DESPATCH FROM DR. BROWN.

The following interesting letter, furnishing particulars of an important discovery, was received yesterday by the Exploration Committee, from the commander of the exploring party:—

(Despatch No. 11.) V. I. EXPLORING EXPEDITION, Camp 24, Pankledge River, Comoxo Country, August 23rd, 1864.

V. I. EXPLORING COMMITTEE, GENTLEMEN,—I have the honor to announce to you the arrival at the main camp of both parties whom I despatched to examine the straits immediately adjoining the explored and partially settled tracts adjoining this river, and I beg to submit for your information the following abstract of their observations and discoveries. I may remark, you that one party consisted of Meade (in charge) McDonald, and Tomas Antonio. The second of Whymper, Drew, and two Comoxos, under my own direction.

The country lying between the settled district and the sea is wooded, and it there are prairies, they are of very limited extent. The woods, however, are very open, with numerous clear spots, and would over the whole extent, form good cattle runs, and in many places could be cleared with the utmost ease. As I formerly hinted, it is probable that prairies existing for a considerable distance in a westerly or north-westerly direction, but are shut in by deep belts of woodland. Indeed it is known that there is a prairie capable of affording farms to ten or twelve settlers, about five miles in a westerly direction.

II. It must however be noted that prairies or open lands, in general, as far as Vancouver Island goes, follow the course of rivers.—Through the woods in most cases grow thickets, and the timber "scrubby" as you approach the coast, yet in some instances you find beautiful flats stretching along the shore, and dotted with clumps of trees, and intersected by "aluses" of the sea, so as to be partially overflowed during high tides, but as often elevated flats or downs, or what are known in the north of America as "winks," I may especially note the beautiful tract extending from the Rio de Grall, as more or less to past Qualicom river, and capable of affording magnificent pasturage for thousands of cattle. These meadows, in almost every instance, are well watered by creeks flowing through them on their way to the sea. The very worst of them are as good as the famed Essex flats on the Thames. When men are crying out for pasture land, and hay at ruinously prices, it cannot but be a matter of surprise that these splendid stretches covered with rich pasture grasses have not been pre-empted, when they must have been frequently observed.

III. The country between the main river, (Cortany, Pankledge, or Oay-mag-tan) and the Tsa-lum River, (which can scarcely be called a river), for the most part is similar to the tract between the Tsa-lum and the sea, covered in many places along the banks of creeks or marshy places with almost impenetrable thickets of crab apple, (Fynus) and salmon berries, (Rubus Matricaria). The woods spruce, (A. Macrae), Douglas pine, (A. Douglasii), silver pine, (Picea Grandis Doug.)—a very poor pine for lumber, very fair for log-houses—hemlock, (Abies Bridgei Kell), very little cedar, (Thuja Capitata, or gigantea), a loss to the settlers, as wood for shingles is difficult to be had. Maple, (Acerum corymbosum), etc., with an undergrowth of huckleberry, (Vaccinium) and other smaller shrubs. The woods, however, except in the localities noticed, are mostly free of undergrowth with fallen timber, and other such like impediments of travel. The Cortany river takes a course ascending about SSW and is said to rise out of a great lake which you reach in "one sun." This, however, will be settled by us within a day or two.—About 5 miles further up (from the mouth) a considerable river debouches in the mouth of the Cortany, flowing from the west. On this river I am fortunate enough to be able to report the existence of the finest seams of coal hitherto discovered, at least as far as the outcrop may form a criterion, on the Pacific coast.

About 3 1/2 miles up the river is the most important seam of coal. This seam is about 5 feet thick on the out crop, and about 100 feet is exposed. It dips into the river. Four smaller seams are exposed lower down the river, and vary from 2 to 5 feet in thickness, but I have no doubt but that they are all continuations of one seam. In some parts of the large seam the coal is 8 feet thick, but taking the mean depth I think it may be stated at 5 feet. On the opposite bank of a river from the end of the large seam is a seam 90 feet long and 8 feet thick, of pure good coal.

trans-mountain journey shortly (Monday) the fullest description of the topography of the country lying between here and the Alberni canal, hitherto crossed by no one, I thought it better that you should take means by hearing early of this discovery, to obtain a Government reserve of the lands adjoining in terms of the arrangement entered into between His Excellency and the Committee of Exploration. My journals contain detailed accounts regarding the Comoxo country, but the unexpected arrival of Commander Verney in the harbor compels me to omit some matters regarding Indians, &c. which came within my duty as agent of the Government.

I send along with this specimens of the coal; we could have obtained tons if necessary.

We have discovered indications of gold, but have not as yet had time to test it sufficiently well to run the risk of exciting the mercenary Vancouverites by what may turn out to be a mere's rest.

Rest. Brown, Commander and Government Agent of the Expedition.
