

CANTLES IN THE AIR.
New York Magazines Build a Grand Cathedral.

A New York dispatch says: New York was astonished to learn that a project was on foot for the building of a mammoth Protestant Episcopal Cathedral, a second Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's Cathedral, in fact. Bishop Foster is the official President of the Trustees and of all the committees. The Board now includes among its prominent members Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, Dr. William R. Huntington, Rev. E. W. Donald, Hamilton Fish, Stephen P. Nash, George MacCulloch Miller, Samuel D. Babcock, William W. Astor, J. Pierpont Morgan, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Richard Anshutz—names which in themselves are a guarantee that a building done under their direction will be worthy of the city they represent. The plan is to erect the grandest church building in America, and one of the greatest cathedrals in the world. It is only set- tled that the Cathedral of St. John the Divine—as the edifice is to be known—will be situated on Manhattan Island, and, if possible, on a lofty and conspicuous position, where its monumental character will dominate the entire island. For this purpose a plot at least four times the size of that on which St. Patrick's is built will be needed. Bishop Foster has just written a letter in a few days giving the plan of his official sanction, and subscriptions will be called for to carry forward the work. The proposed edifice is estimated, will cost about $6,000,000.

THE QUEEN'S DONKEY.

A Rather Novel Present from the London Costermongers.
The costermongers of London have decided to present Queen Victoria with a gift on the occasion of her coming jubilee. The gift is a donkey, a small, mettled, vigorous and well-groomed one, which has been chosen as the patriotic sacrifice. The donkey's penance is a drooping attitude, its thoughtful eye never straying from its thoughtful master. The creature is conscious of the sudden greatness thrust upon it. The donkey is the friend and companion of the London costermonger. He draws the costermonger's cart and carries his burdens. He is usually known to the familiarity of his master as "Jerusalem." It will be necessary to make some additions to the royal mews.

In the Spring.

For eight months the best-natured creature in the world had held undisturbed sway in the kitchen and its environs; but toward spring the mistress began to take account of stock.
"Bridget," she asked, "where are the pots and frying-pans, and its good for nothing are! Every family as I lives with in the winter always gets new pots in the spring."
"Bridget, I can not find the kitchen dishes."
"Disches, ma'am, and it's in the as-hart they are! I always get 'em in the spring with always gets new dishes in the spring."
"Bridget, what have you done with the bed and table linen?" "It's positively in rag!"
"Rags, ma'am! What would you be expecting after the cold weather? Every family as I lives with, always gets new things in the spring."
"Bridget, when I walked through the kitchen last night there were hundreds of roaches running about on the tables and shelves. How could you let so many bugs live in the house?"
"Roaches, it is, ma'am, and you haven't 'em all! Bugs are a natural part of the house. Every family as I lives with always has 'em there at night."
"Bridget, I think you had better a new home."
"And I'm thinking so myself, ma'am, every family as I lives with in the winter gets a new place in the spring."—Zuck.

Wearing Apparel in a Bottle.

Fretful Annie Pixley, a New York corset, is quite as delighted and as well as a pretty life as she is on the stage. I remember crossing the Canadian border in company with her and her philosopher husband, to the New York market, whose presence at my elbow reminds me of it.
"Somebody had presented Bob with a bottle of choice brandy in case of sudden sickness on the journey," said Annie, "a characteristic thoughtfulness, the little Pixley stored the bottle in her handkerchief."
"To do course an officer of the customs came along and spying the hand-bag asked the mischievous owner what it contained."
"Without an instant's hesitation or confusion she replied: "Wearing apparel."
"Will you open it, please?"
"Certainly," with a ready response, and giving it a flip the bottle of brandy was brought to view.
"Call that wearing apparel?" asked the collector.
"Yes, sir," demurely answered the little woman. "It's my husband's 'night-cap.'"
"No, my son, the bottle was not confiscated."

Northwest Food Products.

