Six British Soldiers' Amazing Adventures

Since Battle of Mons-- Life in Dug-Outs and Trenches-- How Two Frenchmen Were Bayoneted by Germans.

(Liverpool Express, May 17.) There have just crossed the Belgian frontier, behind German lines, and come into Holland, six British soldiers. Behind that plain statement lies an amazing odyssey of a battle, of halfbreath escapes, of sufferings terrible, writes the Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. For these men were "in it" from the start. They were at Mons in the tragic days of August, and were cut off from their regiment in the great retreat. They crept through the encircling Germans, and for nine months have been fugitives in France and Belgium, living in fields and dugouts. They have passed through experiences probably without parallel, playing through all these nine months a game of hide and seek to have lost which would have meant summary execution. For a price was on their heads.

But when I saw them to-day, soon after they had crawled through the barbed wire into Holland, they were cheerful and undaunted, only longing for two things, the first to see England again, the other to return to Flanders to "get our own back on the Germans." James Garrigian, who, his memory aided at points by Jenkins, told me the history of the adventures, said:—

"It was on August 26th that the Germans got round us properly. Our little lot of odd men were collected, and went into one trench. 'The Germans are surrounding us,' said the captain. 'Then we heard the call to 'Cease fire.' 'Don't mind that, men,' said the captain; 'a German is sounding it.' So we kept plugging away. Three times the Germans sounded the call 'Cease fire.' Then the captain stood up to send four men out on to the flank. He got a bullet in the heart and was killed instantly. I took command and gave the word to charge. We went at them once, but had to retire. A second time we charged. — got hit in the hip.

"The third time, when we had another go, it was pitch dark. We had to come back again, and I found there were only seven men with me. We were absolutely surrounded.

"But we managed to hide in a ditch, where we stayed all night. Next morning we found ourselves in a little paddock, only two fields away from the Germans, in the middle of their lines. So we lay low all day.

"Then eight Frenchmen crawled up to us. We managed to keep out of sight until most of the Germans had gone on. We hid most of the time in orchards, and lived on pears for ten days. We were then a party of 21, eleven English and ten French.

Fate of Two Frenchmen.

"As we were desperate for want of food we decided to make for a village and fight to the last man if we met any Germans. Just before we left the orchards twelve Germans caught two of our French comrades and bayoneted them without giving them any chance to surrender if they had wanted to. We got to a village, making our way along the railway line and through the forest. Here we all lodged in a barn, and a woman, the best soul we ever met, brought us milk three times a day.

"After some days the Germans occupied the village. One day they discovered the woman washing our shirts. They recognized the grey backs, as army shirts are called, and got hold of her. For three days they kept on threatening her and her two daughters, aged 16 and 9, with the bayonet, to try and make them tell them where we were. Bless them, they never gave us away. But it got too hot for us. We were afraid they would find our hiding-place, so we took to the fields.

The Germans who were searching for us, were in a horse-shoe shape round the village, and were closing in on us. Private Jamieson, a scout and a good one, took command. He got us out, nearly under the noses of 12 Uhlans. We got into a field, and stayed there for a month, with Germans only six fields away.

"We dug a sort of trench along the fence to hide in. The farmer gave us civilian clothes, and we worked for him in the fields for three weeks under the noses of the Germans. Then we had to clear again.

"Shot If Caught."

"We divided into three parties. My little party of eight got into a field, where we made a dug-out. We lived in this for a month, stealing out at night to get food from some people in a village close by. While we were there, a Frenchman brought us a notice which had been stuck up by the Germans in the villages around. This said they knew there were Englishmen hiding in the district, and that if we did not give ourselves up we should be shot when we were caught. We moved on again, and tried the same plan at the next place we stopped at.

"It was terrible weather, raining nearly all the time. We had to keep baling the place out nearly all night. We were pretty nearly starving some of the time. At last we got so sick that we decided to change our quarters, and to find a place where we could live above the ground.

"We made another trek, and then lived for a month in a hut which we built in a corner of a field. Then a Belgian guided us to a village."

Uniforms Under Civilian Clothes.

