Obeying Orders.

The master mechanic had finished showing me through the great car works, where hundreds of men were at work. It was a great railroad plant at the end of a division of one of our greatest railroads. It had been an inspiring hour for me. The order, the power that I had seen displayed, the splendid system with which everything was managed, the well-kept walks, the rush and push and hustle of it all, filled me with admiration for the general who was the one man under whose charge all these great activities were being carried on so admirably. He had an oversight of all. Every man in the employ of that division was under him. Every train that went out or came in, every pound of coal that was used, every gill of oil, every can of paint, every bolt, every particle of repair to car or road-bed, were all under this man's supervision. In one way or another, though, of course, he had his lieutenants to look after the details.

After we had gone through the great shops and were chatting in the plain but well-appointed office, I said to him, "How did you get this position?" I was interested to know for he had told me that he had begun work in this great shop as labourer at a dollar and a half a day.

He had remarked this incidentally and as I saw the vast amount of ability which must have been developed in order that he might do what was now being done, I was interested to know by what process he had climbed up the ladder of responsibility and success. So I asked how it came about that he had managed to climb so high. Turning to me, he simply replied—and I shall never forget that answer:

"I have reached my present position by doing what I was told."

That was all he said, but this simple reply spoken most naturally and quietly, tells volumes, and is one of the choicest secrets of success known to the business world. Almost all of those who employ labour tell me that the one thing that they find most difficult to secure is a man who will do exactly what he is told, and do it thoroughly and patiently. No man who is a man wants an employee who is a mere machine, but there is no activity in the world which does not need those who are willing to obey orders. The boy who enters the employ of any business house, determined to do the very best that can be done, the things that he is told, and who is always found in his place doing this, will certainly before long be requested to do something higher and more important.

Cronje's Reminiscences.

Warrior Reduced to Playing "Buffalo Bill" Part at Exhibition.

Among the reminiscences of General Cronje, says the Westminster Gazette, we have not noticed that for months after he was released from his honorable captivity in St. Helena, he was tempted to recuperate his financial fortunes in America. He was offered a generous sum by the organizers of the St. Louis Exhibition in 1904 to act the leading part in a reconstruction of Paardeberg. A huge area was laid out, with trenches, guns, soldiers and Boers, and day after day for weeks the show was produced.

And day after day the great moment of the show was when Cronje (in his Paardeberg cloak, all marked by the fighting and the exposure) rode out on a sorry horse to meet Lord Roberts. It was not the real Lord Roberts—only an actor made up to look like him. But it was the real Cronje, who was reduced to take a Buffalo Bill engagement to make an American holiday. There were many Britons there who blushed to see a brave foe in such a position.

Though Cronje's defence at Paardeberg brought him such fame, and was the subject of so many eulogies, it is interesting to recall that in the opinion of not a few, including many of his own compatriots, it implied very bad generalship on his part. De Wet was one, for instance, who maintained that by leaving all his stores Cronje might have escaped by making a dash for it, and strongly condemned him for sticking to his laager.

Dresden China.

It is to Frederick Boltger, a native of Saxony—1862-1910—that we owe the secret of making china or porcelain. It was in 1710 that a lucky accident revealed to Boltger the true nature of the required paste. Having noticed the unusual weight of some hair powder, he inquired what it was made of and found that it was a finely powdered clay from Aue. He fortified "pounded some of the clay, made vessels of it and, to his infinite delight, learned that he had at last found the very material he wanted. In a word, he had made the discovery of porcelain.

Origin of the Canon.

It is a curious fact that the first cannon was cast at Venice. It was called a "bombard" and was invented and employed by Gen. Pisani in a war against the Genoese. The original bombard, which bears the date of 1380, is still preserved and stands at the foot of Pisani's statue at the arsenal. The bombard threw a stone 100 pounds in weight, but another Venetian general, Francesco Barde, improved it until he was able to handle a charge of rock and boulders weighing 8,000 pounds. It proved disastrous to him, however, for one day during the siege of Zara while he was operating his terrible engine he was buried by it over the walls and instantly killed.

Backache Suffering

A wonderful medicine is this man's description of DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mr. Fred. Gummer, Lillies, Ont., writes: "I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a wonderful medicine. For six weeks last fall I could scarcely walk around for pains in the back and legs, and was almost completely unfit for work. Though I tried several medicines I got no better. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and bought five boxes. After I had used three boxes, I was greatly improved and by the time I had them all taken felt as well as I ever did. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney disease to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for bad colds and sore throat, and would not be without these medicines for anything."

Reciprocity Up In The Lords.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, This Morning.—Lord Amthill raised a discussion in the House of Lords last night on the Canada-American Reciprocity Agreement by condemning what he termed the inaction of the Government, which he declared had forced Canada to abandon her National policy and offer to the States some advantages which she had so freely given to Britain. Commercial union between the States and Canada must also mean political union. The astounding feature of the situation thus created was that responsible statesmen in a foreign country have spoken openly in their parliaments of the future annexation of a portion of the Crown's domains, without a protest from this country. Viscount Morley defended the Government and Ambassador Bryce, saying that criticism of the latter was grossly unjust. The assistance he had rendered Canada had been gratefully recognized but he had not participated in the actual negotiations. The most responsible statesmen in both America and Canada, said Morley, have laughed at the talk of annexation. He added that papers on the subject would soon be laid upon the table and these would show that the action of the Ambassador was justified by precedent and did not constitute a new departure.

