are no longer current? How shall traders protect themselves from loss on the silver they have? There is in circulation in Canada a vast quantity of silver coin which has not reached the uncurrent stage. What is the rule by which to determine when the line is crossed?

The time must come when every coin issued this year will cease to be acceptable. When that day comes must it all be sold at the price of old silver?
If it is absolutely certain that Canadian coins issued by the government last year to the people of Canada, and representing an investment by the holders of $395,000, will be sold for less than $300,000. The people who have these coins on the fatal day will lose over half a million dollars. It does not matter that these coins become defaced at different times and in different hands. The loss is not thereby made less. If a gold coin becomes worn and is not acceptable it can be sold for old gold at its full cost less the mere loss in weight by wear. The coin could be beaten out of shape without materially decreasing its value. Take it to the royal mint and a fresh coin will be given in its place.
That is because a gold coin contains its full value of metal.

But the silver coin is three-fifths token. The value never was in it.
Last year the government of Canada caused to be made silver coins of the face value of $395,255. Material, manufacture, expressage and all expenditure connected with the operation cost about $395,000. There was a clear profit of over $255,000. It is a legitimate profit or seigniorage, but it should not involve a loss on the innocent holders.
That coin should either be good no matter how much it is worn by legiti-mate means, or else it should be accepted by the government with no further depreciation than the percentage of loss in weight. That is to say, the government which gives out this silver coin at two and a half times its value as silver should redeem it at two and a half times its value as silver.

The other day a trader sold old silver coins of the face value of twenty-five dollars. He received a little over eight dollars, suffering a loss of seventeen dollars. New coins of the same face value would cost the government ready for delivery in this country about ten dollars. The real depreciation was only two dollars. Yet the government made fifteen dollars out of the transaction and the trader lost seventeen.

The case in respect to copper coinage is still stronger. Old copper coins must be sold to the junk dealer for about one-eighth of the face value. They never had in them more than one-sixth of their face value in metal. All the rest of the price was flat value given by the government stamp. Last year the government made $33,000 profit out of $50,000 worth of copper coins.
The larger part of the other $17,000 being the cost of making and handling.
The loss of a cent is not much to a man of means, but there are some traders—newsboys for example—who handle a great many, and who suffer by the depreciation. If $50,000 of copper coinage was placed in circulation last year with a profit of $33,000 of the government, and $10,000 in old coin is condemned who loses the $9,000 of depreciation?

If the government issues a note the holder can demand gold for it no matter how badly the note is defaced. He does not sell it for its value as waste paper. A token coin is not a promise to pay in the same sense that a note is, but it passes from hand to hand among people who believe it to be as good as a note for the same amount.
We should think the government is under some obligation to make good that assurance.

THIS IS NOT SENTIMENT.

Harper's Weekly publishes an article by W. L. R. Emmett in favor of free trade with Canada. In the course of his argument Mr. Emmett says, "In reality the affairs of the United States are of vital practical importance to all Canadians, while their relation to the English are largely matters of theory and sentiment which are mainly confined to the upper classes of the Canadian population."
It is not wholly a matter of theory and sentiment that Canadians find a market in Great Britain for about $125,000,000 worth of their products every year, while leaving out gold and silver coin and bullion the people of the United States buy about one-third as much. It is a somewhat practical matter that Canada sold to the United States last year $3,000,000 worth of the produce of the farm, while Great Britain took $85,000,000.

THE STAKELESS NEWSPAPER MAN.
Alderman Macrae has set a new standard for newspaper writers, which it would appear from his remarks in Council is only reached by the members of the Globe staff. These are "citizens with a large stake in the community and therefore interested in its welfare." The unfortunate editors or reporters who have not yet been able to accumulate a large stake are not supposed to care whether the city where they and their families live goes to the dogs or not. Our eminent alderman might allow the young newspaper men at least a little time to acquire their stake. Even Senator Ellis and his staff were not always wealthy, and when in moderate circumstances they were pretty good newspaper men. While other newspapers are trying to get money enough to qualify, they may console themselves with the reflection that the writers on the London Times are not all large owners of real estate.—Sun.

LET US GO DOWN TO THE SEA.
Let us go down to the sea, ere the money day be over, Let us go down to the sea, and strip us of care and of toil.
There are graves in the heart of man that only the sea can cover.
There are deeds in the life of man to be sown as the deep sea spoil.

Earth, the mother, hath balm for her world-stained sons and daughters,
Earth, the mother hath balm for her colleagues hearts and soul.
Time cannot curb nor deny God's bountiful boon of waters.
Let us down to the sea, my soul, let us down to the sea and be glad.
—Virginia Woodward Cloud.

SATURDAY SERMONETTE.

A PARABLE.

"We must not make a scare-crow of the law,
Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
And let it keep one shape till custom make it.
Their perch, and not their terror."
—Shakespeare.

A sheep was slain by a wolf—at least that was the supposition—for ears that were not deaf heard the cry of the dying sheep and the snarl of the angry wolf. Eyes that could see saw the wolf kill the sheep, but the wolf when accused of the killing said he did it in self defence. The sheep objected to be killed and made what defence he could but it was old and had been wounded.
The wolf was young and strong and so the sheep died.

