council and the striking employes of the street railway company held a conference at the city hall this morning.

It was thought better to carry on the negotiations privately, so that reporters were not present. The meeting lasted from 11:30 till 1:30. From Chairman Parnell it was learned after the meeting that the discussion had been chiefly regarding the civic committee's proposition made last night and which was in effect asking the men to forego their demands for recognition of the union, provided the company would meet a committee of its employes and the council. Speaking of the Cleveland strike, he said the outcome was quite satisfactory to the men. They had a pile of grievances, and all were adjusted. The impression that they were striking solely for recognition of the union was incorrect, he said. A change had been made in the schedule, which were satisfactorily adjusted. The only men lost were those proven guilty of destruction of property. All the lines in the city are now organized. The

The miscellaneous private bills committee took rather an unusual step with regard to the divorce bill. Usually the report of the senate divorce committee is accepted, but today the committee was not satisfied with the evidence, and decided to let the bill for the relief of Abraham Aronsberg, of Montreal, stand in the hope of securing further evidence. Sir Louis Davies said that the evidence of two witnesses was contradictory. One or the other appeared to be guilty of perjury. It appeared that evidence had been submitted to a Masonic todge to which both witnesses belonged, which would probably throw additional light on this point, and he suggested that the bill stand over in order that counsel for petitioner might make an attempt to secure this evidence. Counsel said he had been trying to get this evidence for three weeks, but had failed. Sir Louis Davies' suggestion was, however,

In the afternoon there will be a game of ball between two local clubs. RICE THROWING.

The antiquated practice of pelting a newly-married pair with rice has-like a porous plaster-its drawbacks, as the following dispatch from Traverse City, Mich., shows: "At Manton yesterday M. J. Compton and Miss Glora Hager were married. The couple came to Traverse City on their wedding tour and when they left Manton the congratulatory salutes were indulged in, showers of rice being one of the features. Unfortunately a kernel of rice lodged in the drum of the ear of the groom and he suffered great pain. When he arrived at Traverse City physicians worked long to remove it, and the groom was a long time under the influence of chlorofo m before the nice was extracted."

"WHEN IN DOUBT TELL THE TRUTH"

Humorous Advice Given by Mark Twain to a London Club - He Learned to Speak Impromptu. London, June 30 .- Mark Twain, the celebrated American author, delivered a humorous sketch at the dinner given in his honor by the United Friars Club in the Hotel Cecil. In responding to the toast, "Our Guest, Friar Mark Twain," he said that he did not know what the vow of the friars was. He did not care what it was. He had made thousands of vows. There was no pleasure comparable to making a vow in the presence of men who appreciated it and admired one for making it. There was only one pledge higher than that, and that was to get outside and break that vow. (Laughter.) A vow was always a pledge of some kind for the protection of one's own or somebody else's morals. Hence they had pledges to make them eschew tobacco and wine, and when they were making a pledge of that kind they felt they could never be so happy in this world again until they got outside and took a drink. (Laughter.)

He did not know anything so bad as having to make an after-dinner speech. If the proposer said something severe, if he would deride one or traduce one he would furnish a text, because anyone could get up and talk against that; anybody could get up and straighten out his own character-(laughter)but when a gentleman got up merely told the truth what could be said? (Laughter.) It was difficult to choose from the texts which he had furnished. He saw present his master in the art of oratory of 25 years ago, Mr. Depew, and there was also Mr. Choate. They would notice that when they three were absent there was a pleasant tranquility in America—a building up of public confidence.

They were doing the best for their country. He thought they had spent their lives in serving their country, and they never served it to so good advantage as when they were out of advantage as when they were out of it. (Laughter.) The speaker then gave a humorous description of how he had learned to make "impromptu" speeches by preparing them carefully a week beforehand—writing them out, hearth and after. learning them by heart, and afterwards handing a printed copy to the press. (Laughter.) He did not want to sit down without saying something He had said nothing that would make them better than when they came there. He would, therefore, to say one serious word which they could carry home to their child-ren and the old people who were not able to come. Let them take this as a legacy from him: "When in doubt a legacy from him: "Wh tell the truth." (Cheers.)

STRIKE NOTES.

The civic committee arranged for another meeting with the directors of the street railway company at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and with the strikers at 4:20.

The executive committee of the street railway strikers wish to thank the Knox Church and Rocket baseball teams for their generosity in turning over to the strike fund the receipts of last Saturday's game.

Every labor organization in the city will be represented by at least three members in the street railway strikers' parade to Queen's Park on Monday. During the afternoon President Mahon may speak for a few minutes about the Cleveland strike.

Mr. T. Fox addresses the following to the street railway company: "Don't you think it time to take a tumble to yourselves? What is the use to cut off your nose to spite your face? You are all getting to be the laughing stock of the city. The citizens of London will not ride in your cars, and they are all empty. Look at all the money you have lost! Why, if I owned the street railway, I would have given in the next day. It is no use to be too independent nowadays, as it is a thing of the past. And, gentlemen, take a fool's advice for once, and come down on the level and make a settlement with the men at once, and put them to work. I guarantee all will be well. From a citizen who wishes you all well. I remain, yours very respectful-
