Unexpected Company Finds You Ready

THE door bell rings. You have had a busy morning, but you slip off your apron and go to the door.

"How do you do! I'm so glad to see you. Come right in. Of course you'll stay to lunch?"

What a comfort to know that on the pantry shelf, handy and ready, you have several cans of 15 cents for 16 oz. tin

Davies Pork and Beans

when friends drop in unexpectedly. You are never too busy—never caught unprepared. All you have to do is to heat a can or two of Davies Pork and Beans, (plain or with Tomato Sauce), slice some bread and butter and boil the kettle for tea. And you have a delicious appetizing luncheon, ready at a moment's notice.

Substantial too. All the nutriment of whole, well cooked, meaty beans, with the delicious flavor of choice pork. Tomato Sauce to give an additional zest if you want it.

Under Currents By The Duchess

"Oh, how d'ye do?" says he in an unmoved tone, lifting his cap with his disengaged hand. "Such a position for a gentleman," says Griselda, drawing nearer to the bank of the stream, which, of course, as she was so terribly shocked, she ought not to have done.

"Capital one on a hot day," with increasing nonchalance. "It's not a capital one when I'm present," wrathfully.

"I couldn't possibly know you would be present. I had entirely given you up. I never expected to see you again."

"Why?" "You know very well what you said to me when we parted—last month," says he, chewing the end of a fresh eel very diligently.

"Last month?" "You can call it anything you like. I've no doubt it seems like five minutes ago to you. But, at all events, I remember what you said then—and besides, you didn't come yesterday."

"And do you suppose I am bound to come here every day?" demands she with very just indignation—really he is going to the Fair with the thing.

"I don't know what I suppose. Who could argue in the middle of a stream?" says Mr. Peyton, making for the bank with all haste.

"There is only one thing of which I'm morally certain, and that is, that you'll break my heart before you've done with me."

"I shan't," says she ironically. "I promise you that."

"You do? I'll keep you to your word," returns he grimly. As he speaks, the bank being slippery, he loses his footing and splashes back once more into the water.

"You are much more likely to break your leg," says Griselda scornfully, who is dying to laugh, but that dignity forbids. "Well"—as he at last lands on the grass beside her—"I must say you are a spectacle."

"For gods and men," supplements he promptly. "I regret, of course, that you should have come upon me in this trim, but here are my shoes and socks, and I'll be into them in no time."

"I'm glad you apologized at once," says she, with a little gleam of unkind sarcasm, "and may I ask what brought you here? I did think this spot was unknown to you—that's why I came here to-day."

"Ah yes. Just so. That's why I came too," says Mr. Peyton coolly, after a final struggle with his right boot.

Griselda, too indignant to take notice of this turn abruptly away and pursues her walk along the edge of the stream. Mr. Peyton having now conquered the left boot, follows her, and silently, but with a determination not to be subdued, takes up a position by her side.

Of course, to show either anger or surprise at this "outrage" gives him no advantage; so Griselda, after a moment's consideration, decides upon going in for ordinary society conversation.

"Timing day, is it not?" she asks calmly if not affably.

"More than that, surely. A regular holiday in my estimation," returns Mr. Peyton mildly. The fact that there is no meaning in this struggle strong but brief, and then she bursts into uncontrollable merriment.

"I have amused you," says Mr. Peyton, regarding her reproachfully. "I am to understand you laugh at me? This is adding insult to injury." Here his own gravity is threatened. "Beware the fury of a patient man," he says, and then gives way, and breaks into laughter, merry as her own.

"Oh, I thought you'd never come," he says. "What kept you?"

"In temper," confesses she sweetly. "That row-royal of ours was much for me. I didn't get over it until this moment."

"You are a cruel little thing," says he resentfully, whilst looking at her with adoration.

"Do you think so? Oh, I don't," says she with an unprejudiced air. "And as for being little, I am nearly as tall as yourself, only for an inch or two."

"That would be a good deal if added to the length of one's nose," says he reflectively. Perhaps he is thinking of his own gravity, which is short, indeed, and wishing he could place them there. "Anyhow, Griselda, you have been cruel."

"I really think, perhaps, that you oughtn't to call me by my Christian name," says she, uncertainly.

"Well, I won't if I can help it. But when one thinks of you so, and so much too—And, after all, it is great nonsense, all that sort of thing. Long ago there were no surnames, and how did they manage them? He is growing triumphant. Let her answer that if she can."

"That was in the dark ages; I do hope you don't want to go back to them," says she severely. "And as for what you say, would you like every man to call—? She checks herself only just in time—"Well, to call you sister, let us say, by her Christian name?"

"I shouldn't like every man or any man to call you by yours," says he, disdaining pretence of any kind, "but—but I wish you would give me permission, Griselda."

"I'm sure it will be better not," says Griselda, hesitating. Of course she might, when you do it by chance, or when you forget, or when you are in a hurry; but as a usual thing—no."

Uric Acid in Meat Brings Rheumatism

Says a Little Salts in Water May Save You From Dread Attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine, the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinges of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast and at night for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Girls! Draw a Moist Cloth Through Hair, Double Its Beauty

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy wavy and beautiful at once

Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents.

J.H. Lewis, who was recently released under habeas corpus after being sentenced to three years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,000 for having forbidden literature while a railway mail clerk, has been reinstated in the postal service.

Try Magnesia For Your Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity. Prevents Food Fermentation

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, chloroform and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk but the pure bisulphated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous harmful acid in your stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that, provided you take a little bisulphated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisulphated magnesia cannot be overpraised in any way so long as you are suffering from symptoms of acid
