NOTES.

Renewed activity was shown on the Toronto mining markets on Saturday and prices continued to move toward the higher level, which it is generally conceded they should occupy. Peterson Lake was very prominent and the strong demand sent the stock up to 30, it closing just a fraction below that figure. In the opinion of experts, it is due to a quick rise and is considered one of the best propositions on the market.

Robin's Winter Quarters.

For the past three years a robin has spent the winter at Fleet (Lincolnshire) rectory. When the cold weather arrives the bird takes up its abode in the house, roosting on top of a grandfather's clock and taking its meals from the domestic table. If a crumb is thrown the robin hops to it and picks it up. It will feed out of the hands of one of the maids, though it will not allow the other people in the rectory to catch it.

The bird only spends its time in the house when the weather is cold and directly the weather becomes warmer goes outside.—London Daily News.

A Wealthy Soldier's Idea. A Wealthy Soldier's Idea.

Australians still tell stories of the colonial volunteers, although the war is a far memory. One, a member of the stock exchange, was left one wet and miserable night to guard a wagon load of goods.

He shivered in the unsheltered place for some hours pondering many things.

for some hours pondering many things, says the Melbourne Times, and then a bright thought struck him just as the Colonel came around on his tour of inspection 'Colonel," he asked, "how much is this wagon worth?"

"I don't know," was the answer.
"Much or little we can't afford to lose it."

"Well but Colonel" persisted the amateur soldier "you might give me a rough idea of the value."
"About £200" said the Colonel testily.
"Very well" was the answer. "I will come down to the camp and give you a cheque for the amount. Then I'll turn in. I wouldn't catch my death of cold for twice that much."

AN OLD FALLACY.

Max Mueller's Lucky Penny-How The Prattle of Interested Tariff-Mongers Analyzed.

A man more absolutely governed by pure reason than Lord Macaulay could not well be found, but in his diary he refers to an after dinner talk about the feeling which Johnson had—of thinking oneself bound to touch a particular rail or post and to tread in the middle of a paving stone, and he adds: "I certainly have this very strongly."

In one of his Hibbert lectures Max Mueller said to the students: "Many of you, I suspect, carry a ha-penny with (New York Journal of Commerce.) "Let us not be led astray by the de usive cry of cheap goods; cheap goods mean a cheap man," said Mr. Bates, of Pennsylvania, in the so-called tariff debate in the House, merely echoing an you, I suspect, carry a ha-penny with a hole in it for luck. I am not ashamed other distinguished statesman who said some years ago, "A cheap coat makes a cheap man." Mr. Bates somewhat elabsome years ago, "A cheap coat makes a cheap man." Mr. Bates somewhat elaborated his borrowed aphorism by declaring that it is a principle as old as the hills that when foods are cheapest men are poorest; the most distresso own that I have done so myself for many years."

Charles Dickens refused to lie down Charles Dickens refused to lie down unless his bed was placed due north and south. He gave notice of the rule before arriving at a friend's house or a hotel, but a compass was always handy in his baggage to make sure.

Mrs. John McCarthy has told how Parnell gravely checked her stirring coffee "the wrong way" and insisted that she should take another cup.

A gentleman of Portrush sent Lord Roberts an old horseshoe when things looked ill in South Africa. Gratefully acknowledging it, the General added as the hills that when foods are cheap-est men are poorest; the most distress-ing experiences in this country or in all human history have been when everything was cheapest when measured in money, but dearest when measured by labor." This foggy statement is then illuminated by a flash of intelli-gence in the remark "The best unit of value is what a day's labor will pro-duce."

We quote these words as an admirable

walue is what a day's labor will produce."

We quote these words as an admirable illustration of the confusion of mind with which economic questions are so frequently discussed, turning all logic topsy-turvy. " " If we, by our natural advantages, our labor efficiency, our enterprice and activity, produce more value by a day's work than others, we can certainly compete with them in anything in which we are superior to them. We can sell them whatever it costs us less to produce than it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs them, and we will buy, only what it costs, and the cheaper we can buy it the more we will get. The competition and enlarged supply of goods will tend to keep prices down, but it will not deprive us of any advantage or lessen our productivity. On the contrary, it will stimulate production and lead to greater abundance, increasing the unit of value in what a day's labor will bring to the laborer. In a developed country where competition lives and performs its functions healthily abundant goods at low cost in labor means low prices, and that is what is ordinarily meant by cheapness; but it does not mean poor men. It is less likely to mean a few very rich men than where competition is restrained, but it will mean a more generally diffused well-being, a greater abundance

