NOTES:

- The top two teams from each division will advance to the finals.
- In the event of tie in any of the Semi-final or Final matches, a 5-man Shoot-out will determine the winning team.

What wears skates, yields a hockey stick, and has a swelling solarplexus from one too many? No, it's not a former Atlantic Grand Prix wrestler trying to make it with the Muskegon Lumberjacks of the I.H.L., nor is it an overweight comrade playing for the Siberian Selects. What it is, I said, WHAT IT IS is the typical engineer in the Atlantic Engineering Hockey Tournament.

The event starts this afternoon and runs all weekend at the Aitken Centre. Eight teams are officially entered with two local entries. The surveyors are in Division Two while an odd collection of electricals, mechanicals, chemicals and civils are in Division One. The top two teams will advance to the finals. If there's a tie in any of the playoff games, a five-man shootout will be used to determine the winner.

Instead of watching the Bob Izumi Real Ice Fishing Show this weekend, come out and see the highlight of Engineering Week.

Raiders are back in action

The UNB Red Raiders were humbled to the tune of 80-55 at the hands of the AUAA leading Acadia Axemen last Friday in men's hoop action. The Axemen stormed into the main gym, taking control of the contest from the start. UNB was down 20-2 in the opening minutes of the contest, and neither they nor the 300 or so fans had much to cheer about the rest of the way. Acadia controlled the boards and held UNB to 25% shooting for the first half, and they held a 42-19 halftime advantage. The Axemen went with their bench for the entire second half, but the Red Raiders still could not close the gap.

Acadia was led by Kevin Veinot's 20 points, while Peter Morris chipped in 16. The Raiders bright spots were Andy Hayward, who led all scores tonight at 8:30 pm and again tomorrow at 2:00 pm. Both games are to be played in the Main Gym, and both are essential to the Red Raiders hopes for the fourth and final playoff spot.

UNB plays a pair of games this weekend, taking on UPEI

Andy Hayward going up for a layup.