Debate on the Fisheries Award.

Special Evening Telegram.

OTTAWA, This Morning.—In the House of Commons, Hon. Mr. Brodeur resumed the adjourned debate upon the omission to submit the matter of the Bay of Fundy to the Hague Tribunal. He contended that Britain would have lost the case anyhow, on account of concessions made in the past. He laid great stress upon the terms of the Chamberlain Bay and treaty, which did not interfere with the claims of American fishermen to fish in the Bay of Fundy.

Mr. R. L. Borden expressed satisfaction with the fact that Britain and the States had submitted their difficulties to Arbitration and hoped that the method would be followed in the future. He believed, however, that a more comprehensive and satisfactory award could have been secured. Canada had not presented a strong contention in the matter of Britain's Sovereignty over territorial waters in Canada. Nothing more had been claimed than that the Canadian Government had power to make reasonable regulations respecting the fisheries. This had been upheld, but practically the result was that the States could require an International Board of Experts to pass upon the reasonableness of any regulation which might make. The right to regulate had in effect passed from Canada and Newfoundland to a foreign tribunal, which would undoubtedly deal with such a question in a spirit of compromise and cut something out of any code of regulations however reasonable. Had the Canadian case been properly presented, Canada and Newfoundland in possession of the Bait Supply would have held key to situation, and could have insisted upon free admission of fish into the markets of the States without the recourse to a reciprocity arrangement.

Replying to the argument, Brodeur had based in the Chamberlain Bay and treaty, Canada's concessions as to the Bay of Fundy had been secure by concessions, made by the States, as to all other bays.

Watching Mormons.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, This morning.—Home Secretary Churchill stated in the House of Commons last night that the attention of the Government had been attracted to the recent allegations of a Mormon propaganda among the women of this country. The Government had begun investigations. While he had no official information to support the assertion that young girls were induced to emigrate to Utah, there was no doubt that this matter was causing deep concern. He proposed to probe it exhaustively.

High Honour For Lieut-Col. Renout.

Newfoundlander is Elected President of the Canadian Artillery Association.

Ottawa, February 25.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Artillery Association in the Railway Committee Room of the House of Commons, Colonel Renout, of the 2nd Regiment, Canadian Artillery, Montreal, was elected president for the ensuing year. In the absence of His Excellency Earl Grey, Lt.-Col. MacNachtan, O. C., of Cobourg, Ont., president of the Association, occupied the chair. The retiring executive in his address paid a high tribute to His Excellency Earl Grey and referred in warm terms of appreciation to the interest the Governor-General displayed in the past, in matters pertaining to the artillery arm of the service. Lt.-Col. MacNachtan also highly praised the work of Colonel English and Colonel Gurnall, for their work in connection with artillery inspection. He announced a move was on foot looking to the obtaining free of all expense, of the services of artillery instructors at all local headquarters.

Colonel Renout in moving a vote of thanks to His Excellency the Governor-General, reviewed the work of the artillery for the past year and in referring to the knowledge of artillery matters displayed by His Excellency referred to the latter's review of the efficiency of the Canadian artillery army now and in 1905. He mentioned the First General Efficiency Cups presented by Earl Grey, for which the competition has been of the keenest, as aiding greatly the work of improving the service.

The speaker voiced the regrets of himself and his fellow officers at the thought that this was possibly the last time they would be in a position to express their thanks to Earl Grey as Governor-General. The resolution was carried amid the greatest enthusiasm.

The office to which Col. Renout now succeeds is the highest in the gift of the Association.

Major C. H. L. Sharman, of Ottawa, becomes secretary, and Lieut.-Col. Hurdman, of Ottawa, treasurer. The chairman of the council for the ensuing year is Lieut.-Col. Rathbun, of Deseronto.

WHERE WAS ROY ROY BURIED?

Where do the remains of Roy Roy rest? The query is suggested by a remark of Mr. Frederick Watson in an interesting article in 'Chambers's Journal' for February, entitled 'Roy Roy and the MacLarens.' The writer tells the story of the bold raiders' closing days. Shortly afterwards Roy Roy said: 'It is all over now; put me to bed. Call in the piper. Let him play 'I Will Never Return' as long as I breathe.' He died, according to the 'Calcutta Mercury,' on December 28, 1874, and was buried in Balquhider Kirkyard, where a flat stone covers his remains. This stone, by the way, belongs to a far earlier date, and was possibly placed over his grave to protect the body. The writer has it on good authority that so fearful were the relatives of Roy Roy on this score that two coffins left the house and that there is still doubt as to where the body of Roy Roy actually lies.