Senator Schultz's Committee of Enquiry into the Northwest food products, the evidence of Mr. Forget was concluded yesterday. He stated that the Indian can eat three times as much as a white man, and that the Indians, and in time of scarcity the Government should supply fresh beef, potatoes, and apples. The Indians should be encouraged to grow barley, for which a market might be found. Hogs might also be cultivated, as they are easily packed by rail. The Indians from the Rocky Mountains man with a gun and a shovel could make $1.50 per day washing for gold, with occasional rich finds.

Fighting in South America.

A Panama dispatch says: A veritable "funeral party" recently took place near Meriden, Yucatan, Mexico. A general row broke out among the guests who had assembled to celebrate a marriage ceremony, and during the fight seven persons were killed, the groom being among the number. The following cable message addressed to the Consul of Ecuador at Panama from Guayaquil, under date of May 24th, has been received: "A fight took place in Esmeraldas on the 21st inst. between fifty regular soldiers and two hundred mounted men under Sanval. The latter were defeated. They lost twenty men, had several of their arms and horses taken, and thirty rifles and a number of carbines."
Freshness From the Green Isles.
"Well, my girl," said Superintendent Jackson to a young Irish woman who had been to the only one of her nationality aboard a big steamship filled with Scandinavians, "what kind of a voyage did you have?" "Oh, dear, my dear sir, such jabbering farriers to decent women ever crossed the way with before. Devil a word crossed a warrul of English!"—New York Sun.

A Different Pain, Though.

"I've been aching to fight that man for a year."
"Why don't you, then?"
"I did the other day, and I am aching still."

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

The following Bills were introduced and read a first time:

Respecting the Ontario Pacific Junction Railway Co.—Mr. Rykert.
To incorporate the Manufacturers' Association Insurance Co.—Mr. Bissell.
Mr. Thompson, replying to Mr. McMillen, stated that it was the intention of the Government to distribute portions of the peace an abridgement of the Revised Statutes containing the criminal law, the cost being about one-fifth of the Revised Statutes and the Nova Scotia.

Mr. White (Cardwell), replying to Mr. Mallory, said that the Government was in the employ of the Government as Inspector of Cotton and Travelling Expenses, the same as those allowed for other employees in Manitoba and the Northwest.
Sir Charles Tupper, replying to Mr. McMillen, stated that three-quarters of the accounts connected with the revision of the Statutes had been paid, and the remainder would be paid within a few days.

Sir John Macdonald, replying to Mr. Bissell, said that the Government was in the employ of the Government as Inspector of Cotton and Travelling Expenses, the same as those allowed for other employees in Manitoba and the Northwest.
Sir Charles Tupper, replying to Mr. Mitchell, who asked for facts relating to reciprocity negotiations, said everything possible was being done by the Government of Canada and British Columbia in a friendly question and promote reciprocity, but declined to present to make public any particular details.

Mr. Thompson, replying to Mr. Choquette, said the salaries of Revising-officers were not fixed, but would be shortly.
Mr. Amyot asked whether the Government proposed to take any steps to protect the Dominion from attacks of the cholera now raging in South America.
Mr. Choquette replied that the Government enforced against all ships coming from South America, whether on the Atlantic or the Pacific side. If any vessel were found infected she would be detained in quarantine.

Mr. Amyot said that yesterday the Minister of Militia (Sir Adolphe Caron) had stated that the reason for ordering the 9th Battalion, of which he was Colonel, to discontinue drill was given in letters to Sir Adolphe Caron, this was not so. The battalion, after being called out to drill, had been ordered to stop without a word of explanation and had later been ordered to discontinue drill without explanation. They were treated in a harsh and grossly insulting way. He had asked also whether the whole report of Major-General Strange on the 9th Battalion had been published in full, and the reply was in the affirmative. But Major-General Strange had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

Sir Adolphe Caron denied that he had published a letter in the press declaring that there were parts of his report which were not published. He (Mr. Amyot) himself had sent in, at the request of the department, a report of the operations of the 9th Battalion, and the 6th had been almost completely destroyed twenty years hence, people would be surprised to hear that the reports of how the rebellion was put down would hardly know that there had been two French Canadian regiments in the Northwest. The 9th were sent up into five detachments and distributed to posts of danger among the most dangerous Indians of the Northwest. They had come home amidst applause, had been crowned with wreaths and received with open arms, but since he (Mr. Amyot) had offered from the hon. Minister on the 10th of the 9th, his regiment had been insulted and oppressed.

and served alongside of the permanent corps which they might be required.