What happened to the fugitives after this must not be disclosed, as it might implicate good friends who helped them through Belgium and ultimately to escape across the frontier. Suffice it to say that they travelled openly daily, passing the German sentries, and even using the railways. They were lucky, but, even so, they had to make three attempts to cross the frontier before the one which succeeded. Private Jenkins has scratches on his face and torn clothes, as the result of creeping through the barbed wire into Holland. One other fact worthy of record is that for the first six months the six intrepid fugitives wore their uniforms under their civilian clothes. Said Private Garrigian: "We were determined to stick to our khaki, and Obituary.

MRS. HARRIETT H. RODGER.

We record to-day with profound regret, the sudden demise of an estimable lady, in the person of Mrs. Harriett H. Rodger, wife of Mr. Alexander S. Rodger. Though deceased had been alling for some considerable time, death came unexpectedly. Last night she retired, without complaint, and early this morning her husband found her lying in bed cold in death. The final summons having come while she was sleeping. Dr. Fraser and Rev. Mr. Sutherland were sent for, but their services were unavailing as life had been extinct for several hours previously. Death was pronounced due to heart failure. Deceased was 68 years of age. Besides a husband she is survived by three sons, Stan and Will, who are in business with their father, and Herbert, who is abroad, as well as a large circle of friends. The funeral takes place Thursday afternoon from the late residence of deceased, 84 Barnes Road. The Telegram offers its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family.

MRS. BRADBURY.

There passed peacefully away last evening at her late residence, 158 Gower Street, a well known and highly esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. Bradbury, relict of the late Jas. Bradbury. The deceased had reached the advanced age of 75 years and had been invalided for some years past. She had been married twice and is survived by eight children, four of whom are in Boston, Mr. Thomas Jenkins, son of her first husband, Mr. Samuel Bradbury, Mrs. Chaplin and Mrs. Longman; and four in this city, Mrs. James Lawrence, Mrs. A. E. Parkins, Miss Bradbury, of the Methodist College Staff, and Mr. James Bradbury, to all of whom the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon.

"What Are You Doing for that Eczema?"

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."

Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Reid-McMartin Cases

DISPOSED OF AND DROPPED.

(Montreal Star, May 27.) The charge of obtaining 7,500 shares of the stock of the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company, laid against Robert H. Reid five months ago by John McMartin, was dismissed this morning by Judge St. Cyr. A counter charge of perjury, brought by Reid against Martin, was also dismissed.

The case which had been adjourned from time to time, grew out of a disagreement between two men over the affairs of the company in question. Through Reid's efforts during six years, it developed at the trial the company obtained control of valuable timber lands in Labrador, covering 3,100 square miles, in addition to water powers and concessions from the Newfoundland Government. Later, when a deal for the sale of the property to an English, French and American syndicate was on, McMartin defaulted in the payment of a note for $100,000 due to the former owners of a part of the company's limits. McMartin claimed that the obligation was not genuine.

Reid then refused to surrender the deeds of the property, the company was unable to deliver title, and the proposed sale fell through. McMartin laid charges of perjury against Reid, and the latter retaliated by charging McMartin with perjury in denying his name on the $100,000 note which he had signed in a New York hotel.

Before Judge St. Cyr this morning McMartin acknowledged that the charge of false pretences had been founded on a clerical error made in copying the description of the deed from Reid to the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company, and further acknowledged the validity of the $100,000 note.

These acknowledgments and the settlement of the note dispose of a case brought against Reid in Halifax, where McMartin charged him with falsely uttering the note.

Capt. Bob Bartlett Rejoins the Roosevelt.

In all probability Capt. Bob Bartlett will go back and take command of the s.s. Roosevelt, of Arctic fame. It was understood recently that he was going to navigate the s.s. Neptune on her "round-the-world" tour with the moving picture expedition, and had been entrusted with the responsibility of engaging a suitable crew for the trip, but, it is said, he has abandoned that idea. He is at present in Washington, U.S.A., and after completing his business there will proceed to Alaska waters and rejoin the American ship Roosevelt.
