London, Ont., July 13.—Richard Powers, of Hamilton, was committed for trial on court this morning on charges of shop breaking. On the night of July 2nd the front windows of James' grocery store, on Main street, were broken into and large quantities of tobacco taken. Several people were in the neighborhood, but the man got away in the darkness. Later some boys saw a man, whom it is said, they identified as Powers, trying to stop his hand from bleeding. They notified the police, but the man got away. On the following night Powers was arrested in the park, claiming he had no home to go to. He dropped some packages and told the officer it was old paper. On picking them up the officer found they were packages of tobacco similar to those stolen. Powers' hands were also badly cut. He refused to give an account of his actions.
