RUTH'S BATTING.
New York, July 16.—In making his twenty-ninth home run yesterday, Babe Ruth, star batter of the New York Yankees, equaled his record of last year, although the season is little more than half over. He failed to pound out a circuit smash in April but made an even dozen both in May and June. His best performance was in the thirteen games from May 28 to June 2, inclusive, in which period he added ten to his total.

His banner day was on June 2, when he hit three home runs in a double-header. He bunched a pair of his favorite four base hits in one contest on four occasions, May 11, May 27, June 25 and June 30.

ing it until she was within half a mile of the finish line, when her throaty halyard parted and a second later the jaws of her gear were shattered beyond repair. An endeavor was made to make repairs but when the extent of the damage was learned Captain Charles F. Adams, Jr. decided to give the race to the Shamrock.

When the accident happened a tug bearing Sir Thomas Lipton's colors drew up to the steam yacht Victoria and many yachtsmen believed he was ordering the Shamrock to fall to cross the line. Later he acknowledged that this was his initial impulse, but that he was persuaded by his companions to permit Shamrock IV to finish as it was felt that destruction of the challenger would be tantamount to giving the race to the Resolute.

At the time of the accident Shamrock IV was nearly five minutes behind the Resolute. She turned the mark in 2:57.30. Her commander sailed anything but a straight course, and when passing the mark took a wide sweeping turn, which was considered unnecessary. She crossed the finish line in 4:24.4 elapsed time.

After the race Sir Thomas Lipton said that while technically he won he did not want that kind of a victory. The second race will be held tomorrow.

Miss Hughes quoted from different English year-books and other official authorities showing how the population of Ireland had dwindled because of what she stated upon similar authorities was the "crippling of Irish industries" by English interests, gradually forcing the people to migrate to America or the colonies in the hope of bettering their condition.

The old order was changing. Now the young men were staying at home and seeking redress for their centuries old wrongs. Protestant and Catholic were sinking the religious differences among them, being largely fostered by English politicians with the idea of giving an unpleasant and wrongful impression throughout the world. Nationalist and Unionist and Sinn Feiner and Laborer were getting together, asking for the same rights as other subjects of the British Empire enjoyed—the right to govern themselves in a country which was their own.

Large Audience Hears Gifted
Speaker—An Earnest Appeal for Response to Call for Members of League.

A clever speaker, showing a vast and intimate knowledge of a subject of prime interest to all parts of the civilized world today, Miss Katherine Hughes in the Opera House last evening made a lasting impression in an able address on "The Truth About Ireland." The house was crowded with keenly interested listeners and her remarks were received with hearty appreciation and warm applause by a large majority of those present.

Miss Hughes is a Canadian who has made quite an enviable name for herself as a writer and who has studied the Irish question where she says it should be studied—in Ireland amongst the poor and the rich, the Unionist, Nationalist, Orangeman and Sinn Feiner. During the war she gave her services as one of the staff at Albert House in London, doing all in her power to help Canadian and other British soldiers overseas.

In opening her address Miss Hughes referred to the start of dominion government in Canada, telling how Lord Durham had returned to England in support of it, had been turned down by the authorities there who did not desire that Canada should have the measure of government she now enjoys, and that she had come to realize that she must have it and therefore accepted. This form of government (dominion home rule) had been taken up and adopted in other empire colonies. Under its banner, with Hughes mentioned as among those in England who had gone to France and Flanders and made heavy sacrifices for the name of freedom and with the latest ideals for which any troops could fight. Much was then said about protection of the Irish nation and their right of self-determination. This cry was heard all through the war and it came to the peace settlement it had seemingly been forgotten so far as some small nations were concerned.

Failure to fulfil the promises made for the League of Nations was a world-wide source of concern. In France, Italy, and in the United States the question of peace among the peoples of Ireland was causing a doubt to arise as to the sincerity of the League of Nations. Nationalist and Unionist and Sinn Feiner and Laborer were getting together, asking for the same rights as other subjects of the British Empire enjoyed—the right to govern themselves in a country which was their own.

In the recent elections only a small patch was left on the map of the country marked red as showing the remarkably slight minority which stood out against almost the whole country, marked green on an English map printed in a London newspaper. Counties which never before had been considered anything but loyal Orange had gone over to the side of the new movement for self-determination. How long, she asked, would people in Canada stand for the ignoring of their rights if one small corner of the country opposed the wishes of such a majority? How long would Canadian liberty-loving people endure oppression and mis-rule from any country, even England?

In closing her address, Miss Hughes made an earnest appeal for Canadians to join with their fellows of Australia, to join with France, United States and many powerful voices in England in active sympathy with the Irish cause. To this end she said a league had been formed friendly to Irish endeavor towards self-determination, and she hoped that many in St. John would join as they
