which the draft treaty is based must therefore stand.

"Until the signing of peace, the people of Austria are, and will remain an enemy people; upon its signature they will become a state with which the Allied and associated powers have and expect to maintain friendly relations."

Assurance of desire to assist the Austrians to recover their property given, provided always that it is not at the expense of the new states formed out of the late empire."

It declares that the modifications which have been made in the draft treaty are final. The note concludes thus: "The Allied and associated powers require from the Austrian delegation within a period of five days, counting from the date of the present communication, a declaration informing them that they are prepared to sign this treaty as it now stands. So soon as their declaration reaches the Allied and associated powers, arrangements will be made for the immediate signature of peace at St. Germain."

"In default of such declaration within the period above stipulated, the armistice concluded on November 11, 1918, shall be considered as having terminated and the Allied and associated powers will take such steps as they may judge necessary to impose their conditions."

Paris, Sept. 3.—Only one change from the original territorial terms of the Austrian peace treaty appears in the final draft of that document, submitted to the Austrian plenipotentiaries at Saint Germain yesterday. The alteration is in the case of the town of Radkersburg, in the Marburg Basin, southwest of Graz, Radkersburg remaining Austrian, although the basin is attached to Jugoslavia.

Being the first after the war convention, a particularly attractive programme has been arranged.
Instructive selling talks, addresses and experiences are arranged for evening sessions at the convention headquarters, The Royal Muskego Hotel, while each day will be utilized to the best advantage in the enjoyment of the great variety of pleasures outside.

The convention promises to be the most instructive and entertaining ever arranged by the company for its Hundred Thousand Club members.
R. J. Foley and D. S. Robillard of St. John, members of the club, will attend this convention.

Strike Continues
Paris, Sept. 3.—The dock strike at Marseilles continues without disorder, but serious consequences are feared if a settlement is not reached soon, especially as oil refineries and soap factories will soon run short of raw material.

BIG GAIN IN WALL STREET

Crucible Steel on the Jump in Lively Forenoon

New York, Sept. 3.—Steel equipments, motors, oils and related specialties were the conspicuous features at the active and strong opening of today's stock market. Crucible Steel, which made a net gain of thirteen points yesterday, soon added 8 1/4 points to this, while Chandler, Studenaker and General Motors, Mexican and Pan-American Petroleum, United States Rubber, Kelly-Springfield Tire and Goodrich rose over four points. American Locomotive, Atlantic Gulf, Central Leather and secondary rails comprised the other strong issues. United States Steel was irregular with fractional bounds.

Noon Report
Interest continued to centre in Crucible Steel, which made a further advance to 193, an overnight gain of 15-3/4 points. Other striking features of the forenoon, which was the liveliest and most varied in the upswing in almost a month, included Baldwin Locomotive, American Car, Pressed Steel Car, Republic Iron, Texas Company, California Petroleum, American International, American Woolen, Worthington Pump, Sumatra Tobacco and the food and leather divisions. The movement was not all one way, General Motors reacting 4 1/2 points, and Southern Pacific losing 1 1/2, other rails also falling back.

Sir Robert Borden was passing through the hall when he saw the members filing out. "Surely the House is not adjourned?" When told it was he became very much flustered exclaiming wrathfully that he had an important statement to make. Afterwards he caught up to the misadventurer, still spilling delightedly over the defeat of his little French speech, and woke him with a jolt, talking to him in language which seemed to lose nothing of its forcefulness from the fact that there were some within earshot. It was this deferred statement which was delivered this afternoon the debate being adjourned for the purpose by the leader of the opposition.

There is very little change in the aspect of the house at this new session. Mr. Fielding has moved from his place in the front benches beside D. D. MacKenzie. Ham Burnham is on the front benches, having announced the full cross benches, having announced the full cross benches, having announced the full cross benches.

There may be some further changes later on if Colonel Currie gets his ginger group in working order and can establish a straight Tory wing.

It is too soon yet to say what the session will develop; but there is one thing on which all seem agreed; the session will last the full month necessary to provide an additional sessional indemnity for the members. That, indeed, is considered by many to have been a second stroke to the ratification of the peace treaty in making the session necessary.

It would not be surprising, under the circumstances, if the present leader of the opposition should not develop any particular aggressiveness in his leadership; he will probably see no reason why he should go any further in laying the foundations of a mansion which McKenzie King will occupy.
