

Delicious "Syrup of Figs" Cleans Your Torpid Liver and Constipated Bowels.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you feel indigestion, feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with waste matter not properly carried off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body. Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after-effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel wasday—

That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, sour bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system, thoroughly but gently—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are drugging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use can not cause injury. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna" and look for the name, California Figs Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine, reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't be imposed upon.

Notes of Long Ago.

L. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XVII.—THE SOLDIER LAD.

"The ships returning to Portsmouth presented a very different contrast to those which had left it some three or four years before. The thousands which came away did so with hope and health in their hearts; but those returning, while they had victory written upon their banners, they also had the awful sense of the thousands who had fallen, and there was the presence of the suffering and the invalided on board. Our ship was quite small, and did not have many soldiers; but was convoyed by other ships in case of attacks from pirates. We left the Mediterranean, and soon got along and passed out by the Rock of Gibraltar, and with the prevailing weather and winds we would have got safely home in the course of a few weeks, but storm broke upon us, and our little ship suffered much damage; but what was worse than all, we got lost to our convoy during the night, and when morning dawn broke, we signalled in vain for help and assistance. As the day broadened, we saw a ship in the distance. We soon saw she was a stranger, and to our horror, we found the stranger was a pirate. The pirate ship was no doubt prepared and ready for action, but we were not. We were damaged by storm, the crew was small, the few soldiers were beaten out by warfare and disease; and so we proved no match for the guns of the pirate ship.

"We knew his work meant death and damage, we knew there was but little hope of escape unless it was that some of the ships, from whom we had been separated during the night, would have in sight and relieve us. And this they did, but it was too late when they came; and most of us had paid the price of walking the plank. It did not take many shots from the pirate to conquer us, and in a very short time they boarded our vessel, and we were prisoners to a gang of outlaws. Their work was death and destruction, and this they carried out in the height of the noonday. Their mode of putting men to death was mostly by that of walking the plank; but they were bent on horror and suffering, and the mutilations which they inflicted upon their victims before death were really worse than death itself. They literally cut out men's tongues, and gouged out their eyes, and wounded their scalps, and then ordered them to walk the plank.

"To me the sight was worse than all the horrors of the battlefield, and I had to stand and see my own father walk the plank before my eyes, with the knowledge that in a moment or two, or within an hour or so, that I would have to follow him in the same cruel manner. The plank was laid on the reef of the ship, firm and strong and extended some six or eight feet over her side, and the victim's hands were bound behind his back (commonly called pinioned). He was then blindfolded and commanded to walk until he stepped off and fell into the sea, and there bound and blinded, perish like some vile dog, and not as a man or a Christian should die. Sometimes they walked the plank in pairs, and were tied together back to back. I had abandoned all hope of ever seeing land again, nor saw that a ship was bearing down upon us.

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

Dear Mrs. Currah:—I feel so very much better after using the 10 days' treatment of ORANGE LILY you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment.

Similar letters to the above are not infrequently received, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use ORANGE LILY longer than the 10 days' treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefited. Further, the benefit will be permanent whether they continue to use ORANGE LILY or not. It is not taken internally, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's disorders, these organs are congested to a greater or less extent, and ORANGE LILY will relieve and remove this congestion just as positively and certainly as the action of ammonia or soap on skin blemishes. It is a simple chemical problem, and the result is always the same, a step towards better health and complete cure.

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, I will send enough of ORANGE LILY for 10 days' treatment absolutely free of charge, with full directions, and the result is always the same, a step towards better health and complete cure. In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, I will send enough of ORANGE LILY for 10 days' treatment absolutely free of charge, with full directions, and the result is always the same, a step towards better health and complete cure.

Letter From Mr. J. J. Day.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Now that the doors of the Legislative Halls are about to be opened once more, and moreover as the belief is prevalent and rapidly gaining ground that it is the last session of a dying Government, we deem it an opportune time to refresh the minds of the honourable members of the Legislature and St. Mary's regarding a petition sent to and presented to the House by Mr. R. J. Devereaux, praying that the s.s. Argyle call at Little Paradise, also for erection of wharf thereat, but since then nothing has been done except many and oft repeated assertions that something was being done towards granting the prayer of the people embodied in said petition.

To say, Mr. Editor, that the petition was largely signed would not be fully expressing the truth. The facts are, it was signed by every man in the three Harbours directly interested and to them, Mr. Editor, it really was of vital interest—a matter of life and death, and in this I challenge contradiction from any man.

In the present order of things any person having freight in S. S. Argyle for Little Paradise or Little Bona and desirous of getting same quickly as possible must be at Great Paradise awaiting the arrival of steamer and then no matter when she may put in an appearance, dark or light, fair or foul, you got to face out into the Reach exposed to all winds oftentimes blowing fiercely and thereby causing a choppy sea making it extremely dangerous taking freight in a dory or small boat of any kind.

I would like to know, Mr. Editor, why men should be thus forced to risk their lives and limbs in this fashion when S. S. Argyle could be in Little Paradise, a harbor of perfect safety, without causing the slightest inconvenience to any person whatever, even if no wharf was ever put there the S. S. Argyle should call there to land freight and mails in the safety of that harbor.

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," and the delay of the powers that be in this case is positively inhuman, and the granting of these petitions after some accident has occurred with a frightful and fatal ending will do little towards assuaging the bitter grief of the widows and orphans left to mourn will be poor balm and small comfort to the broken heart of the lonely mother.

No doubt, Mr. Editor, I am drawing on myself the charge of being optimistic but it is much better to look the stable door while the horse is still in it, or in other words this petition should be granted and the dangers and hardships removed while we are still in the land of the living.

Thanking you in anticipation for space,

I remain yours truly,
J. J. DAY.

Generosity

Old Kink's always willing to preach, and hand out wise counsel and teach; but ask him for aid when you're hungry and frayed, and he'll stick to his wad like a leech. He's handy with verb and text to comfort the needy and vexed; but when there's a plan to feed indigent man, Old Kink never seems to get next. He'll help out the widow with psalms, and pray for her fatherless lambs; but he never would try to bring joy to her eye with codfish and sauerkraut and ham. On Sunday he joins in the hymn, and makes the responses with vim; when they pass round the box for the worshippers' rocks, his gift is exceedingly slim. He thinks he is fooling the Lord and is sure of a princely reward when to heaven he goes at this life's journey's close—with which view I am not in accord. For the Lord, he is wise to gold bricks, and the humbug, who crosses the styx will have to be sharp if he captures a harp; St. Peter will say to him, "Nix!" They size up a man nearly right when he comes to the portals of light, and no stung old fraud ever thimble-rigged God or put on a robe snowy white.
