BATTERY CAMP NOTES.
Inspection of the Brigade by Lieut.-Col. Irwin.
The Batteries Complimented and Criticized.
The usual routine of camp drill was the order of the day, on Tuesday. A royal salute was fired on the Exhibition grounds at twelve o'clock followed by the usual afternoon drill, which on being completed the men were allowed to enjoy themselves as they thought fit. Some betook themselves to the Caledonian games, and afterwards attended the strawberry festival in the Drill Shed, under the auspices of Knox Church congregation.
Gunner W. R. Jarvis was the cleanest man on gun-mounting parade, and acted on Wednesday as Colonel's orderly on the field.
Several of the men complain of the chilliness of the nights recently, having only one blanket, whereas in former years they had two. Most of people would be satisfied with a cotton sheet during the heated term.
On Wednesday morning between ten and eleven o'clock, the Brigade was marched out, headed by the Band, to the field behind the General Hospital, and were inspected by Lieut.-Col. Irwin, Dominion Inspector of Artillery, who was accompanied by Col. Stevenson, of the Montreal Field Artillery. A salute was fired in honor of the officers. The march past was of a very imposing nature. The men looked their best and every evidence of neatness and cleanliness was exhibited. The Colonel examined officers and non-commissioned officers in sword drill; the gunners were examined in gun drill; gunnery by the Wellington Field Battery; examination of the Ontario Battery in standing gun drill, ammunition, &c.; Battery manoeuvres separately, followed by Brigade manoeuvres, under command of Major-Macdonald, were successfully and creditably gone through with. Col. Irwin made a careful inspection of each subdivision separately, asking questions of the men regarding their drill, which were readily, and generally correctly answered. The Col. was very good, and hoped that the men would be prepared for competition with other bands, although it was a thing he did not approve of. Considering the short time since their organization, together with other things, he considered the Band a very efficient one, and would compare favorably with the best in the country.
The Brigade was on parade a little after two o'clock. The men and officers of the two Batteries were drawn up into ranks, and Col. Irwin addressed them. He said as it was his custom on such occasions as the present, to address a few words to the officers and men, he gave him pleasure to say, as he had always said, that the Brigade, including the Ontario Battery, which has been organized only a short time ago, and as he was aware, composed mostly of students at the Agricultural College, was one of the best in the Province. Although the Batteries held such a position as he had named, yet they were several things in which a great improvement might be made. In regard to the questions he had asked, he said that the drill he had named, he did not think that they were any better answered than they were last year. To be sure they had been generally very well answered, but they might have been better, seeing that each member of the Battery had a printed card, with the duties required of each man set before him. It was the duty of every member of the Brigade to become well acquainted with his drill, and to show due respect to the officers, as it was the only way in which they could become masters of their profession. He thought that every man should take a pride in becoming a good soldier. He was sorry to see so many new faces, especially in the Wellington Field Battery. When a number of new men were recruited every year into a Brigade like this, it caused a great deal of extra work to devolve on the officers, and such men could not be expected to be so expert as the old hands. He trusted that every man in the Battery would make it an object to acquire the full term of his service. He would also advise them to make observations of things relating to their duties, which came under their every day notice, and which were not printed on their regular duty card. It was very necessary that these small things should not be overlooked. He trusted that the sixteen men chosen to shoot the competition in Toronto, in the fall, would do everything in their power to become good marksmen. He was well aware of the creditable score the Battery had always been able to put on record. He had found the officers almost without an exception, well acquainted with his drill, and he was required of them, and it gave him pleasure to state that, that he would have honor of reporting that this Brigade held the position of being one of the best in the Province, for its name, was not confined to the county of Wellington, and he was sure that the officers and men would do everything in their power to retain, and advance still higher, in the proud position they had attained. Although he was very well pleased with the Batteries, and with what he had seen, he would say that what he had seen, he would say that another change was necessary.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.
At the conclusion of the prayer meeting last evening, in the Dublin street Methodist church, the Rev. Thos. Brock was presented with a handsome ebony walking stick, on which was inscribed, "To Rev. Thos. Brock, from the members of Dublin street Church, Guelph, July 1st, 1879," accompanied with the following address, Mr. J. Osborn read the address, and Mr. J. H. Dietz presented the case:—
To the Rev. Thos. Brock—Dear Pastor—As you are soon to bid us farewell, and go to your new field of labor, we feel that we cannot allow you to depart without giving you some expression of our esteem as well as our appreciation of your earnest and faithful labors for the Master's cause amongst us. God has blessed you and greatly blessed your efforts, and we cannot but rejoice that so many, during your ministrations here, have been led to the Saviour of sinners, and are now, we trust, on their way to Heaven. Some amongst us can never forget your kindly ministrations in times of trial, affliction, and of sorrow. Since you first came to us, Death has been busy, and many of those dear to our hearts have been laid in their narrow resting places; while those whose hearts were bowed down with sorrow have been comforted and cheered by your words of sympathy. Your words of warning, admonition, of counsel, and of encouragement, which you have spoken to us from time to time. We believe they have sunk deep into many hearts, and will spring up and bring forth fruit to the glory of God. We thank you for the earnest prayers that we know have ascended from your closet as well as from the pulpit on our behalf. May your own heart receive Heaven's richest blessing in return. We trust that in your new field of labor, wherever in the providence of God you may be called, you and your estimable wife may find loving hearts and helping hands, as above all, the presence and blessing of Him who has said "Lo, I am with you always even to the end of the world," and when our labor is finished here, may we all meet in our Father's house above. As a small token of esteem from the members of the Dublin street Methodist Church, Guelph.
