FEMALES

TEM LLBS An easy winner was Brampton Cow-alip Blue Bell, senior and grand cham-pion female. This cow may be criticised as a little undersized, par-ticularly when standing beside some of Cowieson's entries, but she is of perfect type, with a fino quality udder, great veining and as breedy looking as uone could desire. Third to her in the mature cow class stood a cow of splendid producing type, but with irregular udder and teats. Bulls with irregular udder and teats. Bulls repeated their triumph in every other class save one, the three-year-olds, where Cowiesen, with a cow of the type he favors, large and strong, got first honors. This was a hard class to place, the first three cows being of the distinct the same other worth to place, the first three cows being of three distinct types. Another worthy of special mention was the junior champion. Brampton Stockwell Rose, a sweet heifer and already doing duty as a producer of Jorsey milk. Awards in full follow:

Buth a prime. In the prime of the prime of the prime out after our experiments at Ottawa. It is also corroborated by the experiments of the agriculturist at Gueph, and it has also been proved by my own experience on a farm which I owned in the Province of Quebec. It has also been the experience of many farmers who, in the past, I have been able to persuade to adopt smaller rotations. The introduction of a rotation in which lower enters at least two out of three years is the first step to success in farming.—Extract from an address. tract from an address.
