Chief Crawford of the Campbellton police force arrived yesterday morning with a warrant swoon out by a woman for the arrest of a Campbellton youth who is at present working in the city. The young man is wanted in his native town on a rather serious charge. With the assistance of Policeman Marshall the chief located his man about 10 o'clock and took him to the central station, where he was locked up. The young man's father was communicated with and W. A. Mott, K. C., of Campbellton was engaged to look after the prisoner's interests. Arrangements were finally made for bail, and the young man was given his liberty last evening and will be notified when to appear before the courts.

English Paper Condemns Vicious Methods of New York Police in the Sigel Case.

LONDON, July 15—The Spectator is moved to devote two columns of sad reflections and mild indignation this week to "the third degree" as administered by the New York Police Department. It goes into the whole history of torture for the purpose of extending a confession.

tory of torture for the purpose of extracting a confession.

Beginning with the Romans, it dilates on the awful cruelties of the dungeons at Nuremburg and admits with shame that even Englishmen practised torture upon witches in the fourteenth century. Its chief purpose is to demonstrate the worthlessness of all admissions or statements obtained by such means.

Assignments. With the recent filing of her suit for divorce, based on charges of crueity, neglect and infidelity, Mrs. Frank Ridgely Brown, of Baltimore, has added another chapter to the checkered career of the son of Maryland's former Governor, who won wide notoriety when he joined the staff of a Baltimore newspaper and became known as the

when he joined the staff of a Baltimore newspaper and became known as the "millionaire reporter."

From the many charges preferred by "Young Mrs. Frank" the indications point to a divorce trial quite as sensational, if not more so, than the events leading up to the elopement which began their wedded career. Mrs. Brown charges, among other things, that her

DRAGGED BY HAIR. SHE SAYS.
She also asserts that her husband, when in need of exercise, would seize her by the hair, drag her around the house and then box her ears until they ranz. He never failed to attempt to humiliate her before her friends and acquaintances, whom he would bring to his home after she had retired, she said, and on more than one occasion he flung a pack of cards, or the contents of a glass in her face. It was no uncommon thing, Mrs. Brown charges, for her husband to pick up his plate when he was giving a dinner at his home and hurl it and its contents at her head.

When "Young Frank" began to pay

when "Young Frank" began to pay serious attentions to Miss Mabel Michael, his father, the Governor, bitterly opposed the match. So did the parents of Miss Michael. A watch was set upon the young couple, but by aid of his automobile Frank slipped his bride-to-be from the home of her parents and speeded with her to this city, where they were married by the Rev. Henry Marsh Warren, in his home, No. 48 West Ninety-fourth street. This was on Oct. 24, 1906.

or stay at home and go to work," said the governor,

"That suits me," said Frank, and that night he announced that he had a job as reporter on the Baltimore American. When he reported at noon next day for work he drove to the office in a Stanhope behind his pet pair of horses, Brandy and Soda. A coachman was at his side and a footman sat with folded arms on the rumble.

In this imposing equipage Frank Brown started out to "cover" his assignments, and when he dashed up to the door of a station house on the east side and showed his police badge the lieutenant in charge nearly fainted. That night Frank was assigned to "cover" a dinner given by a local G. A. R. post. The old vetearns sat down to a modest repast, with beer as the only bevrage.

Frank's mother died when he was about 12 years old and from her he inherited a handsome fortune. Several millions more will come to him at the death of his father. He has had unlimited funds at his command since childhood, and when he was a boy in knickerbockers he would go the pace at Atlantic City and other resorts to which he accompanied his father.

Instead his work will grow steadily worse and worse till you can't stand it any longer, and so you fire him. It's always done purposely to avoid the necessity of telling you outright that he is tired of you and wants to quit."

St. Peters had by far the larger backing in the crowd. The rooters of the North End team demonstrated themselves rather uncertain sports by utterly refusing to applaud any feature plays on the part of their opponents. Then again the North End fans were the first to dispute any close decision on the part of the man behind the pitcher.
