

WISE WORDS.

"If I lose mine honour I lose myself."—Shakespeare.

"Love is not bought by money but by love."—F. W. Robertson.

"History has been called one of God's poems."

"If we can't get what we like, let us like what we can get."—Spanish Proverb.

"Simplicity and purity are the two wings that lift the soul up to heaven."

"Great God, who feel'st for my distress,
My thoughts are all that I possess,
Oh keep them innocent."—Wordsworth.

"Man who would be man must rule the empire of himself and in it be supreme."

"Heathenism was the seeking religion, Judaism the hoping religion. Christianity is the reality of what Heathenism sought and Judaism hoped for."—Ludhart.

"Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false they cannot hurt you unless you are wanting in manly character, and if true, they show a man his weak points and forewarn him against failure and trouble."—Gladstone.

"Nothing ever happens but once in this world. What I do now I do once and for ever. It is over—it is gone, with all its eternity of solemn meaning."—Carlyle.

"Real goodness does not attach itself merely to this life—it points to another world. Political or professional reputation cannot last for ever, but a conscience void of offence before God and man is an inheritance for eternity."—Dan. Webster.

"The greatest thing a human soul ever does in the world is to see something and tell what it saw in a plain way. Hundreds of people can talk for one who can think, but thousands can think for one who can see. To see clearly is poetry, prophecy and religion, all in one."—Ruskin.
