This gave a slight measure of protection to Canadian distillers, which compensated them for the increased duty upon their raw material, machinery, etc.

Against increasing Excise.

A somewhat rambling discussion ensued. Sir Wilfrid Laurier argued that the Canadian excise should be increased to correspond with the increase in customs duty, but Mr. White was of the opinion that any increase in the excise would mean a loss of revenue. He declined to discuss the matter from the standpoint of discouraging the consumption of liquor by increased taxation, saying that the object of the resolution before the committee was to create additional revenue for war purposes. tional revenue for war purposes.

That Have Been Used Only on Our Floors for Exhibition Purposes

The wonderful values offered in this—the most remark able event in the Piano business of Canada-are daily emphasized by the number of purchases made here since the sale started. Such conspicuously high-class instruments have never been offered anywhere on the easy terms possible now, and they possibly will not be repeated in a decade. With returning commercial prosperity there is little reason for exercising the undue economy that has been practised in many quarters-thus stagnating, in a measure, the Piano business. It is entirely owing to factory over-production, caused by our endeavor to keep running full time during the winter months. Let nothing deter you from inspecting these values before choice gets too restricted. It's really a rare and unique saving opportunity.

Don't Overlook the Fact That Every Instrument is of High-class Quality.
