WASHINGTON WEATHER REPORT.

ASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Eastern states and Northern New York—Fair tonight, warmer in west and extreme south portions. Windy, partly cloudy, fresh southwest to south winds.

LATE LOCALS

Two fishing schooners from the south shore of Nova Scotia are here getting lobster bait. They are catching and hauling the small herring, fresh southwest to south winds.

The American schooner Isaiah K. Stetson, Captain Hamilton, arrived in port this morning from New York in ballast. The vessel will load lumber for New York on private terms.

The Hampton & St. Martins Railway arrives each evening to the Sunday School Convention to be held at St. Martins Wednesday Sept. 19th, that connections will be made at Hampton Junction with special train leaving St. John at 11 o'clock.

Travel from the United States to this port still keeps up. The Calvin Austin, Captain Pike, arrived from Boston this morning at 9 o'clock with 200 passengers and a large freight. Among the passengers were 100 men going to Campbellton to work on the railway.

Bishop Racoon, of Montreal, is at the palace, the guest of Bishop Carey. Bishop Racoon is the head of the order of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, and will visit the home on Waterloo street. His lordship will leave for Montreal this evening.

The funeral of the late Charles Tardif was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence, Erin street. The body was taken to the Cathedral, where the burial services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Holland. Interment was made in the new Catholic cemetery.

At a meeting of the city milk dealers yesterday afternoon it was definitely decided to advance the price of milk to six cents wholesale and seven cents retail, commencing today. This action was taken as a result of the producers advancing their prices five cents per can.

As one of the local engines was coming into the yard yesterday afternoon, a number of boys commenced throwing stones and one of the missiles went through the cab window skimming the engineer's head, but it did not hit him. The stone, which weighed nearly half a pound was found inside the cab. The station police are keeping a sharp lookout for such offenders.

Mrs. Brigadier Turner, assisted by Mrs. Major Phillips, will conduct a harvest festival at the 6. A. barracks, Mill street, on Wednesday, at 8 p. m. Capt. Urquhart, the popular violinist, will take part in the musical programme, and a good collection of fancy work will be auctioned off. Don't fail to see the patriotic quilt which is a beautiful piece of needlework.

ST. ANDREW'S ROLLAWAY

This is ladies' night at the St. Andrews Rollaway, and the band will furnish music. Gentlemen will please observe the rules which require that they skate each and every band with a lady. Those who have learned to skate, but who have never skated a band night, will find ladies' night an excellent one to begin. The following complimentary remarks were made to the manager by an American gentleman who with his daughter and a party of friends, skated the entire evening last Tuesday night, ladies' night. "We have had a most enjoyable evening and I wish to congratulate you on the success which I understand you are having in conducting what is an absolutely roller rink, and my home city there are several rinks, but I am sorry to say that none of them are as well conducted as yours." Owing to the absence of a sufficient number of lady skaters in their party, several of the gentlemen were obliged to retire from the floor during some of the bands, and they did so most willingly, at the same time agreeing that the rule was a good one.

THE SCRIPTURAL HELL

The Times recently printed a brief report of a discourse by Rev. Mr. Streeter on The Scriptural Hell. A correspondent was later permitted in these columns very briefly to denote certain texts of Scripture which he thought Mr. Streeter should consider. Mr. Streeter has now replied with a letter which would occupy some two or three columns of space.

Without any suggestion of flippancy, it may be remarked that the average reader of a daily paper is not deeply interested in this question. Whether it be natural depravity, the new theology or some other influence, he has lost his test for controversies of this kind. However, the Times is glad to be able to say to any person who desires to pursue the inquiry that an abundance of literature may be secured without cost by applying to Rev. R. E. Streeter, 291 Station street, Elmwood Station, Providence, Rhode Island.

THE GLOBE CORRECTED

To the Editor of the Times:
Sir,—I wish to correct a misleading item which appeared in the St. John Saturday Globe of Sept. 8th, under the heading of "Fairville News."

Now, there is no Richard Cushing Mill in Wallingford, Me., but Andre R. Cushing owns a mill at Eagle Lake, Me., and has for his foreman for several years W. D. Fraser and not John McMaisters, of Fairville, as reported.

MILLINERY OPENINGS

Retail Openings Held Today—Some of the Styles Shown

Today is a gala day with the ladies of St. John for the millinery opening of fall headgear is being held in all the principal stores. The ladies were out bright and early and the various creations from the European and American centres of fashion were eagerly studied and purchases made.

When a Times man visited Macaulay Bros. & Co. their millinery showroom was thronged with buyers and the latest novelties from Paris, London, and New York were examined with great curiosity. An infinite variety of shapes and trimmings was displayed attractively and it was possible for many to make a decision among so many pretty head pieces.

Among the number that came in for special attention was a Benetton, a large black velvet hat, with crown of taffeta silk and ribbon trimmed with three feather plumes, a cascade of chiffon and a jet buckle. A Scotch turban made from beaver hood in hunter's green was also an attraction. It had trimmings of marabout and wings in blue and green at the side, a draping of plaid silk braid and an oxidized buckle. A chic model in ready velvet was also shown. It had a dome crown, high at the left with green ostrich plumes and bandeaux of roses. The most popular colorings this season are dark wines, prunes and all shades of green. Great quantities of large wings and birds are being used as well as feather bandeaux.

A feature of the display is the showing of children's hats and bonnets in white felt and silk. One of these that was particularly striking was made of cut felt with pea velvet crown, a soft silk tie and petite ostrich feather. Taken in all the display is a most comprehensive one and the lady of fashion must indeed be hard to please if she cannot select something to suit her from this season's styles.

At M. R. A.'s Ltd.

The millinery show at M. R. A.'s Ltd., this forenoon and afternoon, also tomorrow all day, is one of the most brilliant ever made by the big house in the autumn. Cool weather openings are usually dull affairs, compared to the sparkling colors and shiny materials of springtime, but this season's display has proved the exception to the rule. As early as 8 o'clock this morning the ladies were on hand, some proceeding in carriages—to select the choicest Paris hats specially imported for exclusive display. Many smart American models and chic creations of home milliners, made a handsome showing, and callers were not backward in their commendations. As well as the hats there were all kinds of materials such as velvets, flosses, blossoms, wings, quills, bandeaux, untrimmed shapes. Consulting milliners were on hand to scheme out pretty effects for enquires, with the most generous and generous of them booked. The display is being made in the silk and fur department, also the millinery section. The rooms are lighted by electricity, the blinds being drawn, what is known as the matinee effect. M. R. A.'s preliminary show ends tomorrow evening at 8 p. m. but then the store is opened for its full swing of business.

THEY WANTED SOUVENIRS

Some Boston Visitors Who Cribbed Silverware From the Park Hotel.

Three members of the Boston fire department, who came here on their vacation, registered Saturday at the Park Hotel, giving their names as E. P. Brown, E. A. Sullivan and J. A. Hart.

The day they arrived some silverware disappeared from the table they occupied and the matter was reported to Mr. Damery, who, on investigation, found the missing silver and some other silver pieces marked "Calvin Austin." The articles were replaced and next morning Mr. Damery told his guests that he wanted to look through their luggage. They put up a vigorous protest, but Deputy Chief Jenkins and Officer Crawford were summoned and when threatened with arrest they did not object. The hotel gods were returned, and the other silverware taken charge of by Deputy Jenkins, to be returned to the Eastern Steamship Company.

The three firemen left for Digby yesterday morning.
