THURSDAY MORNING, AUG. 7, 1884. An lo-Saxon Unity.

Mr. David A. Wells, of Connecticut. perhaps the ablest advocate of free trade that his country has to boast of, and he also takes high rank as a statistician and man of figures. He expects to attend the meeting of the British association at Montreal; and, being in that city last week, was interviewed by a Witness reporter. He is strongly in favor of closer commercial relations between the republic and the dominion, and in fact of Anglo-Saxon unity on the grandest scale. In answer to the question whether there was any desire for annexation on the other side, he said : "No, I do not think there is. The general opinion is that the United States has quite nough of territory as it is. The proposal for the annexation of so small a place as Cuba is not entertained warmly, and will, not impro-bably, be rejected. At the sime time it is difficult to see how the influences which will wave the two pe ple together are going to be that we in the United States could adopt a plate which would compel Canada to come into the union. It will never bedone by force, how ever. There is no thought of that, though, of course, with our wastly superior forces it adopt for the purpose, how very is, it he exact atoptioes of that of force; it, would be by boolishing the commercial barriers which we have erected, and by building up mutual in-teres as we would do.".

Next, as to the larger question :-Next, as to the larger question :--'That closer relations will grow up between ireat Britain, the colonies and the United states there can be no doubt, but the nature it these connections it is impossible to foretell. The relations, whatever they may be, will row out of closer commercial relations, which must take place soon. If the United tates and Great Britain both become if see rade nations that would settle the free trade ucstion for the world. Other nations would acom race to become united, it would domin-te the world. It is possible it may, but it 'ill be in the time when that pernicious allacy that one nation can only prosper to the erimmet and at the cost of another is extion. tey that one nation can only prosper to iment and at the cost of another is ed and has disappeared for ever."

It will be seen that, Mr. Wells looks all around the globe, and far shead in time. For our present attention the smaller question of reciprocity or no reciprocity may stitution, will explain its objects: suffice.

It thus appears that in five years the export of cheese has more than doubled. The Gazette says: "The make has been well sold up and factorymen have wisely kept their shelves clear, and prices have been satisfactory. The market price for fines to-day is 10 cents, whereas at this time last year 95 cents was the best obtainable. The export movement of butter tells a very different story. To date the exports this year are 8.581 packages, an increase of 315 over 1883, but a decrease of 1943 as compared with 1882, of 21,636 from 1881, of 46,684 from 1880, and of 20,923 from 1879."

Parnell and Davitt.

A large section of the reading public is interested in the attitude of Messrs Parnell and Davitt toward one another. It has long been known that they are not able to see eve to eye upon the land question, as well as upon many details of the political campaign. Lately the statement was made by the Irish correspondent of the New York Sun, who is no less a personage than T. P. O'Connor, M.P., that the disagreement between the two leaders had culminated in an undisguised quarrel. Mr. O'Connor represented Davitt as charging Parnell with using national funds to push a private land speculation, also with being secretly in the hire of landlords with estates to sell, and Parnell was described as treating these grave charges with silent contempt.

Now comes the Dublin correspondent New York Truth, who writes as though he has drawn from them may be perfectly correct, yet they appear to me, an out-sider, somewhat confused, and I think I may claim to represent, in this respect, a considerable number of the community. might be Davitt himself, or somebody very near him, with a flat denial of all this. near him, with a flat denial of all this. He alleges that no such charges have been made against Parnell by Davitt or any-body else, and denies that there is any difference at all of a personal kind be-tween the two agitators. This announce-ment will be received with gratification by their many admirers in America, but what sort of a position does it place Mr. what sort of a position does it place Mr. Parnell's lieutenant, T. For the sake of the argument, however, we will suppose that the "little machine" actually has 6000 shares standing in its own name. The question then arises, does this fact practically obliterate $600,000 of the bank's capital? According to the author-ity which states that it does, the bank control on the shares through the "ma-chine," and according to the same au-thority the shares mever had any but an prospects of the trade are of the most gloomy description.