The militia officers of Canada made great sacrifices for the force. They spent their time and their means and did everything they could to further its interests. On the other hand, the permanent officers had good pay and a comfortable home, and there was no reason why they should have any preference. Again, the Major-General advised the enlargement of the regular force and a corresponding decrease in the militia as a step necessary to maintain a proper system of defence. He (Mr. Amyot) thought that exactly the opposite course should be pursued. The schools should be cut down to the smallest possible limit consistent with supplying the necessary instruction. Of what earthly use would be a standing army of one or two thousand men in the event of trouble with our neighbors to the south? Of no use at all. On the other hand, if we had a militia force of one hundred thousand men, it could, by increasing the service roll of every company from 42 to 125, be enlarged to three hundred thousand, a force which would be of great service to us in an emergency. In Europe the idea was to go for armed nations, and in his judgment that was the proper course for us to follow. We should endeavor in every way possible to infuse a military spirit into the people. The military force should be cut down to at least six hundred days in each year. The idea ought to be scouted for as a thing of the past. We should not afford to have a standing army. We could not afford to have a standing army. But by a moderate amount of drilling we could have a large force which would be available and useful at short notice. It was understood at Confederation that one million dollars would be spent annually on the militia, and he did not think it was fair that when reductions were made there should be any appropriation should suffer. He hoped the Minister would not be guided by the report of the Major-General, and that the Government would not be doing to the Canadian militia by giving regular officers special rates over them.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Mr. O'Brien said he quite agreed with the last speaker in his criticism of the evident intention on the part of some of those in authority to place the permanent corps in a position different from that of the militia. He strongly objected to anything being done which would make that difference. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past. He thought it was a mistake to think that the militia was a thing of the past.

Them Jones on the Married State.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line. There is many an old mother-in-law that has got the devil right along on that line.

TELEGRAPHIC SUMMARY.

The local subscription to the Queen's (Kingston) endowment amounts to $39,000, exclusive of Mr. J. Carruthers' $10,000. Kavanagh, the 7-year-old son of James Kavanagh, Kingston, fell off the wharf on Saturday night and was drowned.

A deputation from the Montreal Bar will proceed to Ottawa to-day to urge on the Minister of Justice the necessity for an increase in the salaries of judges.

The specifications for the railway to the boundary have been prepared, and tenders for its construction are being called for by the Manitoba Government.

The wife of J. W. Bell, M. P., has received a letter from him at the Toronto Asylum, and it speaks of his recovery of health and probable early return to his home.

The body of Mr. Gillespie, a young married man who disappeared from his home in Clifton a month ago, was found in the Niagara River at Yongstoung on Friday afternoon.

St. Jean Baptiste Society of Ottawa has adopted an address to the Queen, and, in the name of the French population of Ottawa, congratulates Her Majesty on attaining to the fiftieth year of her reign.

A memorial from Quebec and Montreal asking the release of the late Capt. St. Lawrence urging the desirability of providing a harbor of refuge at Father Point will shortly be forwarded to Ottawa.

On Saturday afternoon a farmer named Wm. Kirkpatrick, while driving across the Grand Trunk track ten miles east of Kingston, was struck by an engine and killed. The body was carried several miles on the cowcatcher.

A burglar went through four of the boarders' clothes in Mrs. Graham's boarding house on Park Avenue, London, yesterday night, and secured a watch, a pair of chain, one gold and two silver.