Kingston Professor's Wife Found Man Asleep in Parlor.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) Kingston, April 5 .- Mrs. A. K. Kirkpatrick, wife of a Professor at Queen's, on coming home from church last night, on coming nome from church last night, found a strange man sitting in her parlors. She'phoned for the police, and on their arrival they found he was very intoxicated. He gained access through a window, then fell asleep on a lounge.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The memorial service of the late Mr. Arthur Carpenter in Emerald Street hurch yesterday morning was very orgely attended. The church was suit-Church yesterday morning was very largely attended. The church was suitably draped in remembrance of the deceased. Rev. Dr. Williamson preached from Psalm xxiii, which the deceased repeated during his last hours. The doctor dwelt on the fourth verse, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou are with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." The doctor went on to show that death was not really the suffering of the human body, but the departing of the soul. And in reference to the life of the late Mr. Carpenter he said deceased was not only in a department here and there, but in every department of church work, and always willing and ready. Arthur never sought offices, but was willing to do the humble work, and every one knew if he was not at church at any service something unusual had happened. The choir sang very appropriate hymns. The service was an impressive one. This costume is one of the spring favorites having the long close-fitting cutaway coat and the new ribbon fastening and straight close skirt. The Great Fowl Struck Ship's Cabin and While ceening up the bay to Baltimore Friday night the steamer Avalon ran into a flock of wild swans off Thomas Point and a swan was captured by the lookout, W. T. Whitely, who was on the forward deck, after a thrilling experience. the forward deck, after a thrilling experience.

The steamer was running at a lively clip when Whitely heard a fluttering and a few minutes later saw a flock of swans directly in front of the boat. They circled arcund a few times, then lit in the water on the port side. He notified First Officer Corkan, who turned on the searchlight. That seemed to frighten them and they all arose from the water. There appeared to be about 100, and all flew over the pilothouse, except one which struck the port side of the steamer with a crash. A passenger in stateroom 45, which was damaged, thought there had been a collision, and got out of bed.

Lexington, Ky., April 5.—Bookmaking is still under the ban in Kentucky, so far as the racing commission is concerned. This was decided at a meeting of that body, when it was announced that that body, when it was announced that any racing licenses granted to tracks depended upon the use of the parimutuel system of betting.

"Races must be conducted under existing circumstances," voted the members of the commission, and a further statement was made that the outcome of the Latonia case in the courts will be awaited before any verdict is handed down. Latonia recently secured a decision stating that the law appointing the racing commission was unconstitutional and the turf body has appealed to a higher court.

Jockey Shilling has been reinstated at Los Angeles, but his riding is restricted to the horses owned by his contract employer, R. L. Thomas. He won the Gebhard Handicap on Saturday on Flying Squirrel.

The California horse-racing season closes with the end of next week, but the promoters of coursing, which attracts great crowds in that State, declare they will continue the greyhound racing meetings, at which bookmaking is a recognized feature.

Chicago Tribune: John Condon, owner of the Harlem race track, stated yesterday that at the unanimous request of the members of the Overland Jockey Club, of Denver, he had agreed personally to manage a thirty-day meeting there, beginning June 19 and ending July 23. Several stakes, including the Colorado Derby, will be offered.

D. A. Walker, President of the San Antonio, Texas, Racing Association, announces that the spring meeting commencing there Saturday, April 10, will be continued indefinitely. He further announced that Charles F. Price, of Louisville, will serve as presiding judge. Ed Duke as starter and Silvia Helmann as secretary. There will be six races each day and no purse less than $200.

Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler of the world, says that next winter will be his last season on the mat. The only reason he remained in the game for that length of time, he said, was because he wanted a final clash with Hackenschmidt. He expects to fill the offer of the Melbourne promoter for a $13,000 end of the purse as his share to meet Hackenschmidt next November.

London, April 5.—(Canadian A. P.)—A critic with a decade of experience in Canadian lacrosse, who witnessed the North vs. South match on Saturday, declared that English lacrosse is reaching the Canadian standard. He said the North played like Indians, the ball was passed low and rapidly, and the attack was speedy and direct. The North won by 9 goals to 4.
