Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to eradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.

The remains of a giant mastodon, discovered on the farm of Wm. Jones, Delaware township, are being excavated and removed under the direction of Prof. Robertson of the Western University. An exchange says:—On Nov. 15th last a farmer of East Kent purchased a small herd of eleven beef cattle from a Chatham drover. The cattle weighed 13,200 pounds and the farmer paid for them at the rate of 5 1/2 cents per pound. The other day the farmer brought the cattle to the city and resold them to the same drover at 7 cents per pound. Since November the cattle had gained 3,270 pounds, their total weight being 16,470 pounds. After figuring out the cost of feeding and otherwise taking care of the cattle, the farmer realized a net profit of $426.96, besides feeding a number of hogs which were permitted to run with the cattle.

MARTHUR—DAY
A charming wedding took place at Guelph on Thursday, when Dorothy Campbell, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. George Day, became the bride of Daniel Carmen McArthur, son of Peter McArthur, prominent Canadian writer of Ekfrid, and namesake of Bliss Cameron, the Canadian poet.

The ceremony took place at the bride's home. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in her graceful wedding gown of white crepe de chine, draped with chintilly lace. Orange blossoms wreathed her hair, and she wore the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls, and carried a shower of Ophelia roses and valley lilies. Her sister, Miss Helen Day, as bridesmaid, wore a simple, pretty gown of peach crepe de chine with colonial bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies. McKellar McArthur, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Miss Forbes, of Guelph, played the wedding march and during the signing of the register Miss Katharine Hamilton also of Guelph, sang delightfully "Maid O' Mine."

Pink roses, valley lilies, syringa and pink peonies made a lovely bank of color and fragrance in the living room, where the ceremony took place, and the entire house was radiant with June flowers. After a reception of white crepe de chine, Mr. and Mrs. McArthur left to spend their honeymoon in Muskoka, the bride traveling in a smart navy suit and hat to match. On their return they will reside at Sunnyside, Toronto.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Peter McArthur and Miss Elizabeth McArthur, of Ekfrid, and Miss Catharine Stuart, of Glencoe.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY
Through Us or in Spite of Us?

When the war was on and this country was putting forth every effort, at home and overseas, to aid the allied cause, a great spirit of confidence and faith of willingness to work, economize and sacrifice, filled every class of the community from the highest to the lowest.

As a result, Canada's honourable war record has set her high among the nations, with a place at the Imperial Council table and a voice in international affairs.

Canada must and will come, with equal honour, through the troublous times of post-war adjustment. The only question is, will all of us help—or some of us hinder, by pessimism, apathy or class jealousy?

To the Canadian farmer this question comes with a peculiar force. Agriculture must be the economic backbone of this or any nation. It is an occupation where nature herself demands energy, courage, economy and efficiency. These sturdy qualities radiate from our farms to industries in other walks of life, where so many leaders were country born and bred.

The farm home and farm life as the source of what has been and is the strongest and truest in our national character is interwoven with the history of Canada from its infancy. The settlers on the shores of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, toiling to clear a patch of forest and sowing their grain among the stumps; Hebert and the pioneers of New France, fighting Indians, enduring privations, wrestling merely a rude living from their small clearings, but full of faith in the future, if not for them, then for generations yet to come; the men who rescued Upper Canada from the wilderness; the Red River colonists, who, after two years of complete destruction of their crops, sent a party to the Mississippi for seed grain for the next year and won! These men made possible the Canada of today.

The farmers of Canada, then, have a rich history and a noble tradition to live up to. Upon them Canada's progress has always, in the main, depended; upon them it will always, in the main, depend.

What, then, is necessary for the farmers of today? Simply the application of those qualities we have referred to—energy, courage, economy, and efficiency, and under present-day conditions the return is sure and speedy. A very high percentage of the farm products of this country have been produced and paid for in the farmer's own lifetime. For the present and future generations there is exactly the same opportunity. True, with each generation, and perhaps oftener, we may have to change our type of crops to meet changing market requirements, but this is a trifling task compared with that of those who had to establish themselves in a new country, create their farm, their community, their markets and their civilization.

During the war years the farmer, like most others, became unreasonably optimistic. As in other industries, he over-capitalized, tied up too much money in extravagant buildings and expensive machinery, bought tractors to get the crops in more quickly and easily, without considering whether the actual earning power of these warranted the investment. With the depression which has followed, this over-expansion has been a serious burden and has shaken the faith of some in ultimate success.

We must get back the indomitable courage and unflinching effort of Canada's early days. The farmer must remember that in the last analysis he is infinitely better off than the wage-earner of the city. True, his cash income may sometimes be small but he can, at the very worst, gain his living from the soil, while in the city the larger wage soon melts away in paying for things which on the farm involves no cash outlay. The farm products are necessities of life and must always command a market. The products of city industries must often create their market and their sale is subject to wide fluctuations. Sure of a market, then, the farmer's main problem is simply the lowering of cost of production to permit of a fair margin of profit even at present prices. This can be done and is being done.

We may call attention to the advertisement placed in this issue by the Federal Department of Agriculture. It is more than an advertisement, it is a call to united and cheerful effort, a summons to the Canadian spirit of the "will to win" which has burned so brightly throughout Canada's history—a spirit which is so well shown in a message received in Ottawa only a few days ago from one of the foremost farmers of the province of Alberta. He says: "I started to gain the last part of the week, and this coming after the recent heavy rains has put the soil in a condition that it has not been in at this time of the year since 1916; the farmers are consequently very jubilant and if optimism could pay debts the farmers of Southern Alberta could by next fall cancel our National Debt."

Dr. F. B. Banting, of Toronto discoverer of the insulin treatment for diabetes, has been granted an annuity of $7,500 by the Dominion Government so he may devote his life to further discoveries in medical science.
