I. C. MORRIS.
Chapter III.—The Beach-stone Industry.

When first we read of the beach stone industry we looked a sort of doubtful, and then smiled, and then wondered would, or could, there be anything in it.

The project seemed an unlikely one, and the familiarity of the beach stones tended to prejudice our minds against their commercial value. But this was not any fault of the stones; they were all right, and our prejudices did not in the least undermine their value. The prejudice was ours; and like many other things in life, we despised them before we tested them, or gave them a chance to prove their worth or state their case. It seems to have been ever thus, and some of the best inventions of the age have been ridiculed by ignorance, and almost defeated by jest.

However, being keenly interested in the industrial problem of the country, and having been in touch with the industrial world for half a century, we decided to see for ourselves what prospects of employment these beach stones offered. Therefore we availed of an early opportunity and went out by the afternoon train on the half holiday of June 22nd. At Manuels station we left the train and wended our way to the beach in the distance, and saw for ourselves the practical side of this peculiar industry. The beach, as most of our readers are aware, is quite a long one, and is about one hundred feet wide, and its summit is about thirty-five or forty feet above the sea level. Thus it will be seen that the entire bulk of such a beach must assume fairly large proportions, and contain myriads and myriads of stones. These stones are all of a small and medium size and mostly of a steel or sea-blue colour. In shape they vary, but none of them are really round nor really oval, but resemble eggs or pears in shape and size. For years the sea dently drawing near. Those who gathered the stones were provided with a gauge and also a short prong, called a "tormentor." With this latter implement they scratched and rooped and turned over the surface, and separated the different sized stones; and then followed the gathering and assorting. The gauge was of metal, and was simply a piece of cast iron scroll work, in which were three openings; through these openings the different stones were passed as a test of their size. From what we saw of this arrangement we decided that this gauge was only used in cases of doubt, as the assortment was made by the men in a general way. Several of the men had strong cuffs and gloves on their hands, and on being questioned as to why they used these appendages, they told us that the constant picking up and handling of the stones was very hard on the fingers, and that several of them who had begun to gather them with their bare hands had suffered from bruises and scratches.

On a sack being filled, it would at once be taken to the scales and placed thereon, and when the regular weight of one hundred and sixty-eight pounds was made, it was immediately removed and taken in charge by the sewer, who, with strong twine and large needle, firmly bound the mouth of the sack.

The next process was that of numbering the sacks. We did not ascertain how the numbers were arranged, but we noticed that all that we looked at were marked "No. 1." This evidently was in reference to size; there being three sizes of stones put up in the different lots. It could not be a mark of quality, as all the stones were alike in this respect. Sometimes "No. 1" is marked where some other number should go; but in the case of the beach stones there was not any room for such latitude. These stones were in their natural state. They were genuine. adulteration was an impossibility. They had been thrown up by the sea, and had been bleached by the winds and storms and sunshine of centuries unknown. Neither the craft nor the intervention of man had affected them; they were Nature's product, and like all the works of Nature, they were perfect and genuine.

Children Had Eczema

Treatment prescribed had no effect—DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Mrs. Oscar Vanort, St. Antonio, Sask., writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure for Eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many doctors were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him."

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their little ones may be saved from suffering."

As a cure for eczema and itching skin disease there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers of Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Dr. Chase's Recipes sent free.

ine. The sacks being numbered, there was but one more process, and that was piling or putting them in bulk. With this, the work of the pebble gatherers was finished and the entire process performed. We knew many of the men thus engaged and spoke to them, and they were all quite happy in their work. Some of them were well advanced in years, and not very well able to compete in the more exacting channels of labour, but in this industry they had found an avenue of employment that seemed particularly suited to them. They could kneel, or sit, or stand, in the discharge of their duties, and it did not make much difference. The stones were at their feet in millions, and the work was not difficult, though, as we have stated, a little hard on the fingers.

The gentleman in charge did not appear to take any interest in visitors, therefore we did not ask him any questions, or solicit from him any information whatever. We know all about the beach ourselves, and for half a century had a knowledge of it. The process of gathering was open and simple, therefore we learned all that was necessary, and all that we have stated, in a glance or two of the eye. Besides, we were conscious that a few days before our visit there had been some little difference as to the mode and manner of payment, and in this age of strikes and demands it is not unlikely that we appeared in the eye of the manager as a socialist, or a possible disturber; and especially so, as we had shaken hands with some of the aged men.

We were in holiday attire, and had a walking stick, and perhaps felt inclined to appear as spies. Men do feel that way sometimes. It is a sort of nice to feel oneself a somebody without having the burden of responsibility which such a position usually involves.

But we started out to write about beach stones and not men; but like some speakers, we have got far from the topic. However, we are pleased to be able to say that we found the pebble industry one of much benefit to the people of Long Pond and Manuels, and one which has brought to their very doors a very easy chance of making a good summer's wages. Anything that means employment to our people is worthy of all the support the public can give it. In closing, we therefore wish the Atlantic Pebble Co. continued and abundant success.

Municipal Council.

Mayor Ellis and a full Board were present at last night's meeting.

The Gas Co. tendered for lights in the outskirts of the city. The offer, as well as that of the R. S. Co. will be laid before the Government.

The complaint of Andrew Murray in reference to water supply for ships was dealt with. After the waterman had connected the hose and turned on the water for Murray's vessel, it was called away to another ship. Murray's vessel being removed, the hose got frozen up and the vessel was not watered. The Council decided that the waterman was not to blame.

The Solicitor reported that he had seen the manager of the Nfld. Produce Co., who was building a shed and a wooden tramway without permission, and apparently against the terms of the Act. He (the manager) was not aware that he was breaking the law. The Solicitor said that he was prepared to bring the case into court and have it tested. He believed, however, that the clause in the Act which the Council said had been violated did not apply in this case. The Solicitor was instructed to prepare an amendment to the Act which would give the Council power to deal with all such cases in future.

Mr. T. Kent's claim came up again. He will be asked to produce all particulars. Receipts and vouchers that may be in existence relating to the claim will also be looked up.

The Solicitor reported that the Council had ample power to change the names of streets provided they published notice of their intention.

On motion of Councillor Chamberlain, Pope's Street will be changed to Burke's Square.

The Engineer complained that some people failed to remove the snow from Water Street sidewalk in front of their places of business. He said that when the thaw would come there would be many pools of water that could otherwise be avoided.

The Engineer complained of the great waste of water going on the past three weeks by people allowing it to run in their houses. The measure was very much reduced all over town, and in the event of a fire this would be a bad condition of affairs.

The Health Officer reported that new cases of typhus fever, the grip (typhus), one case of typhoid and one of diphtheria.

The meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

MANITOBA MAN'S RHEUMATISM BANISHED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

St. George, Man., Feb. 3. (Special.)—Completely cured of his Rheumatism, from which he suffered for ten years, Telephone Dupont, well-known here, is one more added to the great and growing army of Canadians who have learned from their own experience that Rheumatism is caused by diseased Kidneys, and that the one sure cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Dupont's experience is briefly and strikingly given in a statement he has issued for publication. That statement is as follows:—

"I certify that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Rheumatism, from which I suffered for ten years. Thirteen boxes cured me. I am fifty-six years old and can do all my work now. I encourage all people who suffer with Rheumatism or Kidney Disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."
