Slaying Whiskey.

Three Indians in the vicinity of Green Bay once became converted to the temperance cause, although previously given to much drink.

Three white men fornied the resolution of trying their Indian sincerity. Placing a canteen of whoskey in their nath, they bid themselves in the bushes, to observe the motions of the red men.

The first recognized his old acquaintance with an Ughl' and, making a high step, passed on. The second laughed, saying, 'Me know you!' and walked around. The last drew his tomahawk, and dashed the canteen to pieces, saying, 'Ughl' You conquer me—now I conquer you!'—Temperance League Journal.

Stop the Best Saloons.

Probably you would say, break up all these fisthy and low haunts, all these places where the habitually intemperate, the degraded, the wretchedly poor congregate, and let these beverages be sold only in respectable places and to respectable people! But is this really the best plan? On the contrary, it acems quite reasonable to maintain that it is better to sell to the intemperate than the sober, to the same reason it is better to burn up the old builk than to set fire to a new splendid ship. I think it worse to put the first glass to a young man's lips than to crown with madness an old drunkard's life-long alicination—worse to wake the fierce appetite in depths of a generous and promising nature than to take the carriso of a man, a mere shell of imbecility, and to soak it in a fresh debauch, There fore, if I were going to say where the license should be grauted in order to show its efficacy, I would say. Take the worst sinks of intemperance in the law, and let them run jo overflow-ing. But shut up the gilded apartment where youth takes its first draught, and respectability just begins to falter irom its level.—Dr. E. H. Chaplin.

certain poison, that whiskey cheats the brain and ruins life. This talking and writing by the good is not without effect. It caves some men strong in character and open in argument. But it only calls out the self-confident smile or anear of the average young clerk who thinks that he can take care of himself.

When that young clerk is told that he will not be needed after next Saturday because he bets on the races, because he amokes of garettes, because he is seen drusk in doubtful company, and because the employer does not care for that type of man—then

The Men that Are Wanted,

The lines are closing up against the man who drinks. Employers everywhere are realizing that the employee who gives a part of himself over to slavery of liquor is not the man they want. They want a full man, not part of one, not one who is a man only part of the time, but one who is a whole man with his full senses all the time.

The is becoming more and more imperative every year that the man who has services to aell should recognize these facts. The school of experience is a hard one, but it teaches thoroughity. And herein we shall find a valuable ally in advancing the reform:

Suppose a great many good men and women went to Pennsylvanis to prevch against intemperance among miners. They might convert temporarily a few. The temperate men would listen to them kindly. The intemperate men would be the to them kindly. The intemperate men would be the to them kindly. The intemperate men would be the to them kindly. The intemperate men would be the to them kindly. The intemperate men would probably never hear them. But when the mine owners, acting in accord with the unions and with the unions' support, refuse to employ an intemperate miner-the temperance work in the mines beginn in carnest.

You may tell a man that his drinking ruins his family and himself. He knows it, but still he drinks. When the companies and his ellow-work-men realize that the drunken miner, through his carelessances, endangees.
