LIBERALS GAIN GROUND THROUGHOUT CANADA

Gloucester, one of the four small organs remaining to the Conservatives in New Brunswick, announced that he had been unanimously chosen by the convention and the victory was assured.

The North Shore is solid for Liberalism. Kings-Albert Safe for McAllister

Sussex, Oct. 3.—The Liberals of Kings County are much elated over the splendid reports that come from their associates in Albert concerning the success of Mr. McAllister in meeting in his tour of that part of the united constituency. Wherever the Liberal candidate has been he has met with a cordial reception and such promises of support that will ensure him a substantial majority there. His meetings have been well attended and the enthusiasm of the electors is so marked as to surprise even the oldest campaigners.

The people of Albert are bound to show that they can do much better than in 1904, when the Tory candidate had a small majority there.

Dr. McAllister will spend next week in Albert County canvassing and addressing meetings. He will have the assistance of that eloquent speaker and vigorous campaigner, E. H. McAlpine. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening in that part of the constituency and Saturday evening in an important centre in Kings County.

Monday night there will be a public meeting at Penobscot in the parish of Cardwell in the interests of the Liberal candidate which will be addressed by Senator Donville, Hon. C. J. Osman and others.

Tuesday night Ora P. King and Senator Donville will address a Liberal meeting at Waterford.

Wednesday night Hon. H. A. McKinnon, of St. John, and Hon. C. J. Osman, of Hillsboro, will speak in Upland.

York Tories Alarmed.

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 2 (Special).—Nelson W. Brown, the Liberal candidate, is putting up a whirlwind campaign in York, and is developing a strength that is alarming his friends and his opponent. He has behind him a thoroughly united party and they are working with a degree of enthusiasm unknown in previous campaigns. The candidate spent the past ten days in upper parishes of the county, working eighteen hours a day, conducting a systematic house-to-house canvass and addressing meetings, and being a platform orator of marked ability. He is winning votes daily.

The Tories at the beginning of the campaign talked of electing Crockett by 1,000 majority, but they have changed their tune and the moderate element of the party are now willing to admit that the Liberal candidate has a good fighting chance. Liberals on the other hand are confident of retaining the county and will work energetically from now until polling day with that end in view.

Reports from the parish of Northumberland county that Donald Morrison, the Tory candidate is so discouraged with the outlook in that county that he is thinking seriously of throwing up the sponge. He has met with very poor encouragement in his canvass and his only support on the other hand, are coming from W. T. Butler, who is aspiring to the local seat and Commodore Stewart, of the Chatham world. Mr. Loggie, on the other hand, is putting up a magnificent campaign, and his triumphant return by a big majority is conceded even by Conservatives.

Laurier Cheers Ends Ganong's Meeting.

Flagg's Cove, G. M., N. B., Oct. 3 (Special).—G. W. Ganong's meeting here last night was packed, a majority of the audience being Liberals. The speech was a rehearsal of the scandal charges, but the audience was not interested. The meeting closed with three cheers for Laurier.

EDWARD SEARS FACES FOWLER AT LATTER'S WESTFIELD MEETING

Conservative Candidate Replies, But When Sears Asks to Be Heard Again, He is Told by Fowler Meeting is His, and He Will Have Last Word.

At Westfield Beach on Thursday night, Geo. W. Fowler addressed a meeting of about 100 electors, about half of them Liberals. Edward Sears was called at the close of Mr. Fowler's speech and replied effectively. Mr. Fowler spoke again, but when Mr. Sears desired to reply once more, he was told by the Conservative candidate in Kings-Albert that the meeting was his and he would have the last word.

Mr. Fowler told of the Ryan deal and said he made a profit, which was what he went in for. He said it was a straight business deal and he came out ahead. He then attacked the minister of public works in a number of matters, called the "Arctic scandal," the Crown's nest in Pass land, the Quebec bridge, militia matters, and predicted the defeat of the government.

David McKenzie, who presided, referred at the close of Mr. Fowler's speech to the fact that he saw in the room his worship the mayor of St. John, Edward Sears, the ex-mayor, and other prominent residents of Westfield who might like to speak. The people, who were about going out, returned and called on Mr. Sears.

Mr. Sears responded and said they had listened to Mr. Fowler for more than two hours and it would be trespassing for him to detain them, but he would like to impress on them that the personal matters with which Mr. Fowler had so largely filled his address were foreign to the questions at issue, but the policy of the government was now at the bar of public opinion and the leadership of a man whose good name had never had a smirch was in question.

The last election was run almost entirely on the transportation question and no one could challenge that this great work was being done in satisfactory manner along the lines endorsed by the vote of the people in 1904.

Then the trade question was also of paramount importance. Mr. Fowler, he thought, was among the forty-five or forty-seven Conservative members of the house who had voted against a motion of Mr. Russell, of Halifax, that confirmed the broadest and most statesmanlike measure that was ever placed on the statute book of our country and its protecting bond, and the relations Canada held under their mutual obligations, and furnished a generous policy that had done so much to place the dominion on its present desirable footing in the great Empire.

The departments of the government and their development were matters that carried them out of narrow provincialisms and acrimonious personalities, and into what concerned the more vital interests of the nation, and he urged the people to think of the results achieved by the wise
