NO INDEMNITY FOR REFUGEES

Washington Turns Deaf Ear to Plaint of Discontented Americans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(Can. Press)—State department officials said today that lack of funds that could be applied legally to such a purpose made it imperative that the department decline to defray the expense of returning to Yagut Valley, Sonora, the American refugees who recently arrived at Los Angeles with complaints that they had been scared away from their homes and property by President Wilson's warning to Americans to leave Mexico.

It was pointed out that the money recently appropriated by congress was for the express purpose of bringing refugees out of Mexico, and could not be diverted to send malcontents back.

Furthermore, the opinion was expressed that the petition asking that the refugees be returned represented only a minority of the party. Already more than fifty of the refugees have sought their former homes in the United States, while others in indigent circumstances are accepting relief from the Red Cross agent at San Diego.

The consul at Juarez reported to the department today that John Brookshire, an American who was imprisoned there, had been released on parole.

THIS IS THE DAY FOR PANAMA BOOKS

Certificates Mature Today and the Volumes Will Be Given Out to All Clippers.

This is the day the Panama certificates mature, and readers who present six of them and the small expense fee will be entitled to a copy of "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose," as previously announced in these columns.

Considering the large number of inquiries already received from those interested it is believed that there will be a great demand for these books, and readers are urged to present their certificates as early as possible. The present supply of books is thought to be sufficient to fill all demands under normal conditions, but the offer is so unusual and the books are so attractive that some readers may be disappointed if they do not present their certificates at once.

Everybody that sees this wonderful book wants it. It is difficult to describe such a volume in cold type, and utterly impossible to portray its beauties in any kind of an illustration. For its wealth of harmonious colorings cannot be reproduced, its contents are unique in that they comprise a series of interesting stories about the canal, the country, the people—where they live, what they eat, how they employ their time in pleasure and work—and all of these pleasing little stories are made up into one complete story which is of intense interest to all.

The World is cognizant of the educational benefits to be derived from this volume which gives the complete history of the great canal, setting forth its purpose and promise, and the benefit of readers, as heretofore announced, it has arranged for a great distribution, which begins today. Hereafter, until further notice, a Panama certificate will be printed daily. Six of these certificates have already appeared in these columns and will be exchanged for books when accompanied by the expense amount named therein.

Clip the certificates and present them any day until further notice.
