

FEARED HE HAD CONSUMPTION

HUGH MCKENNA, Esq.

Dr. STEPHEN, N.B. Jan. 17th 1911.
"I wish to tell you of the great good 'Fruit-a-lives' have done for me. For years I was a martyr to Chronic Constipation and Stomach Trouble. I was greatly run down and my friends feared I had Consumption. I tried numerous doctors and all kinds of medicines, but received no relief until I began to use 'Fruit-a-lives' by Mr. McCready of St. Stephen, and am pleased to say that I now enjoy excellent health. 'Fruit-a-lives' are the best medicine made, and I strongly advise my friends to use them."

The Best Time.

To-morrow's best time they say
So often through the day,
Because they overlook, I fear,
The roads of NOW and HERE,
And let the little minutes fly
Through all the paths of by-and-by.
'There's time enough,' they say
And so,
You see, the first time they know
The very best time—that's to-day—
Has slyly run away;
And wait-a-while and Lots of time
Have, oh, so many hills to climb.
To-day and Much-to-do are worth
The treasures of the earth;
And all their busy people, too,
Are such a happy crew.
Let's shun the sadness of Delay,
And find the gladness of To-day.

Liquor Not Wanted at Sea.

(By Wilfred Grenfell, M. D.)
Why don't I want to see liquor used at sea? Because when I go down for a watch below I want to feel the man at the wheel sees only one light when there is only one light to see; that when the safety of the ship and all it carries depends on the cool head of the captain, the steady hand of the helmsman, there is not standing there in the place of the man the poor debased creature that all the world has seen alcohol create—even out of such gifted ones as Burns and Coleridge and others.
I have seen ships lost through collision because the captain had been taking a 'little alcohol.' I have had to tell a woman that she was a widow and that her children were fatherless because her husband, gentle and loving and clean-living, had been tempted to take a drop of alcohol at sea, and had fallen over the side, drunk. I have had to clothe children and feed them when reduced to starvation because alcohol had robbed them of a natural protector and all the necessities of life. I have had to visit in prison the victims of crime, caused as directly in honest men by alcohol as a burn is caused by falling into the fire.
Why do I not want alcohol as a beverage in a country where cold is extreme, exposure is constant, and physical conditions are full of hardship? Simply because I have seen men go down in the struggle for want of that natural strength which alcohol alone had robbed them of.
During twenty years' experience on the sea and on the shore in winter—an experience coming after an upbringing in soft places—I have found that alcohol has been entirely unnecessary.
I have known men get into deep trouble and enjoying their lives among the snows of my own vessel, and the many, many fishermen who, like ourselves, neither touch, taste, nor handle it.
I have seen men robbed in many ways, but they have been able, by the help of God, to wipe out any lasting results of such transient losses. But the robberies of alcohol are irremediable. I buried in a lonely grave on a projecting promontory, far down the coast of Labrador, a young girl of eighteen. She was someone's daughter and someone's sister. I had taken her aboard our little hospital ship for the last week of her life. She should have been alive to-day, but she had no desire to live. All that could possibly make life worth living for her had been robbed from her through the means of alcohol, and she could not face the homegoing again.—Temperance Leaders' League.

How to Make a Good Boy.

"They all put brandy in them!" said one.
"They all don't. My mother has never put a drop of brandy in her mince pie since the day Bob said he could taste the brandy, and it tasted good. My mother said then it was wrong, and she would never be guilty of it again; and if my mother says a thing is wrong, you may be sure it is wrong for what mother knows, she knows."
"How about the mince pies?"
"You are sure she knows how to make a good pie?"
"And a laugh went up from a group of girls gathered around the register of the recreation room, eating their lunch. But some of them winked a little when back were tossed these words: 'If she doesn't, she knows how to make a boy good, and isn't a boy worth more than a mince pie?'—Selected.

When sending a stamp in a letter.

When sending a stamp in a letter, instead of moistening one corner and sticking it to the paper, moisten a small spot in the centre of the stamp and then stick it to your letter. The removal of a small part of the adhesive substance from the centre is no way impairs the usefulness of the stamp, whereas it is often torn if the corner is moistened.

HERE'S no mistaking the expression of a man whose farm is well "improved." He looks as prosperous as he feels. It's the size of a place that counts most, not its actual dollars-and-cents value. It's rather that "well-kept" thrifty appearance; the appearance that makes you think of fat stock, and well-filled barns, and comfortable, contented living. Neat, permanent improvements go further in giving a farm this appearance than any other feature.

Training Children in Politeness.

We often hear some working man who has risen from the ranks referred to as one of 'Nature's gentlemen,' but it is rather a humbling fact that no man or woman was born courteous. The soil may have been there, but unless good seed had been sown from infancy in the home the harvest would have been the tares of boorishness and rudeness, rather than the whole some grain of courtesy and kindness. It goes without saying that it is not easy to make some children understand the art of politeness, and there are easy-going mothers who will tell you in excuse. You can't be always checking and drilling them, but all the same it is highly necessary unless parents are to be ashamed of their family as they grow older. The force of a good example stands in much, and impresses the young people with all the force of a well-taught object lesson. Mothers who habitually speak in loud, angry tones and are forever scolding, need not wonder if the children imitate them in this respect. Children are entitled to politeness and respect just as much as to affection, and when they are asked to do a thing, they should be told why.

The Charm of Good Manners.

No one who has any appreciation of grace and beauty in nature or in art can fail to recognize the charm of fine manners in an individual. We rejoice in them as we do in a lovely sunset or a beautiful piece of architecture, or a fascinating poem, for their own sake and for what they express; but even beyond this they have another attraction in the magnetic power they exert upon all beholders in setting them at ease, in sweeping away shyness, awkwardness and restraint, and in stimulating them to the expression of whatever is best worth cherishing within them. It is undoubtedly true that the presence of fine manners whether it be in the home or the social circle, in the work shop or counting-room, in the visit of charity or the halls of legislation, has an immediate effect in reproducing itself, in diffusing happiness, in developing the faculties and in eliciting the best that is in everybody.