In reply to an inquiry whether Lord Lansdowne could accept an invitation to visit Montreal on the occasion of the jubilee celebration, His Excellency states that owing to previous engagements for the same event he is unable to leave Ottawa.

On Saturday afternoon the body of a female infant, buried in the cemetery on the river bank near Kensington Bridge, London. An inquest was held and a post mortem made, but owing to the decomposition condition of the body it was difficult to determine whether the child was born alive or not. The inquest was adjourned for a week.

Efforts are being made by the city of New York to secure the Roman Catholic Public School Act. Previous to incorporation, Mr. Eddy, who is a Protestant, paid the school tax, but since the incorporation, amounting to $800 a year, the Catholic school rate amounting to $4,000. The company will contest the payment.

William Emberton, aged 21, a resident of Harvey, Ont., was killed by a train on the New Brunswick Railway, near Magalloway Station. He was coupling cars loaded with logs and was struck by the cars. The coupling link missed hold and the cars came together, jamming Emberton's head between the ends of two logs.

The Greek Government intend negotiating for a loan of $3,000,000. The final estimate of the victims of the Paris Opera Comique places the number at 120.

Prince Bismarck is anxious for a renewal of the Triple Alliance on a firmer basis than the last.

The Hessian Government are following the Prussian Government in abandoning the conflict with the Vatican. The Prussian Government has announced that as a soul as ever lived, took the matter in his own hands, and never lost sight of the fact that he had put her start home with her mother and small sisters and brothers.—Ottawa Journal.

Why She Wished to Get Married.
Constance is very young, but she is also better worth quoting than most grown people. Her own was somewhat aroused by the fact that a wedding was about to take place in the family of her little playmate, and that the playmate thereby had the advantage of her; so she remarked, very complacently, to her little friend's mamma.

"Mrs. —, did you know that I was engaged to be married?"
"Why, Conny, is that so?"
"Yes, ma'am; I'm engaged to Fritz Ward" (small boy of her acquaintance).
"Well, Conny, do you expect to be married very soon?"
"Well, I hope so. The fact is, I'm tired of being dumb, and I think we'll be married very soon."—Harper's Magazine.

She Broke the Engagement.

because she saw that he had no money to love her. Her beauty had faded, her former high spirits had given place to a dull lassitude. When she had caught the change of functional derangement; she was suffering from those ailments peculiar to her sex. Her health was young lives drifted apart. How needless, how cruel, had she taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription she might have been restored to health and happiness. If any lady reader of these lines is similarly afflicted, let her lose no time in procuring the "Favorite Prescription." It will give her a new lease of life. Sold by druggists under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers of perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

They Don't Want Pants.
"Mamma," exclaimed a precocious New York boy, "the policemen of Boston don't wear pants."
"Gracious!" exclaimed the scandalized lady, "you don't tell me."
"It's a fact," persisted the boy, "they wear trousers!"—Life.

Heat and Cold
is a never-failing cause of disease. At this season of the year, neuralgia, toothache, and a host of other diseases are rampant. The great question, then, is to find the quickest, surest and most economical remedy. Polson's Nerve-Tonic exactly fills these requirements. It is prompt, efficient and most economical, for it exceeds in power every known remedy, and is as cheap as inferior articles. A 10 cent sample bottle will give every sufferer a chance to test it. Large bottle 25 cents.

A workman in a vineyard in Napa Valley, Cal., committed suicide the other day by jumping into a cask of wine and drowning.

We ought not to be too anxious to encourage untried innovations in cases of doubtful improvement. For a quarter of a century Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has been before the public and has passed through the most severe test and is pronounced the most reliable remedy for that disagreeable malady. Thousands of testimonials of its virtues. 50 cents per bottle. By druggists.

The "infernal machines" received by Inspector Byrnes, Capt. Williams and the British Consul at New York, Saturday were fuel cartridges manufactured in Troy, N.Y. The cartridges are filled with mineral oil and are perfectly harmless. When saturated with kerosene oil they are used and used for kindling fires. They were sent as a joke.