The cottage was with their feminine clothing, was left on the shores of Lake Nippinicitet by a taxi driver, whom they promised to meet, but missed when two gallants from the town of Raynham invited them to go canoeing. The police got in touch with the parents of the girls and Mr. Ashby, who was in the girls in a cottage on the shores of Taunton river. The cottage was wrecked. The girls deny they were in the cottage and told Chief Crowley that they did not like men. The chief told them bluntly that he thought they until some responsible person comes to take them home. If Mr. Ashby refuses to take the Clark girl home with him, she will be turned over to the care of state authorities.