The jury brought in a true bill against the wolf for "sheep-slaughter." Tried for sheep-slaughter, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" and the wolf was acquitted after being in the dock for three hours. The jury did not do again, and that he would always feel badly whenever he saw any of the relatives of the slain sheep. And a man kicked his wife to death. The jury acquitted him of the murder because he was drunk when he killed his wife and did not know what he was doing, and he was a very affectionate husband when sober.

A dishonest executor stole a widow's estate; through a technicality he was declared "not guilty."
A man stole bread for his starving family; he was imprisoned for ten years. His family went to the Alms House.

A man was fined eight dollars or thirty days in jail for getting drunk. The man who sold him the drink had made him drunk is not in the chain gang.
I saw a crow perched on the scarecrow made to scare crows away, he was calling the stolen corn and evidently laughing at the scare-crow.
"We must not make a scare-crow of the law," etc., etc.

ALD. CHRISTIE AND MACRAE.

Take Exception to Some Newspaper Reports of the Council Meetings.

A meeting of the common council was held last evening at the city hall with some treasury board matters. The board's report recommending the reappointment of the assessors was approved.
The new assessment commission was given power to examine all books and documents in the possession of the city and to obtain information from civic officials.

The aldermen then indulged in some criticism of newspaper methods. Ald.
Christie and Ald. Macrae in particular were quite outspoken in their remarks and every paper except the Globe came in for a slap.
Ald. Christie later in an interview corroborated the remarks he had made at the council meeting. He said that some city papers were continually insulting that the council was ignorant of matters of importance. This he regarded as unfair and untrue.

SPEAKS ELEVEN LANGUAGES.

Young Russian Jew Who Has Been in the City Some Days.

For some days past eleven Russian Jews have been quartered in the school room of the synagogue. They have decided to proceed to Boston, as they see little chance of making a living here.
Among the number is a youth of 19, named Sam Grant. He is the only one who can speak English. He can speak 10 other languages as fluently as he can English. He can read, write and speak any of those languages with perfect ease. He was born in Russia, at 14 he went on a six months peddling tour in Japan. Later he came to Singapore, where he acted as interpreter in the employ of the Johnson line of steamers for one year. From there he went to Paris, as interpreter in the French immigration office. He heard of the fabulous fortunes being made by peddling in Canada and decided to try his hand at it in Montreal, during which he slept in woodsheds and barns and made no money. He decided to go to Boston and thither he is en route.

THE STARS
CIRCULATION BUILDERS.

The Star is a newspaper first, last and all the time.
It pleases all whose hands it reaches.
Once people read the Star they don't want any other St. John evening journal.
Its circulation is increasing with gratifying rapidity, largely on its intrinsic merits, but more particularly through the keen business instinct of the newsboys, who recognize in the Star a fast and sure seller.
These "Circulation Builders" constitute the medium through which the WILLIE MONAHAN, 43 Peters St.

Star reaches the reading public. They are bright, active and pushing fellows, and no matter how large their daily sales, they are constantly reaching out for new patrons.
The youngest of the Star's carrier boys, whose portrait appears herewith is Willie Monahan, of 43 Peters street, only seven years of age, whose district comprises Peters, Colburn, Carleton and Sewell streets.

Willie has a big list of customers, but he is ambitious to place a copy of the Star, and they wanted the Star house on his route, and to that end will, the first of next week commence a personal canvass of the neighborhood.
The Star hopes for its youthful representative a cordial reception.
Subscribe for the Star now, and you will never regret it. Willie will undertake to see that it is delivered at your residence with regularity and despatch.

TOOK HIM FOR A PREACHER.

They were from the country, it was plain to see, and they were very much in love. They had come here to be and that he was innocent, but he was done well. But they didn't know where to go nor the modus operandi requisite. However, they did know there were their mums sent their mail-orders for goods, and to this particular department store they wandered. They knew that almost anything under the sun could be bought there, and their guileless minds marriages were made there as well as clothes and toothpicks, elephants and baby food. And so it was that they strayed in at the Walnut street door.
Everyone knows the imposing presence which greets visitors at this particular place in this particular shop.
Him they laid eyes upon, and his long coat, flower, and generally pompous air sealed his fate.
"He's him," said the groom in prospect. "I knowed we'd find him hyar."
The bride-to-be blushed.
"Ast him," she cooed.
The two clasped hands and swung up to the personage.
"We're ready now," said they.
"What for?" asked the unbending individual.
"For th' ceremony," was the reply.
"Third counter to the left, upstairs; take the elevator," began the man of pomposity. Then he caught himself. "What ceremony?" he asked.
"Why, we wanter get married," said the man, while the little crowd that had gathered looked on and grinned.
"Ain't you the marryer?" The gentleman of manner blushed as red as his carnation. For the first time in his career he was off his dignity.
He showed them the door and directed the way to the court house. Then he went upstairs till the laugh died away.—Kansas City Journal.
