Brave Woman," by the English author Mortimer Mardock, will be produced on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the Grand. Mr. Hardie and Miss Sara Von Leer assume the title characters. It comes direct from the Union Square theatre, New York, where it was highly endorsed both by press and public. Its production at the above theatre proved one of the successes, if not the success, of the season. When the curtain fell on the first act it was evident the place was a go, and will rank with the best melo-dramas we have had from the other side. The title character is a fisherman's daughter, who is secretly wedded to the son of an English noble sman. beyond the reach of any man fliving; but there are men who have the practical gift of working up to them, without being aware of the fact. Such a one, no doubt, was Stradivarias, who some denturies ago made violins, for the superiority of which all the musical and mechanical skill of the present day is unable to account. We shall probably have to conclude that superior tone in a musical instrument is the result mainly of a peculiar combination of two kinds of tact—musical and mechanical together.

Superiority in tone may fairly be claimed for the Knabe piane, but this is not all. The quality of durability in a superior degree is also claimed for it. The Salvation Army.

From the Week.

The Toronto World has dared to say what has long been in the minds of timid people: That the Salvation army is largely composed of "lazy people who join the army so that they may live without work." Our contemporary also asks the very pertinent question: "Who handles the later the public, and those interested in the company's prize distribution, which has is frederick. I am as poor as I am ugly, and if anything can exceed my stupidity it is my disagreeable character. In spite of these disadvantages I aspire to marry. Is there any lady who will have me?" This is not a very inviting programme, but the gentleman has had many letters of inquiry. Women have an instinctive inaudication of the same unprecedented offer, and ne doubt but during the adjournment business with the company will continue to boom.—Advt.

OPEN LETTER.

OFFICE OF THE CANADA TRADING AND IMPORTING CO. (Limited), 129 Bay street, Ladies and Gentlemen—As you are no doubt aware that some months ago the authorities investigated our system of doing business in connection with our Prize Distribution, and when investigated our system of doing business in connection with our Prize Distribution, and when the case was called before Justice Armour at the High Court of Justice, the learned Judge declined to try the case, as we had committed no offence against the laws of this country, our method of awarding prizes to purchasers of Teas and Coffees being perfectly legal and legitimate. But although our business is just what we intended it to be perfectly legal and legitimate, yet, unfortunately, the prosecution was a great annoyance and inconvenience to us in our business, as during the time we were befole the courts our customers became somewhat pusiness, as during the time we were befole the courts our customers became somewhat ferred placing their orders. Consequently business with us, was at a standstill, and that being forced placing their orders. Consequently business with us, was at a standstill, and that being ferred placing their orders.