(Signed) A. SMYRN,
Recording Steward.
Rev. Mr. Brock made a feeling reply, thanking the donors for their gift, which would always be a reminder to him of the very pleasant time he had spent in connection with the members of the church; and also thanking them for the warm expression of good will to himself and to Mrs. Brock, contained in the address.
The case was purchased at the jewelry establishment of Mr. B. Savage.

THE HOGG-SMITH ASSAULT CASE.
We have been requested by Mr. David Hogg, to publish the following in regard to the assault case which was written up in a sensational manner and published in Wednesday's Herald:—
"Mrs. Smith, of Buffalo, was engaged by John Hogg & Son, as head dressmaker. Sometime after she had been engaged a number of dresses made by her had been returned as misfits and had to be altered, and after three very expensive mistakes made by her had been returned, and left on Messrs. Hogg's hands, Mrs. Smith was discharged. As she had been engaged for a certain length of time she announced her determination to remain and collect her wages whether she would or not. She was then dismissed, and she was told that she must put in an appearance at the store punctually at eight o'clock in the morning and take one hour for dinner. The Herald stated that Miss Smith was dismissed on account of business falling off. This is not true, but on the contrary, the dress and mantle making department is largely increasing as the order-book will show. The Herald also states that Mr. Hogg sent Miss Smith. This is false, as she came without being asked to do so on Saturday.
"Regarding the dispute on Monday last at noon, Mr. E. Bickerton, a salesman who witnessed the affair, is prepared to make affidavit: 'That about half past one o'clock Mrs. Smith entered the store. Mr. Hogg called me over to where he was standing in front of Mrs. Smith, who occupied a chair in the show room. He pulled out his watch and showing it to me asked what time it was. I replied that it was half-past one o'clock. Mrs. Smith took her watch out of her pocket and excitedly asked me to look at it. It was then twenty-three minutes past one by it. She did not say anything about working overtime, as stated in the Herald, but appeared to be in a passion, while Mr. Hogg was not particularly excited. Mr. Hogg informed her that he had the power to compel her to leave his store and that she must leave at once. She replied that she would not leave and would not be put out. Mr. Hogg said, 'You must go.' He then went behind her chair and lifting her up by placing his hands under her arms, forced her ahead of him to the back door, she violently struggling all the way. When the back door was reached he put her out. There are only four steps to the ground. Mr. Hogg at no time choked her, as stated in the Herald, and Mrs. Smith's injuries, whatever they are, must have been sustained, in my opinion, while she was violently struggling. Mrs. Smith was seemingly so excited that it appeared to be impossible for her to say anything more."
"The Herald announces that the matter will be investigated before the Courts. In that case it would have been much fairer to have waited till evidence was taken in the matter instead of endeavoring to prejudice the minds of the public by giving currency to falsehoods.
"Mr. David Hogg states that he can only account for the Herald's conduct in publishing such a one-sided account of the affair on the ground that he refused an application by the Herald agent to advertise in that journal during the next six months. Mr. Hogg thinks if the Herald had been given the full advertising contract solicited the untruthful account of the affair would not have been published."
His Excellency the Duke of Argyll and ladies arrived at Gaspe, Que., on the 2nd inst., by steamer Druid, and visited all the principal fishing establishments, and are now fishing in Gaspe Bay, about five miles from Gaspe Basin, returning to Gaspe Basin to-night, and will probably leave for Campbellton to-morrow.
More American barges were seized at Hamilton on Monday morning for violation of the Fisheries Act.
Dunnville had an $18,000 fire on Tuesday morning.
Robinson, Howell & Co., have commenced to build their eye-house, in Preston, and have purchased machinery to take the place of that which was destroyed at the recent fire.
A Port Huron paper says that engine No. 196, of the Grand Trunk Railway, Engineer John Renwick, came out of the shops on March 1, 1875, and has run two hundred thousand miles in five years and three months with no repairs. The engine and engineer are still running and in good order. The test has never been accomplished heretofore by any engine.
James Smith, of Galt, has been committed to trial on a charge of arson, on several pieces of cloth from the premises of the late Stephen Wilkins.
Rev. H. Crozier, of Hamilton, having accepted a call from Port Perry, the young people of the Presbyterian congregation at Amos station, Egremont, have presented him with a purse of money and a handsome combined pen and pencil case, with gold pen.
Stevenson of Month Forest, a noted runner, defeated Eshelton at the mile race in 140 yards by one yard and gave his opponent ten yards start.
Thomas Pashley, the deposed Executive, will, it is understood, take up his abode at Stuyvesant, and will receive a pension of $2,000 per annum. His personal debts, some $18,000, are to be paid out of the Dairs or private estates of the Sovereign.
A rift match between eleven members of the Galt Rifle Club and an equal number from Hamilton, resulted in the defeat of the latter by 96.
The destruction of wild birds and mammals is one of the duties undertaken by the authorities of the East India, but though the struggle has been carried on for centuries, there has not been a year in which the number of birds and mammals has not been reduced. Last year's harvest was a failure, and the large palm leaf fans that Day sold at 1 cent each were sold out on Saturday, a case of 2500 were ordered by the British Government for the purpose of giving employment to the poor in the East Indies.
