LONDON STAGED BIG RALLY HOW THE TEAMS STAND IN NINTH AND BEAT HAMS

Cristall's New College Twirler, Eccles, Held London Without a Hit for Six Innings-He Blew Up In the Ninth, London Scoring Six Runs.

AMILTON, Ont., June 23.—

Eccles, a college pitcher, performed in the box for the Hams today, and for six innings held London without a hit, but after that he weakened and had to be taken from the box in the ninth, after the visitors had tied the score. Dolan could not stop the onstruck out eleven of the visiting bats men.

Eccles got off to a bad start by walking Lamy and hitting Reidy. Lamy got nailed when trying to steal third, and Reidy was stranded on first when Eckstein filed out, and Schaffer went out on an infield grounder. Eccles started his flinging arm working in the second and struck out the three men who faced him, and also the first man to come up in the third.

Cy Got Hit Twice.

Ond brought him home. The locals' big inning was the third. In that trame Harris walked, and scored on Linneborn's two-base wallop to centre field. Linneborn tried to stretch his hit into a triple, and would have been nailed the third if Lusk had not dropped the ball. Tiffany's single scored Linneborn, and Tiffany's free trip filled the bases in the seventh, and they were filled again in the eighth, on singles by Pembroke and Eccles and Harris walked, and scored on Linneborn tried to stretch his hit into a triple, and would have been nailed the ball. Cy Got Hit Twice.

Cy Reidy got tickled on the ribs for the second time in the fourth, but his team-mates failed to advance him. Merritt started the fifth with a walk, but Myers popped one to Zeimer, and Danford and Hammond struck out, as did Lamy and Reidy, the first two up in the sixth. The visitors' first hit was made in the seventh, when Lusk, sent a long fly to left centre that Woods a long fly to left centre that Woods a long fly to left centre that Woods a long fly to reach, but just got close enough for it to fall at his feet. Eccles began to weaken in the eighth, and after he had struck out Danford for the third time, Hammond singled down the third base line and Lamy walked. Linneborn's fallure to gather in Reidy's grounder, and a similar performance by McGroarty on Eckstein's hot one, allowed two runs to score.

Eccles Blows Up.

In the ninth inning the Cockneys showed their hitting spirit. They landed on Eccles for four hits, and tied the score, and then Cristall decided to put Dolan on the mound. He was unable to stop the onslaught, and three more hits were made off him, making a total of six runs in that frame, enough to turn what looked like a sure defeat into victory.

The Hams' little sticks were responsible for the first tally which crossed the plate in the second inning. Gus Zeimer started the fun with a clout to left, and Woods sacrificed him to second. Pembroke's single through second.

Tricky Catchers Often Talk Batters Into Striking Out

Famous Backstops in Baseball Pastmasters in Art of Tricking Batters Into Pounding the Air-A Good Story of Late Tim Hurst.

From the days when Carroll, Kelly and those fellows used to stretch rubber bands across their hands while catching, and by snapping them deceive the umpire into calling out "foul tipbatter out," the catcher has been the batter of the trickery of the game of baseball.

John Kling, the great catcher, was John Kling, the great catcher, was yas talking in low tones, usually of sympathy or friendship. Frequently his quick "Hit it" would result in a hard, belated swing at the ball.

Kling used to gain the confidence of batters by telling them what was compained by the ball would cut the heart of the plate unmolested. By work such as this he threw batters entirely off their stride and had them guessing.

Scarcely less disconcerting was the constant chatter of Louis Ciger, the great Boston and St. Louis catcher. Criger talked all the time, a constant stream of conversation, abuse, scolding, quarrelling with the umpires and the batters.

Charlie Dooin, now with the Cincinnati Reds, has been extremely successions.
